Cosmonaut Relayed Facts While Plunging to Death

MOSCOW (CP)—Soviet scientists today began a searching investigation into the death of cosmonaut Vladimir Komarov whose last seconds as he helplessly plunged to earth were said to be a model of self-possession and calmness.

A Pravda tribute said the 40-year-old cosmonaut's last reports were a "model of sensible and crisp information, self-possession and calmness."

The tribute from the official Communist party newspaper was written by Sergei Borzenko, who witnessed all Russia's manned space launchings.

He said Komarov valiantly fought to the last gasp to save his Soyuz 1 craft, which plummeted to earth Monday with its parachute shrouds hopelessly tangled.

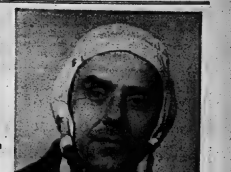
But he gave no clue to what might have happened aboard the capsule before it was brought down—sooner than expected—to meet disaster.

Komarov was posthumously awarded a gold star in addition to his Hero of the Soviet Union decoration and accorded the country's deepest tributes.

Premier Alexei Kosygin and President Nikolai Podgorny were among the first to stand vigil in a guard of honor near the urn containing the spaceman's ashes.

To the accompaniment of sad music, and amid a profusion of flowers, the urn was placed on a high pedestal in the Red Banner Hall of the Central Army House in Moscow.

The government announced that Komarov would be given a hero's funeral in Red Square Wednesday and his ashes interred at the Kremlin Wall.



The Soviet government announced that it was setting up a commission to investigate "all the circumstances" of Komarov's death, the first announced fatality in the Soviet Union's space program.

The disaster revived U.S. proposals for co-operation between the two chief powers in space exploration. But Western experts privately doubted the Russians would be willing to share their knowledge or admit their shortcomings.

James Webb, administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, said in Washington President Johnson is ready to act on a co-operative basis with the Soviet Union.

The Russians released only sketchy details of events leading to the point where the parachute straps of Soyuz 1 fouled as landing preparations more than four miles up and the space vehicle plunged to earth with Komarov.

Western experts believe that the tangled chute was an aftereffect of a more serious problem that began before the fatal landing, possibly failure in the guidance and control system. Informed sources in Washington said Soviet scientists made several attempts to bring Soyuz 1 to earth before it crashed.

World Leaders Attend Funeral For Adenauer

COLOGNE (CP)—Presidents Johnson and de Gaulle and other Western statesmen, including Prime Minister Wilson, today led a vast congregation at a pontifical requiem in Cologne Cathedral for Konrad Adenauer.

A dozen prime ministers joined them in mourning West Germany's first chancellor in the city where he was born 91 years ago and of which he was mayor for 16 years.

Johnson and Gen. de Gaulle stood silently side by side in the front row of pews.

External Affairs Minister Paul Martin of Canada represented Prime Minister Pearson.

Men who had once worked with Adenauer in his task of forging Western unity and restoring West Germany to an honored place in world society were there.

Millions throughout Western Europe and North America watched on television the solemn pageant in the lofty Gothic cathedral.

Adenauer, a Catholic, played a large part in creating the Christian Democratic political movement which has held unbroken power in West Germany since 1949.

Brezhnev Asks End To Bases

KARLOVY VARY, Czechoslovakia (AP)—Communist Leader Leonid Brezhnev Monday night renewed the Soviet campaign to disengage the United States from Europe and called on European nations to demand withdrawal of the U.S. 6th Fleet from the Mediterranean.

Brezhnev, first secretary of the Soviet Communist party, told the meeting of 24 European Communist parties that it is time to close foreign military bases and "the subversive, espionage and sabotage centres, radio stations and various organizations set up by the Americans in West Germany and other Western European countries which are conducting slanderous propaganda against the Socialist countries."

He repeated the Communist call for dismantling of the rival North Atlantic and Warsaw military blocs.

He said the Soviet Union "would readily meet half way" any initiative of neutral countries to promote peace and would discuss bilateral treaties with any European country wanting to develop and improve relations with Moscow.

Brezhnev said "the growing desire to strengthen national independence and get rid of the dictation of the dollar are suggesting to European states many ways and undertakings in the most diverse spheres—from the building of gas pipelines across the continent to the introduction of a common color television system for all Europe," he said.

Teachers Set Deadline

TORONTO (CP)—A deadline has been set by 1,500 Toronto high school teachers for the Toronto board of education to renew an offer of retroactive pay which the board made and then withdrew.

Teachers' spokesmen said Monday that if the retroactive pay offer is not renewed by May 3, they will recommend that the teachers reject the board's final offer in their wage dispute.

The recommendation would also urge that the teachers vote to resign if necessary.

Council Wants Ontario Welfare Official's Views

An official of the Ontario Department of welfare will be asked to come in Belleville and review the operations of the city welfare department and report to council.

This was decided yesterday as council members approved a motion from Mayor J. R. Ellis.

The request is that the provincial department provide the services of Reginald Tucker to report on the progress of the city welfare department since his last report in 1963 and to make recommendations on any further steps which may be necessary to improve the operation of the local department.

Mr. Tucker was briefly in charge of the city welfare department in 1963 following the resignation of George Whitman.

Council action yesterday was the follow-up to an investigation of the welfare department by a special committee. Two reports were submitted by committee members, one by Aldermen Ernest David asking for a complete review of the city welfare administrator's tenure of office.

Peterborough Cottage Fire Leaves 3 Dead

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — A mother and her two young children died Monday when fire hit a rented cottage at Nogies Creek, about 12 miles north of Peterborough.

The victims were identified as Mrs. Robert Russell Worrgood, 24, her daughters, Diane, 3, and Linda, 4.

The family formerly lived in Toronto.

The father was at work when the fire occurred.

The fire scene was in the same area as Ennismore, where five children were killed in a fire last week.

Greek Army Junta Makes New Arrests

ATHENS (CP)—Greece's new military government has made a number of new arrests, it was learned today.

Soldiers who rounded up thousands of persons in the first hours of the coup last Friday launched a new roundup in Athens and the provinces. Many of those picked up were believed to be leftists.

Newspapers in Rome said five Italians employed in Greece were among those arrested. It was the first report of foreigners taken into custody.

Authorities also ordered all heads of families to report the persons in their households, including foreigners.

An all-party group of Canadian MPs sent a telegram to the Greek embassy in Ottawa Monday demanding assurances that political prisoners will be given full protection of civil law.

Rocket Problems Delay Launchings

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Rocket problems today forced the air force to postpone plans to launch five military satellites, including two space sentries to guard against sneak violations of the nuclear test-ban treaty.

No new launch date was set immediately. The scrub came at 6:45 a.m. EST.

A countdown toward an original 5:07 a.m. blastoff was interrupted by a faulty radar at a tracking station. A second launch attempt, planned for 5:25 a.m., got to within one second of lift-off when an automatic sensing device determined there were troubles on the rocket and stopped the countdown before the motors actually ignited.

The Titan III was scheduled to perform nearly 4½ hours of acrobatic space manoeuvres to carry its payload toward its preliminary orbit ranging from 5,300 to 69,000 miles above the earth.

About 22 hours after separating from the rocket's last stage, one of the nuclear detection satellites, called Vela, was to trigger a spacecraft motor to kick it into a circular orbit 69,000 miles high.

The second Vela sentry was to perform the same manoeuvre in three days, stationing itself on the opposite side of the earth.

The 730-pound Velas, shaped like beachballs, were built to spot nuclear blasts in earth's atmosphere and deep in space, perhaps as far from earth as Mars.

China Claims U.S. Planes Shot Down

HONG KONG (Reuters)—The Chinese Air Force claimed to have shot down two American F-4b military aircraft over Kwangsi province Monday, Radio Peking reported tonight.

The F-4b Phantom, an all-weather fighter, is the fastest operational plane produced by the United States.

Kwangsi province lies in southern China, bordering on North Vietnam.

But in Saigon a U.S. spokesman denied the claim.

"I have no indication that any aircraft invaded Chinese air space' and that any aircraft were shot down," said a U.S. spokesman.

SAIGON (CP) — U.S. planes struck at prime targets in North Vietnam today, hitting again inside the port city of Haiphong and closer than ever before to the centre of the capital of Hanoi.

The new strikes against North Vietnam's two major cities came within 24 hours of the first attacks of the war on MIG airfields in North Vietnam.

The escalation of the bombing was accompanied by a jump in American plane losses. Four U.S. planes were reported lost over the North—three Monday and one today. But, American pilots reported shooting down two MIG-17s Monday.

Ontario Report Backs Demand For Bigger Income Tax Share

TORONTO (CP)—A greater share of personal and corporation income taxes for the provinces, long a demand of premiers from Newfoundland to British Columbia, was recommended by a subcommittee of the Ontario advisory committee on Confederation in the legislature Monday.

In making the recommendation, the subcommittee said it assumed "that for the foreseeable future, the greater pressure for revenues will be on the provinces and municipalities, and that if any surplus tax resources are available, it will at the level of the federal government."

Let All Testify --Shulman

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. Harvey A. Brown, veteran coroner, said Monday that Dr. Morton Shulman, former chief coroner of Metropolitan Toronto, had ordered an inquest even though Dr. Brown had decided one was not needed.

Dr. Brown quoted morgue officials as saying that an executive of the Consumers' Gas Co. had urged Dr. Shulman to hold the inquest into the death of six-year-old Janet Gowland.

The girl died after her dress caught fire in her home Feb. 6. The dress was ignited by an electric stove.

Dr. Brown said in an interview two vice-presidents of Consumers' Gas approached him Monday seeking to testify at the inquest into the relative merits of natural gas and electricity. He refused on the ground that their testimony had no bearing on the death of the girl.

Dr. Shulman Monday night expressed amazement at Dr. Brown's refusal to allow the gas company executives to testify.

"That was the whole point of the inquest," Dr. Shulman said in an interview. Their testimony was relevant because it would have disputed claims about the safety of electrical appliances.

Dr. Shulman said he knew that when the gas company first requested the inquest, he knew they had "an axe to grind." However, he had told Dr. Brown to allow rebuttal of their testimony by a spokesman for hydro authorities.

"Any person should be allowed to testify who has evidence that might prevent deaths."

Premier Constantine Kollias claimed in a broadcast by the army radio Monday night that King Constantine would demonstrate his support of the new regime before the week is over. Officials said the 26-year-old monarch would preside over a meeting of the new cabinet within the next five days.

Hospital Dispute

Fourth Senior Nurse Resigns at Napanee

NAPANEE — The director of nursing at Lennox and Addington County General Hospital here has resigned in the latest move in what appears to have been a dispute between administration and nursing staff members.

The resignation of Miss Violet Gamble, effective July 31, was announced yesterday by hospital authorities, but it is believed rooted in a clash of personalities and the situation has been compounded by time.

The three senior nurses involved are Mrs. Betty Heiman, a nursing supervisor; Mrs. Roy Markman, head of operating-department nurses; and Mrs. John Glenn, chief emergency department nurse.

In February they tendered their resignations to come into effect later.

However, April 2 they were dismissed — with full pay to the effective date of their resignations.

They have since reported their cases to the Registered Nurses Association of Canada.

The situation was believed again discussed by the hospital's board of governors last night, but no statement has yet been issued.

Mr. Hepburn also has refused comment.

"My first thought is for the patients and their care," he said. "No matter what disagreements there have been, patient care has not suffered."

The 78-bed hospital is little more than a year in operation.

It admitted its first patients March 22 last year and — like most other hospitals in Ontario — now has a lengthy waiting list.

Parking Said Too Stringent

City Manager J. R. Reynolds will be asked to bring in a report to council with recommendations regarding parking requirements for owners reconstructing buildings in the downtown area.

Council yesterday heard a request from D. J. Whalen of Whalen Real Estate, on behalf of Michael Guerrera, owners of the former Lattimer property on Front street, asking council to relax stringent parking requirements in order that a new commercial building may be constructed on Front street.

Mr. Whalen in his letter said that Mr. Guerrera through his building contractor had applied for a building permit but the permit had been refused on the grounds that sufficient parking space was not available to comply with city regulations.

City requirements call for 11 parking spaces whereas the owner is in a position only to make four spaces available.

Mr. Whalen said the city requirement was not conducive to encouraging development in the downtown area as there were many instances where it would be impossible to provide even one parking space.

New Blazers, Crests From City Council to Peewee Hockey Team

Belleville city council yesterday recognized the hockey prowess of the locals Fuels Peewee "A" team which recently won the Ontario Minor Hockey Association championship.

Before a crowded council chamber Mayor J. R. Ellis on behalf of Belleville citizens congratulated the team members and told them they would be receiving new blazers with crests.

Also presented to each player was a letter of congratulation signed by hockey star Bobby Hull.

Special commendation from the mayor went to team stick boy Paul Neal, manager Tom Neal coach Tom Hall and sponsor Mac Smith who he said had spent long hours in helping the team to the championship.

Alderman Ken Soden added his congratulations to the boys and also had a word of advice.

He said that while hockey was important school work was more important.

"School work is No. 1, keep it up and you'll be champions for life," he said.

March Births

47 at Trenton

TRENTON — Another 47 centennial babies were brought into the world at Trenton Memorial Hospital last month.

In addition, the hospital staff accommodated 410 admissions, treated 1,857 out patients, and performed 15,520 laboratory tests.

Operating room staff performed 52 major surgeries, and 96 minor operations.

There were an average 122 patients under the hospital care each day during March.

Given Jewel

TRENTON — H. B. Smith, of 17 Francis St. was presented with a 50 - year membership jewel at last week's regular convocation of St. Mark's Chapter No. 127 of the Masonic Lodge.

A presentation of a 25 - year past principal jewel was made to J. A. Pow, of 32 Holland St., Trenton.

Aldermen To Accept Challenge

Members of Belleville city council have picked up the challenge for a softball game with the Belleville Umpires' Association.

The challenge was accepted yesterday by a majority vote of council accompanied by one or two admonitions for the eager beavers to "speak for themselves."

"What's there in it?" asked one alderman.

"Maybe a beart attack," replied Mayor Ellis.

But Alderman Arthur Keegan felt the challenge should be accepted and Alderman Doug Boyle agreed.

Then two or three other aldermen agreed to play "if someone will run for me."

Any proceeds from the game will go to help the crippled children.

Roll Out Your Rubbish!

There is a touch of spring in the air — in more ways than one — around Trenton these days. The town is staging a spruce-up week and the citizenry is being encouraged to unload its spring-cleaning by the carload to public works crews (above.)

Chamber, SA Seek Council Grants

Grant requests from the Belleville Chamber of Commerce and from the local Salvation Army were made to city council yesterday.

The Chamber of Commerce is asking for a grant of $2,000 to assist in operational expenses, while the Salvation Army is looking for a grant of $15,000 to ward the establishment of its new welfare centre at the corner of Leighton Street and Victoria Ave.

Fred J. Deacon, last year's chairman of the Chamber of Commerce said the 1956 membership was the largest on record showing a 34 per cent increase over the year previous.

In asking for the $2,000 grant Mr. Deacon said $4,000 would be used for operational expenses while $1,000 would be used for furtherance of its downtown development plan which would be presented at the end of May.

The immediate objective of the Chamber would be to implement a Norwich Plan and then to interest merchants in a long-term urban renewal scheme.

Another project of the Chamber through its educational committee was a study to determine local industrial labor requirements.

Salvation Army Captain J. Barr outlined the Army's plans for a new citadel and welfare centre on Victoria Ave. to replace the present building on Pinnacle Street.

He said the new building would commemorate the Army's 80th anniversary in Belleville. The estimated cost of the new building was $131,000.

Captain Barr said the Army filled a big need in community service. During the past seven months it had given assistance to 10 teen-aged unwed mothers, and assisted in hygiene of 271 families per month with groceries and other necessities.

The Captain's request was for a $15,000 grant toward the new building and a grant to be used to purchase the present Citadel property at its assessed value of $46,500.

Alderman Jack Deacon noted that the city did not necessarily want the Salvation Army property on Pinnacle Street.

Mayor Ellis agreed that while the city had no special use now for the property, he reminded that at one time there was a request from the city. The city had offered $30,000.

Alderman Boyle wanted to know why the Salvation Army was not a member of the United Appeal.

To this Captain Barr said it was national policy for the Army not to belong to united appeals.

The Army is not opposed to united appeals but for its purpose had found it better to conduct its own appeals, in this way he said the Salvation Army stands or fails on its own efforts.

Also at last night's meeting A. E. Miller, Odd Fellows district deputy, outlined his organization's welfare program the results of which was to "relieve distress where found."

He said his organization frequently assisted with food parcels. It also had wheelchairs, crutches and other equipment available when needed.

Air Cadets From Area In Parade

TRENTON — Air cadets from Trenton, Belleville, Batawa, Kingston and Peterborough will be taking part in Saturday's monster air cadet parade down Yonge Street in Toronto.

On his left will be Toronto's Douglas Whitley, chairman of the Ontario committee of the Air Cadet League of Canada and on his left, AVM Chester Hull, commander of Air Transport Command at Trenton.

—Mr. Whitley is booked to speak on the air cadet movement to Oshawa Rotarians at the Hotel Genosha on May 1.

Will Tour Historic Homes In P.E. County on May 14

PICTON — In the midst of the merry month of May a treat is in store for lovers of antiques and old buildings, and for those interested in Prince Edward County's historic heritage: On Sunday afternoon, May 14, five of the county's most interesting homes and one of its earliest churches will be open to the public, through the generosity of their owners and custodians.

The tour will include the old, Church of St. Mary Magdalene in Picton, begun in 1823 by the Reverend William Macauley. The houses, from Picton to Wellington are representative of various periods and styles of building, from 1790 to 1880.

The houses on the tour are owned by the following:

1. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Davis, High Shore Road. This is the home of Harri pottery and the house was built by the Harts in 1850.

2. Mr. and Mrs. Donald Thompson, Glenora Road. This one hundred year old stone cottage houses a fine collection of early furniture and glass.

3. Mr. and Mrs. John Mallory, Bloomfield Road. The back section of the Mallory house was built in 1810 and has recently been made over into a most attractive family room with huge open fireplace built to fit the original masterpiece.

4. Mrs. H. G. Robinson, Wellington. This charming stone cottage, built about 1790 by Daniel Reynolds, is believed by many to be the oldest existing house in Prince Edward County.

5. Mrs. H. A. Burnett, Wellington. This attractive white clap-board house of modest proportions is typical of many built in the late 19th century. Mrs. Burnett is an antique dealer, specializing in furniture found here in the county.

President of CCA Predicts Slight Construction Growth

"Ontario will have over one-third of the Canadian total construction, this year," Peter D. Dalton, President of the Canadian Construction Association, told the membership of the Quinte Construction Association at a dinner in the Shrine Club on Monday evening.

"The main dollar gains are shown in the forecast for construction work in the Government, institutions and utilities sectors. A sizeable decrease is shown for construction for manufacturers. The dollar total for housing remains the same."

Mr. Dalton stated that the Federal Government is the industry's largest single customer. "Government construction work at all levels accounts for 42 per cent of the total."

He discussed the initiating of new business. "We cannot be content to sit around waiting for someone to call tenders."

"In consequence, your national association devotes a good deal of its efforts to the promotion of desirable legislation that helps to expand the construction market and economic growth of our country."

Mr. Dalton expressed a need for strong organization in the associations, even at the local level. He then continued by listing the "top priority" projects on the Canadian Construction Association National Council agenda.

TOP ASSIGNMENTS

"The top item," he said, "was that of training programs at all levels. The CCA Education and Training committee has a list of eight major assignments this year, of which the development of a training course for superintendents and foremen has been labelled as "urgent".

Mr. Dalton told the association that increased inter - association liaison and the strengthening of construction economy were also on the list.

The third priority objective selected for 1957 for construction associations was the improvement of labor - management relations."

The fourth project was the development and promotion of approved standard tendering and contract procedure." Mr. Dalton outlined the importance of the promotion of the standard tendering by individual members. "Otherwise they are just so many pieces of paper."

Continue Search For Body

TRENTON — Firemen are continuing dragging operations at the mouth of the Trent River today for 20-year-old Toronto man Larry Richard Stevens, who drowned after jumping from the Trent bridge Saturday.

Meanwhile, an unconfirmed report that firemen had passed close to the drowning youth in the initial recovery search was denied by 18-year-old Gary Sullivan, Byron Street.

Sullivan, along with a friend, was an eye-witness to the tragedy.

Sullivan said Stevens went under the fast-flowing water shortly after firemen arrived at the scene.

He estimated the boat was not within 50 yards of the Trent bridge mouth when he went under.

"He started to swim back towards the bridge but the current was too strong and he couldn't make it. Police were there within five minutes after we jumped."

An investigating police constable termed in the alarm to firemen who spent the day with their recently community-purchased rescue boat.

Minister's Lip Cut When Car Hits Tree

A Campbellford minister drove through the valley of death yesterday and came out of it with a cut lip.

Rev. D. M. Smith of St. John's United Church was northbound on Highway 14 several miles west of Foxboro when he fell asleep and hit a tree, he said afterwards.

When he hit the shoulder of the roadway he awoke, but instead of hitting the brake, he accelerated his car.

Mr. Smith said that luckily he was wearing his seatbelt.

The steering wheel shaft was driven backwards about six inches and the steering wheel itself was bent.

Foster Ward Sanitary Sewers To Be Installed 'Soon as Possible'

Already included in the year's capital works budget, city council yesterday called for construction "as soon as possible" for proposed sanitary sewers in Foster Ward.

The estimated cost of the project is $140,000.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell submitted a report and Raising the area which could be serviced for the $140,000 capital expenditure.

He recommended the sewer also run from the water pollution control plant past St. Paul Street to South Front Street, north on Front Street to the CPR tracks, then north and south from St. Paul on South John Street and along South Church Street.

However, Alderman Art Keegan felt the sewer should run south from St. Paul Street along South Front to as far as the sea cadet building. This was agreed but to keep the cost within the estimate, sewers on South John Street will not be installed at this time.

Council voted unanimously to accept the engineer's report and, with the one change in area to be serviced, authorized preparation of detailed plans for the project.

Council still hasn't decided the policy to be used to determine the local improvement charges to be assessed against property owners in the rebuilding of Sidney Street from Dundas Street to Catherine.

Property owners have objected to the local improvement costs claiming that as the street would be used as an arterial roadway, a high percentage of the costs should be borne under the general rate.

Mayor Ellis said council should give close consideration to the matter as the policy decided on would be applicable in all parts of the city.

The original estimate was to rebuild Sidney street from Dundas to Wilson avenue. However it was found the work would cost more than originally estimated and two weeks ago council approved cutting off the reconstruction at Catherine street.

Yesterday it was stated the cost estimate of $280,000 for the shortened reconstruction was much more in line with original estimates.

Council also granted permission for Dr. J. N. Hartt to install a sidewalk on the east side of Farley avenue, extending north from Dundas street to the limit of his property. Dr. Hartt will build the walk at his own expense.

Job Security an Issue

Members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, Local 1023 of Belleville have voted to take strike action if necessary to enforce demands for job security.

Gerald Kastien, president of the Belleville local, said members voted last night to strike if necessary in support of their demand for what they term a "no contracting out" clause in their working agreement.

He said that wages were not involved in the present negotiations. Local union members provide custodial services at the Belleville public schools.

The request of the union is for a clause in their agreement with the school board which would prevent the board from contracting out work which normally would be done by union members.

Since the original request the union has modified its demands asking that if contracting out was allowed no employees would lose their jobs.

Mr. Kastien said the board had refused to accede to the request.

It is expected that a conciliation board will sit on the matter.

One school board official said that contracting out was not actually an issue with the board as it had no immediate intention of doing this.

However, the board feels that agreeing to the clause requested by the union could tie down the present board and also future boards.

Rotary Decision Reviewed

TRENTON — The Trenton Rotary Club's board of directors will reconsider the club's decision to discontinue donating four community concert tickets to members of the senior citizens' club, R. H. Smithin, campaign chairman for the recent membership drive conducted by the concert association, asked for the review.

Mr. Smithim said at the Rotary meeting last night he would be pleased to donate more than five four seniors an evening out, even if the club might accept his request.

President Howard Hallick said the decision to cut down on the number of donations had been a club decision, and that other groups might resent the special attention paid to the seniors.

Mike Andison then offered to go "50-50" on the $24 cost for tickets and Vagn Lange said he would pay the rest.

However, club members voted to have the directors review the matter.

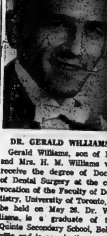
Canadian Guardsman Seriously Injured in Fall From Tower

PICTON — Another guardsman has been seriously injured training here for the Canadian Armed Forces tattoo in a fall from an 80-foot tower — the second such mishap in two weeks.

Corporal Edward Drake, 29, is in the armed forces hospital at Kingston with spinal injuries following the fall during tattoo rehearsals at Camp Picton yesterday.

Recovering from critical injuries in the same hospital is Corporal E. E. Belanger, also of the 1st Battalion Canadian Guards, who fell from the same training device April 11.

The tower is used as part of the big display being prepared to be staged outdoors across Canada. Already two road companies are on tour presenting segments of the show in indoor arenas.



Training meantime continues for the remainder of the 2,000-man cast for the combined outdoor performances.

Drake's mishap today drew angry reaction from his wife who said "the whole thing is stupid."

"At least training should be carried out with a net," she added.

Shaken by news of her husband's injuries, Mrs. Drake said she felt the show is "good enough as it is" without continuing on the tower at the expense of safety.

The Drakes have two children, a two-year-old boy, and a girl aged four.

Adult Fares On City Buses Are Increased

Starting on May 13th adult fares on Belleville buses will be increased to 20 cents cash or six tickets for $1.00.

Kenneth Pinder, chairman of the Belleville Transit Commission told city council yesterday that as a result of salary increases and other costs, the commission deficit this year would be close to $60,000 unless fares was increased.

With the fare increase later approved by council the commission deficit for this year is estimated at just under $50,000.

The proposal is to increase adult fares from the present 15 cents cash or seven tickets for $1, to 20 cents cash or six tickets for $1.00. Students' tickets will be left at the present eight for $1.00 and children's at 10 cents cash or 12 for $1.00.

Svetlana Stalina

How a 'gentle lady' from Russia made an agonizing choice. This heading on a New York Times report on the defection of Svetlana Stalina, daughter of the late Soviet dictator, is eloquent of a situation that virtually everyone faces at some time or another.

Parting of the ways, separation one from another, from family or a friend, is one of the many moments of truth that men and women experience in the course of a lifetime. But no parting is more poignant, no emotion so starkly real as that felt by a mother when her children leave home or there is an enforced separation.

Some hide their agony behind a recognition of the awesome quality of events outside human control, in a matter-of-factness that somehow triumphs over death itself. Like the woman in Belvedere, Illinois, found rummaging through the wreckage of a school bus looking for her son, hours after a tornado had struck last week.

She said simply: "I haven't found my son yet. All I've found is his cornet case."

For the daughter of Josef Stalin the decision to seek refuge first in India, then in Switzerland, and now in the United States, meant leaving her two children in Moscow. She said she had struggled against the break . . . "but all was in vain — I felt it was impossible to go back."

Possibly the most significant thing of all in this latter-day parable is the reminder that despite better relations between the Soviet Union and the west — the Soviet world is still essentially a closed society from which the Christian belief in a divinity is largely excluded.

"I found it was impossible to exist without God in one's heart," the widowed Miss Stalina said on arrival in New York. "I came to that conclusion myself, without anybody's help or preaching."

In this situation the United States has been careful not to use Miss Stalina as an instrument of propaganda. Her presence in the U.S. is really outside the realm of politics. She is a mother of children, a woman of our time in search of herself, in search of the truth, in search of something that transcends national boundaries.

Industry's Opportunity

Industry's responsibility in furthering the needs of education in Canada is a subject one does not hear discussed too often.

True, industry is interested in the young people coming out of school and many concerns contribute toward students' education by means of bursaries and scholarships. But more undoubtedly could be done to further their education. This was the theme of an address in Toronto last week by George Hees, Conservative member for Northumberland.

The former trade minister said Canadian industries should follow the U.S. pattern and look on the price of maintaining the educational system as one of their costs of production.

"If these costs are not met, industry will not have the research facilities and the scientists which are needed to keep us abreast of our competitors in other countries and we will simply fade out of the picture as an industrial nation."

Mr. Hees predicted that by 1980 Britain, the United States and Canada — to keep pace with Communist countries — would have to spend on education double the proportion of national income spent today.

Education lies at the very core of progress in any country. We are experiencing an "educational explosion," just as population is increasing apace. There is an explosion of ideas and concepts, and the means to promote them and give them practical application must be provided.

Industry, which needs its share of the young people leaving school, can do much to encourage them.

Ontario to Benefit

Centennial year activities will bring 4,000,000 extra tourists into Ontario this year, boosting the number of visitors to a record total of 20,000,000, an official of the Ontario Centennial Planning branch said in Belleville last week.

This is good news for the tourist industry. However, to make a good impression on the visitors it is important that everyone, from tourist operators and restaurant owners to service stations and general public, put their best foot forward.

One worrying aspect of this huge influx of people — equivalent to the entire population of Canada — is the traffic problems which will be created, not to mention the possibility of a sharp increase in auto accidents and deaths.

Visitors must be made to feel welcome. At the same time everyone will have to display more courtesy and exercise greater care when using the highway.

'Bilingualism' New Status Symbol for Aspiring Swingers

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Bilingualism and biculturalism just a $12,000,000 drag . . .

With the "B and B Boys," that Royal Commission which is hurled into the two Nations - in - One" political bit, busy spending $8,000,000 on what it says, confusingly, is a bilateral rescue-effort-in-research to hide out a floundering Confederation?

And will $4,000,000 going to the Bilingual Division of the Federal Public Service, $1,000,000 of it for bonuses in Quebec City for those English-speaking Civil Service brass hats and their faceless hiding that year-long "total immersion" French course?

Is that all, then, that is involved in "B 'n B?"

Well, to hear a great many people — including scores of those in the seats of Federal power here — the answer is yes, could be.

And one of the reasons is that the way this bit of bicultural goods has been sold, or perhaps more accurately, not been sold, "politically" is packaged as something of a great big pain in the English-speaking neck.

Even that old university lecturer, Prime Minister Pearson, professorially, has made it sound at times suspiciously like a dose of cultural and linguistic medicine that all good and right-thinking Canadians, English and French, must swallow for their own good.

This idea of it being some sort of national "must," a kind of command from an All-Ottawa-High, almost automatically makes it something to be resisted, even resented.

It begins to turn out that the national benefits of this often repulsively - wrapped bilingual products has been all wrong.

For now along comes Energy Minister Jean-Luc Pepin, one of the more attractive members of the Federal Cabinet, English or French, with a fresh and appealingly casual - looking approach to bilingualism.

It beats me, he says, how anybody, but especially a man living the learning of a second language a drag.

And he doesn't care whether the second language is French or English, because the way he says it shapes up over most of the Western World, the bilingual, the trilingual or better still, the multilingual man is the man most "with it" in this fast-changing, international cosmopolitan global community of yours.

A practitioner of what the younger generation of Federal men like to call the "new politics," Jean - Luc Pepin, a personality of compelling charm and infinite courtesy, tried his theory out for size the other evening on the most confusingly English speaking Association of Real Estate Boards.

He told these realtors from all across the country that bilingualism was for swingers, for "those who think young."

And he rather rocked them a little with that.

You could see them reeling back at the impact, looking with the punch, and then coming on strong with an understanding air, all in their eyes which unmistakably signalled — "How fabulous, man!"

"Save as death and taxes," he purred, in the years ahead they were going to discover that Bilingualism is turning out to be a "status symbol."

With, and get this — "cool sex appeal."

They dug him. You could see those heads nodding silently saying, "You know, the guy just might have something there."

What he had was their attention, and he didn't let go.

Tomorrow's "Man of Distinction" won't necessarily wear a pink polka dot tie, he grew, he tipped them, "but he'll be speaking two languages, English and French, and if he can handle German, Italian, Japanese or any other of the tongues of the new World's business, industrial and investment community so much the better, especially especially for him and his firm or government.

The question they'll be asking of the "Women of Accomplishment" in the years ahead, he let it be whether she does or does not," won't be in relation to her use of hair thin, but her use of two, three, or preferably more languages.

At least 40 sections of the commercial world, went on Jean-Luc Pepin, are bilingual, some even multilingual.

So he wondered what all the hackering was about in Canada over bilingualism — when in the reality of doing business in a multilingual world, bilingualism was nothing more than a challenge to "get with it" in the global communications of trade, transport, travel and communication.

"We can't be going to refuse the challenge," he suggested, and you could just see some of those heads shaking their goods when they got home to dig out those French, German, and yes, even Russian text books their high school sons and daughters tote in for homework, and take at least a preliminary exploratory peek.

Quite a salesman, this Jean-Luc Pepin.

And doing some rather brisk bilingual business, too.

In Tweed Praise for Councillors

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I have read your article about the Tweed council. I have lived in Tweed for a number of years and now live nearby. I know all of the council men (more or less well). As far as I can judge, each of them has the necessary qualities for a good town - councillor.

A number of capable women, who live in Tweed because their husbands work here, and who probably would be employed in business or as professionals, seem to have run for town council and I think that Tweed is lucky to have them as councillors.

Mrs. Sinclair, for example, who joined the council recently, is a person who has principles, a good head for figures, the ability to complete a task, an interest in Tweed, a high civic responsibility.

Mrs. Thompson, in my opinion, has scope and imagination (not that the others lack these qualities), while the women probably apply the principles of good housekeeping.

Personally I think that the Tweed Council, as it is now, ought to be able to do an excellent job. I only hope they will once their present squabbles have been ironed out.

Arts Festival Impressions

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Having recently seen Audrey Davies speaking on behalf of Arts Festival '67 on the program "It's Debatable" and thinking how well she handled Mayor Phelps' amide remark, "Just because you think the Arts Festival is a good thing, does that mean everyone does?" (Which might have any humble person), I was delighted to see that she brought out Audrey Davies in her fire.

Mrs. Davies spoke well, aided by Marian Wilson and Gordon Collins. All apologies to Arthur Phelps, as I watch him quite often, and with this method of interviewing he does manage to make a lively show.

The program over I set down to read the local paper. I recognized a badly taken photo of the ceramic display at the Arts Festival and then was shocked to read "Everything But The Kitchen Sink" In this the best that the newspaper can say about a display of fine photography, some very professional pieces of ceramics, and about a group of painters Canadians '67, who have been painting historical sites and objects for three years, to say nothing of Ronald Vanderveide who designed and constructed the display background.

The question under the Arts Festival picture could have read — "Everything—!" and let the reader finish up his own thinking.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

Watertown Daily Times

Back in the "old days" (1900-1930 A.D.) boys (and some girls too) smoked corn silk, pine needles, rolled - up newspaper and the seeds from a wild plant which the generations of those days called "Indian coffee." These "smokes" were in lieu of regular tobacco in the form of cigarettes or pipe tobacco. But actually, they didn't get the "kicks," feel "high," or "wibble". They were born too soon.

Today years have brought marijuana, LSD and the sniffing of airplane glue. This week comes reports of another vice which is supposed to provide exhilarating effects like the current-day hippies. They're smoking banana peels.

Maybe United Fruit Co. business will soar, but with 1966 sales of $440,000,000, do they need it? And some colorful precedents who have smoked baked banana peels claim any "feeling" is more psychological than anything else.

Purity Is The Goal

Vancouver Province

It should be understood that pollution will always be a relative term. Perfectly pure water is possible only in a sterilized test tube. What most people consider pure lake water abounds in harmless bacteria. Clear sea water contains rotting vegetation, dead fishes, decomposed birds and fish and so on. Completely uncontaminated air is more a theoretical term than a possibility.

But maximum purity compatible with the practical considerations of human existence which today's civilized communities should be the goal of sewage - pollution laws.

Voting Qualifications

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Many people have suggested lowering the voting age. Generally they were young people trying to placate them. The teen-agers didn't have the vote to make the change and the others knew they would be protected by these fellow voters. But when a man with the training and following of Syl Apps says it we are advised to make a closer study.

Having looked deeply we find that we are still in disagreement with Mr. Apps and the others. We will paraphrase the cry of every teenage proponent: "If we're young enough to fight, we are still too young to vote."

What is really needed is a fresh approach to the selection of voters. Surely 21 years and ability to make an "X" outside a pencil factory are not the last of qualifications!

We visualize: some type of educational qualification; a minimum age of 26 or 28, and a maximum age by-passed by a senility test. We feel that a qualified person should be fined heavily for not voting although we would have the right to buy an exemption for a nominal fee as a means of protest. Sufficient of such "protest votes" might well force a new election with a change of candidates.

The injustices of the electoral system are obvious, and playing politics with the vote merely puts emphasis on the fact. We suggest a study on the subject now. It could be made by people without political ties. Rather they should have open minds and imagination.

Clergy Have Their Doubts

London Free Press

"The proposed marriage of the Anglican and United churches, a hopeful ecumenical goal, is unacceptable to some clergy who continue to place tradition ahead of logic. The formation of a five-man council to oppose the union is an example . . . of how five (Anglican) churchmen obviously don't like some of the United Church theology that may be advanced by such a union.

"This is the father of all religions — is understanding and trusting, but he must be shaken in his head in continuing exasperation."

Policy of Strength

Adenauer Ranked One of the Great Men of His Day

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

* * *

With the possible exception of the Volkswagen, Konrad Adenauer was the best-known German product to appear on the world scene since the Second World War.

Indeed, foreign commentators are according the former West German chancellor, who died last week, a place in history alongside Martin Luther, Frederick the Great and Otto von Bismarck.

Inside the federal republic, an opinion poll taken shortly before his death indicated Adenauer had replaced Bismarck in the minds of his countrymen as the greatest German of all time.

So far as is known, Adenauer himself never claimed to rank with those famed nation-builders. Frederick and Bismarck.

But Adenauer, a Roman Catholic in a puritan mood once placed himself in juxtaposition with Luther, the great Reformation leader.

"Luther was a good man," said Adenauer. "If I'd been Pope, I'd have sent for him, and none of it would have happened."

It is curious how Adenauer enjoyed until the last the image of durability, even after his reunification policies had blown away on newly-warm Washington-Moscow breezes.

Thinking seems to have changed inside and outside Germany. Adenauer held that German reunification would come only through a "policy of strength." A powerful West Germany, backed by powerful allies, would make the Soviet Union realize its mistake.

What happened, of course, was that the Berlin wall was built, the U.S.S.R. blasted reunification hopes, Adenauer, in effect, had sacrificed his hope of unity for both. As long as those two countries wast two Germanys, there was no reunification. Nor is there what is done in Bonn.

Yet, perhaps most students of Germany feel that Adenauer's policy was realistic for his time, although he was slow to modify it for new conditions.

As Britain's left - wing New Statesman magazine says:

"It is not easy, these days, to make sure that your political work will outlast you — even if you put off building until you are already three score and ten."

Alternative Needed

Five Years Too Long to Wait for Tax Reform Says Expert

TORONTO (CP)—The federal government had better have an alternative program of tax reform standing by, just in case the $3,000, 616-page Carter royal commission on taxation gets sidetracked.

That is the suggestion of two experts who addressed 1,700 other authorities at the annual conference of the Canadian Tax Foundation, which opened the first detailed public study of the Carter commission's report Monday.

The three-day session moves today into detailed and technical study of specific recommendations contained in the commission's 2,800-page report, made public Feb. 24.

Toronto lawyer Stuart Thom said Ontarians have been waiting a long time for advice and guidance on tax reform, and during that period successive governments and the tax administration generally "have made no real effort to grapple with the ever - increasing problems and complexity of a tax structure which was essentially of their own devising."

With a massive new blueprint offered by the recommendations of the Carter report, it would be deplorable "if action is unduly deferred on many things that should and could have been done in the tax field."

Toronto accountant A. J. Little told delegates that time is one of the most important aspects in considering the report.

"If the federal government concluded that it would take say five years to work out an agreed, program of co-operation and integration with the provinces, then it should seriously consider some alternative approach.

"It would be unthinkable to expect Canadian business to endure another five years of uncertainty.

"If the federal government can conclude that it likes the package, surely its first and most important job is to assess as quickly as possible the likelihood of selling it to all provinces."

Speakers at the foundation's opening session greeted the commission's efforts with kind words, although most offered reservations about some details of its programs.

The foundation is a non-profit organization supported by the Canadian Bar Association and the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants.

In essence, the Carter commission calls for a new tax system to be set up in Canada, including a much wider tax base, generally lower tax rates, integration of personal and corporation taxes, introducing a capital gains tax for the first time in Canada and making the family instead of the individual the centre of tax computations.

The report is most frequently raised was what effect the commission's recommendations would have on the over-all economy if they were implemented.

An answer provided by Montreal economist Howard I. Ross, also chancellor of McGill University:

"In my view, our economy is too delegated, too complicated too unpredictably an organism to justify us in introducing virulent and radical changes—however well researched in advance or however confidently supported by a prior consensus."

Deduction Privileges Extended

Charles Rollins, M.P.P. for Hastings East, announced today that payroll deduction privileges for Ontario Government employees in Belleville and district have been extended in respect of the United Community Fund of Belleville and district, effective next September.

Until recently, Provincial employees wishing to contribute to the Fund had to do so by a lump sum payment. The new privilege is designed to permit them to spread their contributions over a twelve - month period.

Inspector Ralph Blatchford, head of the Public Services Division of United Services Campaign Cabinet indicated that payroll deduction privileges were already available to municipal and federal employees.

"This extension to Provincial employees means that they will now be on the same basis as other government employees."

"I wouldn't be surprised," Insp. Blatchford added, "to see the Provincial employees challenge the municipal employees this fall."

Safety Is the Aim

Although the crosswalk signs differ in Canadian cities the aim is the same . . . to get pedestrians safely across a busy street. At top is a crosswalk sign used in Metropolitan Toronto. It's hung above the crosswalk and lights up. At left are lighted stop and go symbols operating in conjunction with traffic lights in Montreal. School children in Saint John, N.B., use a painted walkway at centre, and at right is the type of sign used in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

Boyd Upper Charges Hospitals Extravagant

TORONTO (CP) — Boyd Upper, chairman of the Liberal party's constitutional committee in Ontario, says money saved from the operation of the Ontario Hospital Services Commission should be diverted into financing education costs.

He told a Toronto and District Liberal Association policy meeting Saturday that within eight years $130,000,000 could be saved annually on the operation of the OHSC.

The OHSC budget this year is expected to reach $447,800,000, he said. One of the reasons for increasing costs "is the provision of what amounts to hotel accommodation for some patients at a cost of $36 a day."

Dr. Upper said a 30,000-member South Simcoe Medical group saved $720,000 on hospital costs because it was integrated with its own doctors and facilities.

"We could save 25 per cent of our hospital costs by doing this, but a lot of people don't want it to work and the government is not interested in trying to make it work."

(Dr. Upper is a former Belleville resident, and member of The Intelligencer news staff.)

Flower Seeds Being Used to Raise Money

TORONTO (CP) — For the sixth year the Canadian Association for Retarded Children will distribute flower seeds to publicize and raise money for its work.

Between 700 and 1,000 pounds of cosmos seeds will be distributed by branches of the association around Mother's Day May 14.

In most cases the branches ask a gift of money in return for the gift of seeds. In some like Flowers of Hope seeds are given away as part of a continuing public education program.

By coincidence the cosmos is also the centennial flower and it happens that because of poor weather the association has about the only available large supply of seeds. The flower is an annual that will grow to one to six feet in height.

Money raised by the association's branches is used for local projects, often for schools, sheltered workshops, community residences and job placement efforts for the retarded. There are 300 local associations in the 10 provinces, Northwest Territories and Bermuda.

Bridge Street AOTS Club Entertains Sons

It was a father and son meeting last Wednesday night at Bridge St. United Church, an annual event with special appeal to both ages groups. For various reasons some fathers "had to borrow sons" for the occasion, which lent added interest to all involved.

President Rob Cruickshank conducted the meeting and when all was ready, called on Rev. Harry Davis to ask the blessing. Bob McKnight was appointed sgt.-at-arms for the evening and collected fines whenever an adult left himself open to disciplinary action.

A beautiful pot-luck supper was enjoyed by all.

At the conclusion of the meal, Gerry Granrick expressed the appreciation of both boys and adults to the UCW who had served the supper.

A trumpet and piano duet was enthusiastically applauded, as was the encore rendered by Gary Chaplin and Ron Robertson.

The devotional period was conducted by David McLintock, based on Paul's epistle to the Ephesians. This text was particularly appropriate as the first portion of the chapter cites the familiar appeal that young people should obey and honor their parents; also that fathers were not to provoke their children to wrath.

Another pleasant item on the evening's program was the induction of Arthur Jones into the membership of the club, the ceremony was conducted by Taylor Franklin, assisted by the president and the pastor.

The entertainment feature of the evening was a Walt Disney film, "Beaver Valley," with music and sound effects shown by Mr. William Bittle of the Dept. of Lands and Forests, Tweed. In this film the beaver played the leading role, and most interestingly outwitted his old enemy, the cunning grey coyote. The photography throughout was amazingly skilful and ingenious. The "close-ups" of animals and birds appeared as if they had been "posed" just a few feet from the camera.

Other animals, birds and fish, of Beaver Valley were photographed in their natural habitats and thanks to expert telescopic camera operation, were most fascinating. The lynx was shown "skiing" down a snowy slope, a dozen or more in some shots. Salmon were shown as they made their way back from the ocean, jumping up mountain streams to reach the pools of their hatching.

At the conclusion of the film Mr. Bittle displayed a sack of fur pelts taken in the north country, ranging in size from a timber wolf down to a weasel. His account of tracking wild animals through our northern woods, summer and winter, but particularly under strenuous mid-winter conditions of deep snow and below-zero temperatures was listened to with intense interest.

Mr. Bittle was introduced by Rex Chaplin and club appreciation was extended by Peter Randle, who also expressed the thanks of all "sons" present to the club officers, and the "fathers" who had brought them.

The meeting was dismissed by the honorary president, Rev. Harry Davis.

Quick-bread for Easy Serving

By MARY MOORE

Those loaves were made to be part of the refreshments after the induction of Shirley's new minister.

Instructions by members of the refreshment committee were to bring all items sliced on plates, covered with saran, and ready to pass.

Shirley naturally had to do something different so she sliced her loaves thinly and spread them with a pineapple cream cheese (see below) covered them with saran and stored them in the refrigerator until they left, dressed in their Sunday best, for the induction.

Ann Landers

Dairy Farmer Wants Advice From Ann

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Everybody cries on your shoulder and I want my turn. I honestly don't know what you can do to help me but just letting off steam is worth something.

I'm a dairy worker who wants to stay on the farm but I don't see how I can. Most dairy farmers work almost 16 hours a day and don't even make enough money to support their families. We have to keep up a good front for the cows because if they catch us looking sad they get depressed and you know Old Bossy's output depends on how happy she is.

ANN LANDERS

I know I could make more money and work shorter hours if I went into another line of work but I like dairy farming and I think I am needed. I don't want to quit. Please give me some advice, Ann Landers, and some hope, if you can. — C.P., RUDYARD, MICH.

* * *

DEAR C.P.: I don't know much about dairy farming, but I have a good friend who does. I have asked Sec. of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman to respond to your letter. Here is his answer.

DEAR C.P.: Please don't quit. We need you.

Every word of your letter is true. Dairy farmers are overworked and underpaid. Most dairy farmers get up at 4 o'clock in the morning seven days a week, and their average pay runs approximately 60c an hour.

When dairy farmers began to leave the farms in droves last year to take jobs offering better pay and shorter hours, the Department of Agriculture gave milk supports a healthy boost. This kept some of the dairy farmers on the job. You were one who stayed, and we are grateful.

Please don't give up. We are keeping an eye on you fellows. Tell this to your cows, too. We want them to be happy so they will give more milk and your income will go up. You deserve it. — ORVILLE L. FREEMAN, Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, D.C.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: It is exactly one year ago today that he left me. I was 30. He was 32. We had a beautiful home and three handsome sons who look very much like their father. I remember now the times he asked me to invite his mother to dinner. I said, "I refuse to put myself through the agony. I can't stand her." And then there were times he asked me to invite his business associates for cocktails. I told him to keep his business friends out of our home because they were not our social equals and I wouldn't do to mix the two.

One morning he left for work as usual. He telephoned from his office to say he was coming back at 3:00 p.m. — to pack his bags. I asked him where he was going. He answered: "I am leaving you."

I replied, "You can't go. I love you." He said, "That's the first time you have uttered those words in three years. I've waited a long time to hear them. It's too late now, baby."

Ask the women in your reading audience when was the last time they said "I love you" to a hard-working husband. I have said those words many times lately, but my husband has not been around to hear me. — STILL HURTING.

DEAR HURTING: Some people are smart enough to learn from the mistakes of others. Here's your letter for those fevered few. Thanks for writing.

DORIS CLARK

Even Though Engaged, Girl Gets Panicky Over the Thought of Marriage

Dear Doris: I am 23. Right now my worry is am I ready to live with the man I am engaged to? I worry about what if I get married and don't like it?

I get along good with him. We laugh and have a good time. But the minute I stop and think about getting married I get upset and either get snappy and disagreeable or I cry over the least thing.

Now, I don't know if I would be like this with anybody that asked me to marry them or is it I don't love him enough? I know I think more of him than a lot of girls that got married think of their boy friends. I would do anything for him. I love to see him come and hate to see him go, but I'm terrified to death when I think about marriage, and that shouldn't be. I certainly am old enough.
— Upset Over Marrying.

Dear Upset: Marriage is so final, isn't it? And unless you have had practice in making decisions, large and small over the years, it may well make you panicky to commit yourself.

Learn more about it. Learn that love is not so much a matter of being struck by lightning as becoming more and more fond of someone you are friendly with. The Real Thing keeps right on improving. Study the physical side; and learn that this, too, is something which improves as you commit yourself more fully to your beloved.

Then learn about yourself. Recognize your lack of decision-making practice and see what you can do about standing on your own two feet in less world - shaking matters.

Finally, take a good look at your boy friend for characteristics and interests which blend with yours. Love means going 100 percent of the way to make life enjoyable for one's partner. My tan - coat leaflet, What Is Love? is on its way, for what help it can be.

Dear Doris: About that diagnosed psychopath: there's one ray of hope for such mentally ill people. It seems to be the case that around the age of 40 to 50 much of the irresponsible behavior burns out.

The flagrant absence of conscience, the compulsive satisfaction of the moment's whim, seem to decrease. Often in their 50's they become relatively dependable creatures—if somewhat chatlow. — P.M., Psychiatrist.

Dear P.M.: Good news!

To Would-Be Writer: There is plenty of drama in that up and childhood of yours. But could you write it? What you have given me is a fast-moving summary. A story would have to include conversation, incidents, some description of scenery. Some authors would think there was enough here for a book. Bandied property.

Try writing one simple incident out in full, and submit the sample with your summary, to a prospective publisher. The Canadian Market List for Writers lists several possible outs. The list is available through the Canadian Authors Association, 1339 Bathurst St., Toronto 4, Canada. Costs $1.

Doris can help you with that puzzling decision. Write to her, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Daughter: 'I'll never believe any boy again. My heart is broken. I'll never fall in love again.

Mother: (laughing) "Darling, you're too young to have a broken heart. It was just puppy love. You'll feel better tomorrow."

Hearts can feel as if they're breaking at 16 as well as at 26. A little silent compassion is the best medicine a mother can offer.

You know your teen-age daughter will love again and laugh again — but this is not the time to say so. Listen sympathetically and lend a shoulder to weep on, but keep your wisdom to yourself. You really don't have to say anything.

Hearts can feel as if they're breaking at 16 as well as at 26. A little silent compassion is the best medicine a mother can offer.

Forces Unification Study Quickly Completed

OTTAWA (CP) — The 27th Parliament today ties the record for its longest ever session and, despite the scheduled window of the long unification debate, still has plenty of business ahead.

Today is the 243th day of sitting, matching the record set in 1964-65 session that included the flag debate.

MPs suddenly shot into high gear Monday and completed clause-by-clause study of the bill taking the army, navy and air force.

Under a special time - allotment schedule approved last week, the Commons must vote today on third reading of the defence bill.

With closure - by - clause study completed early Monday evening, the House moved on to a bill providing federal funds for occupational training of adults.

Completion of clause-by-clause study of the unification bill came three hours before the deadline set under the previously adopted closure rule.

The key clause creating a single service carried on a 58-to-32 vote, with H. W. Herridge (NDP—Kootenay West) and 21 Conservatives opposed.

A government - sponsored amendment to allow servicemen to apply for release within two months after unification is proclaimed law was approved 66 to 38.

Release would be granted within six months of application but would not apply during an emergency or to servicemen who have received special training at public expense.

A Conservative amendment to ensure that no servicemen would be transferred to the militia, force without his consent was defeated 74 to 25.

Gordon Churchill, former Conservative defence minister who led Commons opposition in the bill, said Defence Minister Hellyer did not have the courage of his convictions.

"I regret that the minister has not sufficient confidence in our armed forces personnel to permit them to re-attest.

"For some time now he has been telling us that everybody in the services wants to go along with his plan; yet he will not risk his ideas by putting up attestation paper in front of armed forces personnel to prove his point."

The clause abolishing the army, navy and air force carried 77 to 43. Two NDP members, Mr. Herridge and Harold Winch (Vancouver East) voted with the Conservatives.

After third reading today, the bill goes to the Senate. But after approval there and royal assent, it will not be proclaimed until fall at the earliest.

Bemersyde Chapter IODE Hears Report of Prov. Annual

CAMPBELLFORD — Bemersyde Chapter IODE held their regular meeting in the Parish Hall, with Vice Regent Mrs. F. M. Rutherford presiding.

Two new members were received into the Chapter with one vacancy remaining.

Reports were received concerning the tea to be held at the home of Mrs. D. Bennett on April 29th. Invitations had been sent to neighboring chapters- Mrs. William Murray reported for the visitors having called at the nursing home and on ill members.

A paper on Commonwealth relations was read by Mrs. Donald Grant outlining the position of the Queen in relation to Commonwealth and Government procedure and duties of the recently elected Queen's representative in Canada, his Excellency the Governor General, Hon. Roland Michener.

A report of the Provincial annual meeting held recently in Hamilton was given by Mrs. F. M. Rutherford. This report contained a synopsized review of various departments of IODE work for the past year, services at home and abroad, education, world affairs and Commonwealth relations.

The short story competition award of $700 will won in the immediate area by Mrs. Carlgata of Norwood. Permission was granted to reproduce the badge of the Order on a memorable plaque for a member of the Order. The National Executive advised that a 50 year pin was made available in 1966 for all who have been members for 50 years or more.

Three IODE scholarship pupils contributed to the program at the Regents' dinner, one in ballet, one in piano and one vocal.

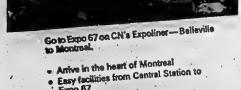
The Provincial Chapter Centennial project is called Centennial Youth Train. Twenty five teen-aged boys, all Grade 11, chosen from Ontario District High Schools will visit parts of Ontario not normally seen by tourists. Chosen by high school principals, the tour will begin July 1st and continue for 3 weeks, from Toronto where they will be addressed by Minister of Mines and Tourism, thence to Sudbury, across Lake Superior by freighter, to North Bay. They will visit elevators, mines, the security area ground environment at Moosonee, the Aluminic Power Plant at Chalk River and end the tour at Ottawa Parliament buildings, back to Toronto by bus and on the way see Upper Canada Village and St. Lawrence Seaway.

Mrs. D. McBride of Peterborough, and Miss Rose Spry of Stirling were elected Provincial Councillors for District 6.

Speaker at the general dinner was Controller Ann Cone of Hamilton. Mrs. Jones outlined the change in the legal status of women. She said in opening, "Only a few decades ago Canadian women, along with children and retarded people were not legally persons."

In outlining some of the events in women's fight for equal status and vote she told the story of Emily Murphy who became the first magistrate in a Canadian Women's Court.

She urged women's groups to encourage women's representation in order to have more say in the policy making decisions of the country.



This could apply from representation in local affairs to Parliamentary status.

Yukon Flight Deck Bounces 'Left Seat' Pilots Through Paces

TRENTON — Thousands of hours of flight time are logged each year by CFB Trenton's Operational Flight Trainer Section, but the section's "aircraft" never gets off the ground!

Dozens of pilots vying for their "left-seat," or captain's status on Yukon aircraft must put in a stint of intensive training in the OFT million-dollar flight simulator — a "dummy" of a complex nature.

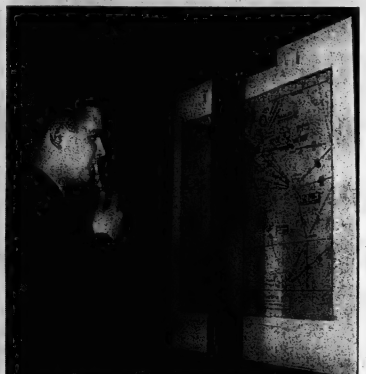
An exact replica of a Yukon cockpit, the simulator gives its passengers an authentic sensation of flight, complete with sound effects, weather turbulence, and the feel of landing gear touching down on tarmac.

The simulator is basically a Yukon forward flight deck enclosed in a metal container, and resting atop a sophisticated hydraulic motion system.

But behind the scenes are a maize of wires, tubes, and dials needed to reproduce normal and emergency aircraft conditions. The incredible array of electronic systems includes 6,000 tubes, 3,200 relays, and seven analogue computers.

Instructors and a radio operator in a nearby consol area trace and sometimes affect the simulator's "progress" on its hypothetical flights to all parts of the globe.

The unit has a total operating cost of $135 an hour, as compared with the $500 hourly involved in using actual aircraft in training procedures. On this basis, it has been estimated the simulator has returned its original investment of $1,100,000 paid out five years ago at its introduction at Trenton.



Of course there can never be a substitute for the actual thing — a genuine flight. But the simulator's value as a confidence builder, its ready availability to trainees, and its authenticity have been self-proven to the satisfaction of the RCAF.

CFB Trenton's simulator is unusual in another respect — the English-built unit is the only one of its kind in existence, since the RCAF is the only military body in the world making use of the Yukon's versatile cargo-passenger capabilities.

One of the Biggest Brains in the Business!

The control console for Yukon flight simulator — training and navigation aid installation at Canadian Forces Base Trenton — is this sophisticated electronic assembly. Man in the middle of the big brain is Flight Lieutenant Ray Manthorpe.

On the Track

When trainees are at the helm, electronic responses from simulator controls are tracked on this chart, here under observation by Flying Officer Ted King.

All Aboard--for Nowhere!

Not exactly a cabin in the sky but pretty close. Flight simulator is housed in this cockpit at Trenton base, being inspected by Flight Lieutenant Ray Manthorpe.

Emergencies Standard Fare

Who would purposely set fires on a Yukon aircraft in flight? Flight simulator instructors are up to this and other necessary pranks at all times, in their efforts to inject theoretical aircraft malfunctions into their training procedure.

"This is one of the prime benefits of our program," notes Flight Lieutenant Ray Manthorpe, chief instructor of the simulator section of CFB Trenton's Operational Training Unit.

"About three-quarters of the training time for pilots in our section is taken in learning how to deal with potential faults in the aircraft systems."

And there are plenty of things in a Yukon's "plumbing" that can go amiss. With 200 miles of wiring, and employing enough power to service a town of 3,000, the also-able aircraft takes a lot of looking after.

As far as emergencies are concerned, the consol instructors are only too glad to oblige. They can provide trainees with hypothetical prop malfunctions, fire alarms, and bumpy rides in turbulent weather, all of which are to be corrected by those in the cockpit.

As F-L Manthorpe points out: "Prospective air captains must develop the sense of responsibility to make all sorts of decisions in the air. Sessions in the simulator are so realistic, and trainees can become so involved, they sometimes come out shaking.

"We are involved in what might be called training for a state of mind, so that Yukon crews can react to situations almost automatically."

Pilots Log 80 Hours Before Leaving Ground

CFB Trenton's flight simulator is only one step, if a major one, in adapting an air crew's skills to the Yukon.

Pilots and flight engineers making their debut in Yukon cockpits put in three weeks' intensive study at the Operational training unit's field technical training section where they learn the construction of the aircraft, and from there learn flight planning and navigation techniques at the OTU proper.

(Before even enrolling for the OTU Yukon course, pilots must have logged at least 2,000 hours in the air.)

Application of the technical flight knowledge then comes in the flight simulator, which has its own briefing room, just like that where crews find appropriate data and booklets prior to actual flights.

After 80 hours all in simulator training, pilots and engineers head for the tarmac, for their first actual encounter with the aircraft they have been learning to fly. A dozen hours of "touch - and - go's" (take-off and landing practice runs) later, the trainees are prepared for cross-Canada jaunts, then southward to land at Buiser US airfield.

Next, a maiden transatlantic flight, and upon return, a general handling test must be passed with high proficiency.

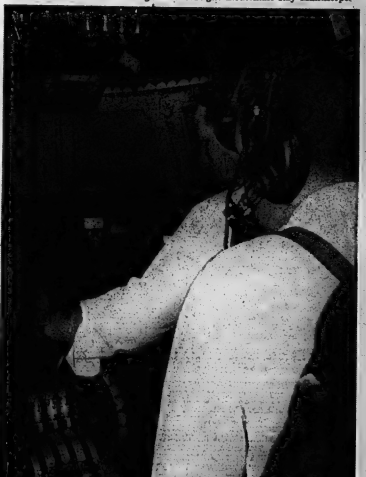
All this, and a pilot is still required to log another one to two thousand flight hours before qualifying as captain a Yukon.

The flight engineers, being the number one technical man aboard the aircraft, go through identical training procedures, and even flight attendants (equivalent to civilian airline hostesses) take similar instruction.

And it's not uncommon for flight attendants, navigators, and other air crew to "sit in" on simulator sessions, even though not compulsory, to gain some valuable insight into emergency procedures.

No matter how thorough, a pilot's training is never complete. Even the most adept Yukon captains are required to return to OTU periodically and take their shift in "refresher" dummy flights.

Go and Have a Beer College Master Tells Prince



CAMBRIDGE, England (Reuters) — Prince Charles was advised today to go out and have a few beers, rather than sit around in his rooms doing nothing, when he goes to Cambridge University this fall.

But authorities at 400-year-old Trinity College here have no plans to organize his life for him, the master of the college, former deputy prime minister Lord Butler, told reporters today.

Lord Butler—better known as Rab in his political heyday as plain R. A. Butler—said:

"We want Prince Charles to mix with other young people and take part in college activities and sports.

"The danger is having undergraduates arriving here and sitting in their own rooms doing nothing. It will be better for him to go out to a pub and have a drink."

This Flight No Fake

Although it never leaves the ground, simulator plays crucial part in preparing pilots for big Yukon transports. Air Commodore Howard Morrison tests controls, watched by a flight engineer.

Young Liberals Assail Rugged Individualism

OTTAWA (CP) — Young Liberals asked their party elders today for a greatly increased government role to heal Canada's social, political and economic ills. The accent was on high-minded planning.

A brief to the cabinet by the 35,000-member youth wing said rugged individualism died in the depression of the 30s and the Second World War.

"Today's youth has grown up into a socially-organized interdependent world," it said. "They expect government initiative in pursuit of national goals in the social, economic and cultural worlds."

The brief, frequently accusing and indignant in tone, was the work of the Young Liberal Federation and the University Liberal Federation. It is the first of a series of youth wing policy briefs to the cabinet.

It called for national policies to allow for full development of individual potential.

There must be a guaranteed minimum income for the aged and those otherwise handicapped, it said.

"Too long have we allowed the ruthlessness of the North American Protestant ethic to dictate second - class living to those who, for reasons beyond their control, are unable to worship at the shrine of the Golden Dollar."

The government should take steps to bring jobs unions the 70 per cent of Canadian workers still outside them. It should be an "employer of last resort" for those who cannot benefit from manpower training programs.

The federal voting age should be lowered to 18 to help involve youth in politics, the young Liberals said.

A major overhaul of the welfare system was needed. The "bulky, inquisitive and demeaning means test" was on the way out. If a softer alternative—the needs test — was required, it should be kept simple.

To help break the poverty cycle, a wide range of other governmental services must be supplied, the brief said. These included grants to guarantee a nutritious diet for the underprivileged as well as to cover winter fuel and children's clothing.

Employment had to be guaranteed through government keeping a step ahead in the permanent technological revolution. Workers should have the right to negotiate automation changes with employers.

Birth control and abortion laws must be relaxed and divorce grounds broadened far beyond adultery, the brief urged.

SPORT SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

"I see by the papers," said a regular member of the weekly ball session quoting the late Will Rogers, "that there is a chance of resurrecting senior baseball from the cave of hibernation."

"Allowing senior baseball is be reinjected in what I hope is temporary oblivion" quoth a patriarch of the free-speech crew, "is a black mark on a city that once was one of the best baseball centres in Ontario."

"I think," he went on, "that there are a lot of baseball fans in this city who would welcome a return of the game that used to pack the Fair Grounds and other diamonds. Like that old mouse trap gag — give the fans the sport they like with good representation and they'll beat a path to the box-office."

"Lookit senior hockey," spake another, "when the McFarlands folded their tents back in 1961, the sceptics rubbed their hands and gurgled 'Well that's that, and good riddance.' And a lot of saner-thinking addicts believed that they had seen the last of senior hockey here."

"And what happened. Men who believed this brand of the sport was not dead but dormant, took a chance on fan reaction. They formed and financed the senior Mc-Hawks — and you guys know the rest."

Another's opinion was: — "I think that if the player material is available or procurable the same procedure could be followed in a revival of senior baseball as that which brought the hockey out of the doldrums."

As was noted in this newspaper the other day, the baseball natives, intermediate or senior-wise, are getting restless. So much so that a group of hard-hearted baseball minded people are attending a meeting of the Eastern Ontario Baseball Association as observers and to see what will be done.

I do not know where the Peterborough sports scribe got his information or whether it is just wishful thinking but he notes in his column that "Peterborough and Belleville are definite entries in the EOBA intermediate classification."

"Back in the old days," quoth the patriarch, "when the old Grand Trunks and later the Nationals were cutting wide swaths in Ontario senior baseball, and even in the later days of the Central Ontario Baseball League, Belleville fans were as loyal as a burr to a blanket."

There was nothing to complain about in more recent years when the Bata Shoemen were operating and Jack Carson, one of the best baseball men in Ontario was at the helm.

Even a couple of years ago when a Belleville senior club was playing in the Eastern Ontario League things went fairly well. Fans turned out in goodly numbers and not a few softball fans enjoyed their sport in the twilight of the evening and dashed away to catch the baseball game under the lights.

"Senior baseball or intermediate baseball, if it is revived may get a bigger and better fan reaction than you imagine," said one of the gang. "From what I hear, the top echelon of softball hierarchists is having its troubles. Right now it is reported it is a sort of mixed-up affair with no one knowing whose playing, what teams are entered and who will play, what, and where."

"There are stories of interlocking schedules with Kingston teams whose league flopped this year, but this has happened before once in baseball and it ragged out before season's end. Seems at times when it was Kingston's turn to come here they could never round up enough players."

I hope senior or intermediate baseball makes a comeback here. The people from Belleville who will attend the EOBA meeting for exploratory purposes only may have something in mind. Else why attend?

It is possible they have something in mind player-wise and are making sure of their ground before making any definite moves.

And if they do "move" I hope those with sponsorship ability — and finances — rally behind them to help put a sport that once put this city on the Ontario map, back to the status it deserves.

• • •

Since the above was written it has been learned that Belleville has entered the EOBA senior league with teams from Kingston, Brockville and Peterborough and intermediate squads from Little Britain, Oshawa and Kendall.

Royals Eye Memorial

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP)—It has been 43 years since a junior hockey team from British Columbia advanced as far along the path to the Memorial Cup as the New Westminster Royals have this season.

For the Royals, who play host to intermediate league and also to-day exhibition games with top B.C. junior teams, it has taken 10 years of recruiting, promoting and developing players to reach the point where they are one step away from the Memorial Cup finals.

It has also taken a devoted executive to get the Royals as far as they have this year. The club is unsponsored and must finance its own operation — which means promoting crowds, selling program advertising and programs and scheduling games with big teams from the Prairies—such as Moose Jaw Canucks and Edmonton Oil Kings—as special attractions.

Some hockey fans say the road for the Royals this season has been relatively smooth because of the expulsion of Canadian Make Junior Hockey League teams from Memorial Cup playoffs.

Not so, say Bob Fenton, Royals coach, and Derek Williams, president of the club.

"We would have beaten any Prairie team," Fenton said Monday, "in fact I think we have a good chance at defeating the Eastern representative who will probably be the Toronto Marlboros."

Tiger-Cats Re-sign Four

TORONTO (CP) — Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Eastern Football Conference have announced the re-signing of four players: Angelo Mosca, John Barrow, Ellison Kelly and Bill Lanychuk.

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League today announced Monday the signing of Jerry Bradley, a 21-year-old pass-catching end from the University of California at Berkley.

He is the 19th new import signed this year by the Argonauts, who have signed a total of 27 players.

Shack Hurts Sawchuk ★★★★★ Pappin To Play ★★★★★

Maskless Bower Clipped On Chin

TORONTO (CP) — Johnny Bower and Terry Sawchuk, the pair of veteran goalies for Toronto Maple Leafs, must wonder today if their team-mates have a personal vendetta against them...

The Leafs are tied at one game each with Montreal Canadiens in the best-of-seven Stanley Cup final.

The third game is scheduled for 8 p.m. EST tonight and will be carried in its entirety on the CBC national television network.

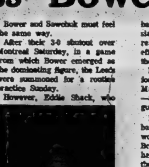
Bower and Sawchuk could not be faulted if they borrowed a line from fellow goalie Lorne (Gump) Worsley of the Canadiens to describe the hazards that go with their position.

A few years back Worsley was employed as New York Rangers netminder and had the misfortune to have a porous defence deployed in front of him.

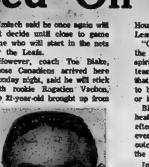
Worsley, when asked which team in the National Hockey League gave him the most trouble promptly replied: "Rangers."

Bower and Sawchuk must feel the same way.

After their 3-0 shutout over Montreal Saturday, in a game from which Bower emerged as the dominating figure, the Leafs were summoned for a routine practice Sunday.



However, Eddie Shack, who hasn't had much ice time lately, clashed Sawchuk across an already bandaged left wrist in an effort to shake the puck from the goaltender's grasp.



Monday, Bower stopped a 10-foot high flip shot from Pete Mahovlich's stick with his chin —and left the ice with blood gushing from the wound.

Both Bower and Sawchuk have suffered severed injuries in workouts during the season. Bower split a finger on his stick hand in the final practice before the Leafs started their semi-final round against Chicago Black Hawks. Toronto won the best-of-seven series in six games with Sawchuk in goal.

Bower's latest injury occurred near the end of Monday's workout, after he had removed the mask he dons for practice sessions.

Punch Imlach, Toronto's general - manager - coach, had reported he would fine any player firing high in practice $25. However, he chided this subject nicely with "I didn't see it."

JOHNNY BOWER

TERRY SAWCHUK

Imlach said he once again will not decide until close to game time who will start in the nets for the Leafs.

However, coach Toe Blake, whose Canadiens arrived here Monday night, said he will stick with rookie Rogatien Vachon, the 21-year-old brought up from Houston of the Central Pro League in mid-February.

"Canadiens have to win on the road," Blake said after a spirited workout before the team left Montreal. "The team that wins the Stanley Cup has to be able to win on the road or it doesn't deserve the cup."

Blake said his entire squad is healthy and "there is no panic" after Saturday's drubbing. However, he refused to predict any outcome of tonight's game or the series.

Imlach was more emphatic. "We won the big one — in Montreal—and that's the one we were after. Now they've got to win here."

Toronto's Jim Pappin, who suffered an injured foot when struck by a Jacques Laperriere slapshot in Saturday's game practised Monday.

"He'll be all right—there's no question about that," Imlach said. Pappin was unable to get a shoe on his injured foot Sunday and wore a sandal as he watched from the sidelines.

Aces Win 1-0

Rexe Brilliant; Blanks Eagles

DRUMMONDVILLE, Que. (CP)—Kingston Aces haven't given up their hopes of advancing to the Allen Cup finals.

The Aces had their backs to the wall when they lost 4-3 to Drummondville Eagles in overtime Sunday night to fall behind 3-0 in the best-of-seven Eastern Canada Allen Cup final series.

They were faced with a do-or-die situation when they met the Eagles in the fourth game Monday night but managed to pull through with a 1-0 victory to narrow Drummondville's lead to 3-1 in the eastern Canada final series and keep their hopes alive.

• • •

The Aces capitalized on a major penalty to Jacques Begin for the only goal of the game and goalie Steve Rexe turned in a sparkling performance to register the shutout.

Begin was serving a major penalty for speaking and he had six seconds remaining of the sentence when Bob Rawson scored for the Aces at 10:48 of the second period.

Rawson got the lone goal when he picked up a loose puck at the side of the Drummondville net and rammed it past goalie Claude Cyr of the Eagles.

Cyr also turned in a solid effort for the Eagles, stopping 31 of 32 shots directed at him by the Aces.

However, Rexe had the edge between the two netminders as he kicked out 27 shots for the shutout and the Aces enjoyed and outchecked the Eagles throughout the tame contest.

The Eagles, playoff champions of the Provincial Senior Hockey League, bombarded the unbeatable Rexe with 11 shots in the first period, 11 in the second and 15 in the third period.

Only seven penalties were handed out in the game, including the major to Begin. The Aces took four of the seven.

The fifth game in the series will be played here Wednesday night.

Introducing: The tire that could save you more than money.

A real bargain in tires is one that keeps your family safest.

Until recently, that kind of bargain could cost a lot of money.

Now, that's changed. The tire that changed it, the new Goodyear polyester.

Price: you can get one for about $30.00.

The Goodyear polyester is one of the safest tires ever made. It's built with an incredibly strong polyester cord. It's been called the miracle cord and it's another first from Goodyear.

The major car manufacturers have selected the Goodyear polyester as original equipment on their new cars.

And safety isn't their only reason for doing so.

Goodyear polyesters are also longer wearing.

They practically eliminate cuts and impact breaks. They're quiet and smoother riding.

They won't "flat spot" overnight. So, no irritating morning thump.

They'll even improve your gas mileage.

Goodyear polyesters have all the strength of nylon plus the smooth ride of rayon cord tires combined. When you buy a set, you're putting your money where your heart is.

Like all Goodyear tires, the new polyesters are fully covered by Goodyear's lifetime quality and road hazard guarantee.

Talk to your Goodyear man.

Remember polyester tires by Goodyear. They could save you more than money.

Watch NHL?; "Not For Free Blonde, Bottle And Ticket"--Hayes

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Sports Editor

In a world where everyone seems to be working the angles for a ticket to the Stanley Cup playoffs, George Hayes is a refreshing exception.

"I wouldn't enter a National Hockey League arena again if you put me a free ticket, a free blonde and a free bottle—not while Clarence Campbell is running the league."

Remember George Hayes? He was a professional hockey official for 31 years, 19 of them in the NHL—until Clarence Campbell asked him to hang up his referee's shirt in 1963.

His colorful retort was the final shot in the long war between Hayes and NHL officialdom:

"Hell, I've tested my eyes for years in bars reading the labels on whisky bottles. I can still do it, so who needs an eye test?"

Hayes has always had a flair for the colorful, dating back to his schooldays. He didn't play hockey when he wanted a day off—he pitch-forked manure into the school furnace and everybody had a holiday.

Today, George is a newspaper man. He writes two columns a week for the Woodstock Sentinel - Review and covers sport for that paper from the area of Ingersoll, Ont., where he lives.

Sports editor Marty Knack says George never learned to type so his wife does that for him.

"It's good stuff—the readers really love it, especially the older readers. He has a fantastic memory and writes colorfully about the sports figures he has known."

George covers minor hockey, high school sport, football and golf but "I especially enjoy writing the columns."

He is an imposing figure—six-foot-three, 215 pounds and in as good shape at 66 as when he used to hold battling NHLers at arm's length.

Walking 10 miles a day keeps him that way, he says, and his co-workers point out it's five miles from the Hayes farm to the Ingersoll Inn, his favorite pub — "and George never did learn to drive."

George is married, with three children, the youngest a four-year-old boy.

Hayes' capacity for spirits was and is legendary and, coupled with his free-wheeling personality, led to unusual situations when he was carrying a whistle.

He recalls the time he whistled down Bob Pulford on an offside call.

"We are getting ready to face off inside the Toronto blue-line. Pulford says to me 'What's the matter, George? You have four-five beers last night and can't see too well?'

"Jean Beliveau turns to me and says 'George, that is an insult.' Then he turns to Pulford and says 'He does not drink four - five bottles, he drinks the whole case.'

"The three of us laughed and the matter was promptly forgotten."

Hayes makes no secret of his drinking, but insists:

"I've never taken a drink before a game. I've never been in a bar before a game."

He officiated in 1,513 league, playoff and all-star games and "I wouldn't have missed a minute of it."

What he would have missed was his running feud with Campbell and Carl Voss, referee-in-chief in those days.

He blames Campbell for many things, the fact that linesmen weren't allowed into the NHL pension fund until five years ago.

"I'll show you my pension cheque today — I'm ashamed of it."

On top of his NHL pension "journalism fodder" and he has the family farm. A company owning three sand quarries nearby has bought the property for expansion. He has the money from the sale and is living rent-free in the farmhouse. He estimates it will be about 30 years before the quarries reach his doorstep.

"They'll never have to hold a tag day for old George Hayes," he says.

"And I'll never have to go and borrow money from that one—and - so Clarence Campbell."

City Enters EOBA

Comeback; Senior Baseball!

Senior baseball is returning to Belleville after an absence of three years.

Belleville was one of seven centres entering a team in the Eastern Ontario Baseball Association at a senior meeting in Port Hope last night.

MOE HUNTER

The league consists of four senior clubs, Belleville, Kingston, Brockville and Peterborough, plus a junior team from Oshawa and intermediate teams from Little Britain and Kendall.

Murray "Moe" Hunter, speaking on behalf of the Belleville club, said a 20-game schedule will be played with the local team playing six games against Brockville and Kingston plus two against each of the other clubs.

This type of schedule will be played to cut down on travelling.

Belleville will open the schedule at home on the holiday, Monday, May 22, against Brockville. It will likely be a 2:00 o'clock afternoon game.

The club's remaining nine home games will be played on Wednesday nights at the Fairgrounds, with 8.00 p.m. starts.

Spero Anzis, of Peterborough, secretary of the EOBA, is the senior division convener.

The Belleville club is yet un-named but efforts are being made to line up a sponsor.

Hunter says a meeting of all interested persons will be arranged shortly at which time a team executive is likely to be named.

Season tickets will also be available to the public in the near future.

It is felt by those promoting the return of senior baseball here that the success of a club through former senior players such as Larry Mayell, Pat Asselstine, Bill Latchford, Ron Urch, Pete Weston, Moe Hunter, Bill Moxon, Rick Locke, Dufty Follwell, Larry Soule, Court Bentley, plus graduates of the Belleville Minor Baseball Association, should be available.

Training camp for the club, with an open invitation to all district players is expected to open shortly.

May Put Off Fight

MILAN, Italy (AP) — The world middleweight title fight between champion Nino Benvenuti of Italy and Emile Griffith scheduled for July 13 in New York may be postponed because of plastic surgery on Benvenuti's nose. The newly crowned champion injured his nose when he won the championship from Griffith in New York April 17. The operation would mean a month of inactivity for Benvenuti.

Sport Miniatures

GLACE BAY, N.S. (CP) — Blair Richardson of nearby South Bar will defend his Canadian middleweight boxing championship against Jim Meilleur of Windsor, Ont., here May 13.

Debbie Will Lead Skaters At Expo 67

TORONTO (CP) — Debbie Wilkes of Unionville, Ont., will turn professional and lead a group of five figure skaters in a touring ice show at Expo 67 in Montreal, it was announced Monday.

Debbie, 20, who is completing her second year at York University, said she will leave for Montreal Wednesday night to appear as star soloist in the skating group, one of four in the Cable Troubadours.

Debbie and Guy Revell of suburban Newmarket won the Canadian and North American pairs championships in 1962 and 1964 and won a silver medal at the 1964 Winter Olympics at Innsbruck, Austria.

Others joining the Expo ice show will be Susan and Paul Hochberger of Hamilton, Canadian pairs champions in 1965 and 1966; Dorjan Rechsteiner of suburban Islington and Ross Garroer of Brampton, runner-up to the Canadian junior pairs title in 1965, and Gregory Folk of Toronto, who now is teaching figure skating in Western Canada.

Birdied Through Trees

Fancy Yancey Wins Dallas!

DALLAS (AP)—Bert Yancey had an important decision to make at the 16th hole of the 6,777-yard, Oak Cliff Country Club course.

He was among the trees, with a downhill lie and he had to decide if he wanted to play safe and pitch out onto the fairway or shoot through an eight-foot opening.

"I thought I was behind and sure I had to make a birdie or lose the tournament," said the young man from Philadelphia. "So I went for it—I shot through the trees, only touching a few leaves."

Yancey's birdie—with a 30-foot putt—put him in the lead. He swung down the stretch to a one-over-par 71, 274 for 72 holes and $20,000 as champion of the $100,000 Greater Dallas Open.

He finished a stroke ahead of Raymond de Vincenzo, the 1966 Dallas Open champion who made a gallant bid for a repeat with a two-under-par 68, and Kermit Zarley, who also could manage only a 71 on the final round. They wound up with 275 and won $9,750 apiece.

Yancey, who shines with the putter, had 30 in his tour of the sun-baked course Monday. His putting was the strong arm he had to lean on in the final round.

It got him into trouble but his putting pulled him through.

Yancey had difficulty on 16 where he was almost out of bounds with his tee shot, then landed in a bunker.

He managed to two-putt from 40 feet for a bogey and it still kept him ahead although Doug Sanders was moving within a stroke of him at the time and Goalby still was within a stroke.

Ace Quits Car Racing

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Fred Lorenzen, the biggest money winner in the history of professional stock car racing, announced Monday night he is retiring from the sport. The 33-year-old ace driver for Ford Motor Co. since 1961 has set all-time money winning records, including a single season's take of $113,570 in 1963 and close to $500,000 over-all. At a dinner Monday, Lorenzen said: "I want to quit while I'm on top."

Has Saved Five

Reds' Reliever Hottest In League

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Unsinkable Ted Abernathy has his submarine ball on target again and Cincinnati Reds are rolling a steady course in the early National League race.

Abernathy torpedoed the sliding Houston Astros with 1⅔ innings of clutch relief pitching Monday night, protecting a 3-1 victory that ran Cincinnati's winning streak to five games.

The veteran reliever, who throws with an unorthodox underhand motion, rescued winner Sammy Ellis in the eighth inning and registered his fifth save of the young season. He has appeared in eight of the Reds' 13 starts.

"I'm sure glad he's on my team," slugger Deron Johnson said after the Reds clouted Abernathy from Atlanta's Richmond farm club during the winter. "It takes years to learn to hit a curve that goes down, and then you run into a guy like Abernathy who throws one that goes up."

Abernathy, who set an all-time record of 84 appearances — all in relief — and finished with a 2.88 earned run average two years ago while with Chicago Cubs, slipped to a 4.55 ERA in 88 games for the Cubs and Braves last season.

Abernathy's stirring finish against the Astros, who have dropped eight in a row, and Tony Perez' three-run homer lifted the Reds into the league lead.

St. Louis dropped a 6-5 decision to Los Angeles in 13 innings and fell into a second-place tie with the Philadelphia Phillies. The Dodgers-Cards struggle was the only other game played in the NL.

In the lone American League contest, Boston Red Sox scored three runs on Ken Harrelson's eighth-inning error for a 7-4 victory over Washington Senators.

Rookie Jim Campanis's first error for Kansas City Athletics broke in the 13th—triggered the Dodgers' winning two-run rally. Ron Hunt was hit by a pitch and Phil Gagliano fumbled Jim Hickman's sacrifice bunt, filling the bases, before Jim Lefebvre delivered the tying run with a sacrifice fly.

In the other game, Lou Johnson singled the winner across.

Lefebvre drove in four runs with a homer, single and the sacrifice fly.

Lou Brock had three Cardinal hits, scored one run, drove in a pair and stole three bases.

New Softball League!

The formation of a new senior softball league took place in Napanee last night, according to Harold Langabeer, of Kingston.

At a special meeting, seven teams, three from Belleville, three from Kingston and one from Picton voted the new loop, Langabeer said by phone this morning.

The league will be known as the Quinte and District and the KASA Softball Association.

Rumor in the city had it that because of a lack of entries in both Belleville and Kingston, an inter-locking schedule would be played.

Such is not the case.

The seven teams, and possibility more, will play a full schedule, consisting of either 18 or 24 games. It will open May 23.

Langabeer said the Belleville entries are Bobcats, Ellis' and a third club, represented last night by Bobby Green. "It may be Trudeau Motors or perhaps another sponsor," Langabeer said.

Picton Kinsmen played in the Belleville and District loop last year and won the league playoffs.

The Kingston clubs now in are Prince George Hotel, Lake's Bus Line and Lafontaine Clippers. There is also a possibility of a fourth Kingston team. The entry deadline has been set as May 2 ⁽⁾.

Directors named for the association are Harry Rollins and Harold Rawden of Belleville, Dan Cross and Harold Langabeer of Kingston and Jim Guenster of Picton. Doug Reid, Belleville, is the secretary and is in charge at drafting a schedule.

Belleville teams will use Belleville umpires for home games and Kingston will use their officials for home games.

"I think this association will be a shot in the arm for softball in our area," Langabeer said. "But I am disappointed that neither the press or radio was kept informed in Belleville. The necessity of keeping the public well informed was one of the points we stressed last night, especially since this is a new association," he said.

National Basketball Champions

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "this is the greatest team in the history of professional basketball," says coach Alex Hannum of his Philadelphia 76ers, the champions of the National Basketball Association.

"They established a won-loss record for regular season play, beat the Boston Celtics in the Eastern playoffs and defeated San Francisco's Warriors twice on their own court."

By a 125-122 margin, the 76ers beat the Warriors Monday night to capture the final playoffs, four games to two. Superiority at the free throw line and rugged play by Wilt Chamberlain did it.

Chamberlain matched 24 points, 23 rebounds and a non-statistical job of forcing and blocking Warrior shots.

Darts League Results

Playoff results from the Belleville and District Darts League Darfline winning the "A" trophy by defeating the Legion; Black Diamond topping Wilf's B.I.A. and Robinson Construction for the "B" trophy; Wild Cats capturing the "C" trophy with a victory over Gamesbois and City Cleaners.

High three darts went to Gord Kelly and Jerry Forestell, each with a score of 180.

Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD — Hospital administrator Mr. Stuart N. Carr outlined in detail the various phases of the administration, with emphasis on planning and renovation at the annual hospital board meeting.

In opening he stated that a call-system for doctors has recently been installed, a new projector purchased to be used in various phases of medical research. Donations and bequests had been received to the amount of $21,619, some of which was given by patients who had been in hospital some time.

Mr. Carr spoke of lack of trained personnel all over the province and felt the association of Campbellford Hospital now with Belleville School of Nurses would alleviate the situation to some extent for Campbellford hospital.

Also in his address he spoke of the enormous laundry load, the emeals $1,000 in the year some of which are necessarily special diets and provided on a raw food cost of 85 cents per day which have been expertly handled in spite of inadequate working space.

Mr. Carr continued by saying that the pharmacy although small handled more drugs than some drug stores; laboratory work was becoming increasingly greater although in comparison Campbellford Hospital might be considered a small hospital. Maintenance men have charge of $150,000 worth of equipment.

The third floor in the new planning will be given to maternity and chronic cases and a solarium with unsigned space for 10 extra beds.

Mrs. V. Judd, supervisor of nurses stated that overcrowding was the main problem, that emergency and out-patient space was urgently needed that when of necessity stretchers had to be were in corridors, this was an undesirable condition as it interfered with good nursing care. Miss Eidt stated replacements in nursing service was difficult.

Mrs. W. F. Lancaster reported of the Hospital Auxiliary stated under a new resolution auxiliary members could hold one office for three years only. The auxiliary contribution to the Hospital Board totalled $3,000 and over the years since the hospital opened 1953 the Auxiliary had contributed $47,721.

Two money making projects are carried out, one the annual bazaar and the other, an annual card tournament with other minor contributions, at the present time an xpress project is in progress. The money to be spent for some new hospital equipment. The Auxiliary hopes to furnish the new solarium.

Although the Board meeting was duly advertised, public interest was not shown, hence no expression of opinion was made nor appreciation, by the citizens of the area serviced by the hospital.

Johnny Carson Makes Mild Cracks on Return to Show

NEW YORK (AP) — Johnny Carson returned to NBC's Tonight Show Monday night while Jack Paar was Joey Bishop's guest on ABC. All this made for a trying evening for the television fan who could not watch two shows at once.

Carson, obviously in good spirits, bounced on stage to applause and cheers after a month's absence, and his opening remark was "is the strike over?"

In the course of his opening monologue, he referred jokingly on two occasions to an increase in salary under a new contract. "I feel guilty working just before Passover," he said. "You're supposed to eat unleavened bread—and I came back for more dough."

Later he complained about having to give so many interviews by telephone to reporters, adding that news stories made him out to be "a combination of Jack the Ripper and Billinger who had sneaked in at night and held up NBC."

After a few more mild cracks, Buddy Hackett came out and the show settled into its normal groove.

Paar, in his first appearance as a guest on a carbon copy of the show he created, was amusing in his exchanges with Bishop on the proper handling of the host's job.

He did seem a little jumpy and ill at ease, with led Bishop to suggest that "you're nervous enough to come back to this kind of job again."

CBS's special starring the popular Herb Alpert and his Tijuana Brass was a tuneful, ingenious program, full of surprises and inventive camera work, all done on location.

There was almost no dialogue and little singing, but it was packed with music from the moment Alpert and his band opened the show playing in the Tijuana bull ring to the final fade-out on a Pacific beach.

The whole program, was in excellent taste, was well paced and pleased both eye and ear.

Not Everyone in Garden City Happy Over Movie Invasion

This is the second in a series by Bob Thomas, Associated Press movie writer, on the filming of the picture In Cold Blood in the actual location of the brutal slaying of a family that was the basis of author Truman Capote's best-selling book.

By BOB THOMAS

GARDEN CITY, Kan. (AP)—Not everyone in this wheat-and-cattle town of 14,000 is happy about the Hollywood invasion to film In Cold Blood.

The Chamber of Commerce has endorsed the advent of the movie makers. Business will benefit.

City and county officials have given their best approval to the production by permitting use of the streets and the court house for filming.

But to some residents, the memory of the massacre of four members of the Clutter family is too fresh.

"I would have preferred that they made the film elsewhere," said Bill Brown, editor of the daily Garden City Telegram. He likes the Clutters and witnessed the hanging of the two murderers. He is weary of the seven-year-old case.

"Some of us have resented the fact that out of this terrible tragedy many have found avenues for making a great deal of money," said Brown.

The Telegram's viewpoint was expressed in a letter to the Telegram last year when the Truman Capote book on which the film is based was a best-seller. The family pastor wrote:

"The family and close friends are saddened by the continuous reminder of this tragic event and will welcome the time when publicity, articles, etc., will be at a minimum. It would seem merciful to let them grieve in peace."

The two survivors were quoted as saying: "Capote has always been a fiction writer; he still is a fiction writer; and, if I can read this book objectively because I feel I am not reading about my own family."

Capote, who visited the film-ing here last week, accused Brown of conducting a vendetta against him.

"This idiot (Brown) is a typical non-smoking, non-drinking product of the Bible belt" the author said. "From the time I arrived here to research the book he was convicted I was the devil incarnate walking the streets of Garden City."

Brown said objections to the filming, judging by letters to newspapers, seem to come from outlying towns rather than Garden City.

He pointed one from an Emporia woman who wrote:

"That people can make a profit from the horror and terror in this tragedy is to me a horrendous prediction of things to come." She foal who wrote it showed a lack of it.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"It probably wasn't safe to walk on the streets after dark then either."

To Your Good Health

Warning Signs of Heart Attacks

Dear Dr. Molner: What are the warning signs of heart trouble? When do you go to see a doctor about it?

I understand a woman is more protected while she is her menstruating years. But is this necessarily true? Does age have anything to do with it?

Is a throbbing or fluttering in the chest after hard work a sign? — A. M. R.

There are various kinds of heart diseases, but the one to which you refer, I believe, is coronary heart disease, or the common "heart attack." My answers will not necessarily apply to other heart defects — but there will be similar symptoms in other types anyway.

It is true that before menopause women are much less likely to have heart attacks. The exact reason is not fully understood, but they are protected by estrogen, the female hormones. After menopause the difference between risk for men and women tends to equalize.

When to see a doctor about your heart?

— If you have pain or a distinct sense of pressure in the mid-chest under the breast bone.

— If you are short of breath after ordinary exertion. (Huffing and puffing after heavy exertion is normal.)

— If you are known to have blood pressure or diabetes the heart should be checked periodically. Ideally tests on electrocardiogram to detect any changes early.

As to throbbing and fluttering, it depends. This can be a symptom of a disorder in rhythm of the heart, but such flutterings also are common during and after menopause and sometimes before) and can be quite innocent. An electrocardiogram will identify a true rhythm disorder if present.

A family history of heart trouble is significant — but a person of other ancestors who died of a heart attack at 80 or so does not indicate a "history of heart trouble."

Presence of a high fat content in the blood, and cholesterol is the one for which tests usually are made, is a suspicious forerunner.

Any unexplained dizziness warrants a checkup of heart action — but there are many explainable causes for dizziness not involving the heart.

As to chest pains, again there are many causes. It depends on the location and type of pain among other factors. Most chest pains, if off centre, are not due to the heart.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: My sister-in-law takes a strong laxative after each meal to keep her weight down. This has been going on for a year and a half.

She is 38, 5 feet 5, weighs 112 and enjoys very good health aside from tiring easily. I can't understand this because I have always thought laxatives could lead to trouble.

I guess I must be wrong. — M. M.

Just be glad it's her digestive tract, not yours. The human system often can absorb an amazing amount of abuse before it rebels, but such massive amounts of laxatives will take their toll in time by such means as gastritis, irritable colon, rectal disorders or others.

I question his effectiveness for reducing to begin with, but I hope she stops this before she develops a digestive disturbance of one kind or another. She's pretty sure to do so unless she stops.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: Will you explain the meaning of erosive cervicitis and of metrorrhagia? — L. R.

Erosive cervicitis means an ulceration of the cervix which has become chronically infected. Metrorrhagia means uterine bleeding between periods, a symptom which should be investigated.

Do Bit At Time: Carter

TORONTO (CP) — Kenneth Carter, chairman of the royal commission on taxation, said Monday that comment on the commission's resistance to implementing the chamber's proposals piece meal "may have been overstated."

He told the 18th annual conference of the Canadian Tax Foundation that the report does not say the recommendations should be accepted as a whole, as some commentators have suggested.

In addition to the main proposals, there were more than 70 recommendations that could be implemented, he told the 1,700 delegates.

He said the main proposals of the report included four points: Broadening the tax base, integration of personal and corporation income taxes, lower tax rates and income taxes, lower tax rates and income averaging when needed in the interest of equity over a period of years.

He said the recommendations could contribute to economic growth by giving new incentives to small companies, lower the so-called brain drain to other countries by lowering taxes and remove the tax bias that now directs capital into areas where it may be used to maximum benefit.

Sewage Plant Debated

CAMPBELLFORD — The Ontario Water Resources Commission, which proposes to build a sewage disposal plant in Campbellford, held a public information meeting in the Masonic Temple Monday afternoon.

Twelve people were present: four officials of the OWRC, two representatives of the engineering firm of British Canadian Consulting Engineers, J. Fingarson and Northumberland-Durham Health Unite, town Clerk E. H. Ibey, Councillor A. C. Newman and three others.

Councillor Newman questioned the increased cost, which had risen from $490,000 in 1963 to the present $800,000. He asked if the OWRC had disallowed the building of a lagoon. Mr. Brown of OWRC and Mr. Cunningham of the engineering firm said that because of rock content in the soil and distance, the lagoon plan was uneconomical in the Campbellford area.

Two factors on which the size of the plant it based; continuity of water rates and population growth, were questioned, because it was said no noticeable increase in population has occurred for several years.

Mr. Newman informed the OWRC of the comparatively high debentures to which the town is now committed. All present agreed policies of water must be dealt with in some way, but favored the most economical manner possible. Report of the meeting will be taken to the OWRC and assessed.

Press Views Expo

MONTREAL (CP)—Workmen on double shifts today put the finishing touches on Expo 67 exhibits, the last few press previews of national pavilions were scheduled and officials, anxious about Thursday's inaugural, watched the weather.

Monday the United Nations, France, Belgium and the Soviet Union opened their pavilions for newspaper men.

France subdued its image of good food and the country life by displaying a laser beam cutting steel and vaporizing a brick, among other scientific and space gadgetry.

The UN showed its rectangular glass and steel Plaza of 122 member nations and the Tree of Life, five faces representing the peoples of the continents carved in an Italian chestnut tree.

Belgium's $2,000,000 pavilion displayed works of art including the sarcophagus of St. Remaclet crafted by an unknown goldsmith in 1268.

The Russians opened their pavilion on a tragic note. Shortly after the press arrived an official read a communique of the accidental death of cosmonaut Vladimir Komarov. There was a minute of silence before the preview continued with a film on Russian life and a fashion show.

Others among the 72 pavilions on the 1,000-acre site in the St. Lawrence River are far from finished. Ian Vorres, Greek deputy commissioner general, mayed that his country's display was beset with shipping troubles.

Only half of a caique or Greek fishing vessel was in Montreal. The other half was in a truck somewhere in the United States.

Even in the Ontario pavilion, opened Monday, workmen were cleaning up but Economics Minister Stanley Randall promised that all would be "ready for business" by opening day.

Meanwhile, in the offices of the men who built Man and His World — Expo's theme — there was a little worry about the weather. After 10 days of on-and-off rain in the Montreal area, meteorologists predicted "a better than 50 - per - cent chance" of good weather for Thursday's opening.

Legion News

Limitless Variety of Experiences Reported by Those Taking LSD 'Trips'

Authorities in many parts of Canada are worried over the growing use of the hallucinogen — hallucinogenic drug LSD. This story, based on reports from across the country, deals with the nature of LSD and the experience of some who have used it.

BY JOHN LEBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

One user cries, but only out of one eye.

Another may decide to fly off a balcony.

Another wants to climb right out of his body.

Still another can suddenly understand Marshall McLuhan, the cryptic communications philosopher.

Others find contentment, terror, excitement, the suicide urge, artistic stimulation.

If there's one thing predictable about an LSD "trip" it's the mental unknown, it's the entire unpredictability of it.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press, including interviews with users, shows a limitless variety of experiences under the drug.

"Its uncontrolled use is dangerous," says Dr. Abram Hoffer, psychiatric director of the Saskatchewan health department and a leading authority on LSD. He calls it a boon to mankind but a dangerous toy in the hands of unqualified persons.

A beatnik poet who took LSD jumped to his death off a Toronto bridge last January. In March a Toronto music student went on a trip with the drug and was found dead below a viaduct. Alberta authorities are investigating a suspected LSD-influenced suicide.

But there is another side. Kyo Izumi, the architect who designed the unconventional psychiatric centre at Weyburn, Sask., did it with the help of expertly-controlled LSD treatments that caused his subjects to function temporarily like that of a mental case. He was able to discover many things about a normal institution that disturb, painfully, and the result was that the centre is regarded as one of the most advanced on the continent.

LSD is the common name for lysergic acid diethylamide, a synthetic compound created in 1938 by a Swiss chemist who found it originally in a destructive fungus growing on grain. It is one of a group called hallucinogens that can induce weird mental conditions closely parallel to schizophrenia.

For this reason, doctors have experimented with it as a means of studying mental illness. It also has had a limited use in Canada, in an exploratory way, for the treatment of alcoholism. But no definite clinical results are claimed so far.

Free - lance devotees are even enthusiastic about its potential for international LSD apostles and a Harvard professor fired for experimenting with the drug on his students, Richard Alpert, said in Toronto that LSD is a short cut to greater human consciousness, which could be the next step in evolution. The high priest of the cult describe an LSD experience as psychedelic, roughly translated as mind-expanding.

LSD is one of the most powerful drugs known to man. It is so powerful that the dosage is measured by the microgram—a millionth of a gram, which is about 1/28th of an ounce. An "acid trip," as hipsters call a psychedelic experience, may involve between 200 and 400 micrograms.

Outside of a small amount manufactured for research at the University of Toronto's Connaught Laboratories, the product used in Canada is all bootlegged. Enough for a trip costs anywhere from $3 to $20, depending on supply. Because of its firepower in relation to volume, it is easily smuggled and transported.

Much of what is used in Canada comes from the United States, where the increasing of getting a relatively big quantity across the border, one hipster explained, is to dip a white sweater in a solution, let it dry and then take it out on arrival. A dose can be carried around in a bit of blotting paper or a sugar cube, which is dissolved into a glass of water when wanted.

An acid trip takes any one of a myriad of forms, never the same. The outcome depends on both the setting and personality of the user, his state of mind of the moment, and among other things the size of the LSD. A trip can last anywhere from a few hours to days. It can be "terrifying, mind-out," resulting in a long period of mental torture.

The R.F.W. Baker, a Toronto psychiatrist who has been doing research with LSD for five years, told a recent formal health committee of parliamentarians at Ottawa of the case of a 19-year-old man under the drug who beat up an elevator man with a chain. The man apparently looked like his father, whom he did not like. The doctor also listed at least one suicide after a trip.

A Vancouver user who said he has experimented with it for four years told Canadian Press reporter Jack Moore:

"I've only been on one bad trip, and that was as bad as you can get. But the good ones are fantastic. They can't be described."

A 20 - year - old university dropout described his two trips this way to Gail Scott, a CP reporter in Montreal:

"It makes people think a little more cool and the feeling of relaxation lasts after the effects of the drug wear off. You stop getting involved in petty things and have time for the more important questions of life. The most immediate reaction is that the time sense gets completely disoriented and everything seems to have happened a long time ago, like you've just turned a corner.

"In the second trip I lay on the floor and laughed for the first 1½ hours and for the rest of the six hours just listened to jazz. It felt like I was inside the music, and while I was listening to it colored abstract patterns flashed before my eyes."

It was this user who found himself understanding the profundities of McLuhan. "It's the only way he makes any sense."

The one who cried with one eye was a working girl, who told reporter Scott she and a girl friend went under together and she got tearful when they started saying nice things about each other.

"The best thing you feel under LSD is that all your little personalities fall off and the real you emerges," she said. She explained that normally she has different personalities for her friend, her mother, her work and so forth.

She said the trip lasted from 10 p.m. Saturday until Monday morning, probably longer than usual because they smoked marijuana to encourage talking to each other. She ate just three grains of rice during that period and they made her so full she could eat nothing else.

One Toronto couple told of going under for a terrifying trip on an apparent overdose of LSD obtained through a pusher getting his supplies from Chicago.

"I took what I thought to be a healthy dose—400 micrograms. Judging by what happened, it must have been about 1,000. It was so frightened I sat on the floor with my legs crossed, in the same position I have been in for a couple of hours.

"I went through a complete mental and physical death. I was disoriented. I achieved a state of non-being. I warped to a point where nothing existed of my body. I was frightened. One way of doing that is to destroy your body."

A Vancouver 19 - year - old swore off after getting a severe kickback five weeks after his latest trip. He was treated in hospital for depression, manic-depressive and sensory hallucinations.

"I thought I was leaving this world," he said. "I thought I was creating one. I felt people biting me and heard voices all night. . . . I'm going to get my hair chopped off and get back to normal."

A group of youngsters in Kitchener, Ont., where LSD is scarce, told of taking a trip together this year. One saw skeletons. Another had the feeling he was falling off a cliff. The third found himself trying to run away from a whirlpool but continually skipped back toward it. The fourth was floating through clouds with a voice telling him the path to bliss he saw would be that of the next person to die.

One of them told of taking trips in the United States.

"One time I went up a tree and they had a hard time getting me down. I thought I was a locomotive."

Here is one from a University of Western Ontario co-ed:

"I had flowers growing out of my knees. I could even pull them out. I could sit down in a chair when there was no chair and remain seated.

"I had a closed eye once. I could see pictures like supersynchronized cartoons. . . .

"I've got out of proportion and changed color.

"It's very hard to focus on anybody, to listen to what they're saying. It's hard to speak coherently. There's too much thought and color."

While she describes her own experience as "marvellous," she says a former boy-friend who's been using his mind out, losing his memory." The friend only remembers things when he's back on LSD, but he doesn't care.

Philosophy professor Charles Hanly of the University of Toronto says he knows of a former mathematics student whose ending is already gone from LSD. The drug killed his personality and he now is in a mental hospital.

A student informant at Sir Gill University tells of seeing two LSD-induced collegian jump off a balcony and another try to stop fast-moving traffic by standing in front of it. This is in line with one of the known effects of LSD, which is to give the subject an exaggerated belief in his physical powers. Many of the other effects lie in the realm of the unknown, a fact that sharpens the concern of officials.

Centennial Train May Travel Throughout U.S. Next Year

QUEBEC (CP)—The Confederation train may be carrying the Canadian message to the United States next year.

Like other centennial projects, it isn't likely to disappear with the end of 1967.

Keeping the train on the tracks after Centennial Year was discussed here Monday behind closed doors at the national centennial conference.

It came up at a meeting of Miss Secretary Judy LaMarsh, federal minister responsible for centennial affairs, and her provincial counterparts.

Delegates said later that several federal centennial commission projects and programs likely will be continued after 1967, perhaps permanently.

The commission's youth travel program, which has subsidized summer trips within Canada for thousands of youths since 1964, almost certainly will be continued.

Another centennial survivor might be the performing arts program under which federal funds are used to help Canadian theatre, music and other such groups go on tour.

The Confederation train, now in Winnipeg, has drawn about 1,000,000 visitors since leaving Victoria in January, a response far greater than that expected.

The idea of keeping it rolling beyond 1967 has evident appeal and delegates said there has been debate about whether to send it through Canada again next year, or to send it to the U.S. to stimulate tourist interest.

Cost-sharing for the continued program was discussed Monday and details may be worked out when the national conference holds its final centennial meeting in the fall.

Miss LaMarsh is chairman of the conference. The delegates include a minister and a senior official from each province, and 40 influential Canadians chosen at large across the country.

Miss LaMarsh is reported to have a sympathetic ear for provincial pleas for more funds to help complete brick-and-mortar projects whose costs have risen sharply in the last two years.

Most of the plans were made two or three years ago and the rising costs came in the middle of construction.

Construction of Confederation memorial projects in Saskatchewan and British Columbia have been halted, in hopes of lower construction costs later this year.

Ottawa granted $2,000,000 to each province for a Confederation memorial and though several have been completed, all were hit by rising costs. All provinces matched the grant and some have raised their contribution.

Saskatchewan split its funds to build $4,200,000—the original estimate—cultural centres in Regina and Saskatoon.

The Regina centre, on which construction has been halted, now is budgeted at $8,500,000 and the Saskatoon one, due for completion early next year, has risen to $3,800,000.

Ottawa Monday gave Saskatchewan an extension to the end of 1969, rather than 1968, to complete the projects. B.C. earlier was given a similar extension.

Original federal - provincial agreements called for completion by the end of 1967.

However, Ottawa's national arts centre itself, on which costs have rocketed to $36,000,000 from an original estimate of $9,000,000, will not be completed until next year, if then.

Provincial Secretary Yves Gabias of Quebec appealed to a non - communist Miss LaMarsh for $2,126,000 to help complete 50 cultural and recreational centres being built in the province under a per capita grant program.

Blood Donors Requested to Attend Clinic

NAPANEE — In 1967 Canada will require eight per cent more pints of blood than last year, the Napanee Red Cross Blood Donors' committee has been told. Every 36 seconds someone in Ontario is receiving a blood transfusion. The local hospital alone estimates its requirements at 400 bottles a year.

The mobile clinic will be in Napanee Thursday, April 27 at the County Memorial Building from 2.00 to 4.30 p.m., and in the evening from 6.30 to 9.00 p.m. Mrs. F. B. Mills again heads the committee, and states that everything will be in readiness. All that is needed is donors to contribute the 250 pints of blood which is the quota for this area.

W. B. (Wally) Perry has volunteered a statement regarding his debt to the Red Cross blood bank. Two years ago last November he developed a type of anemia which is still baffling the specialists in Kingston. Since that time he has been in hospital every month but one, and sometimes remains the entire month, or goes for short periods twice in the same month. Each time he requires a number of transfusions.

At one time each transfusion cost the patient or his relatives $25. Later a patient could receive the blood without payment, if two donors gave blood for each transfusion. Today, thanks to the Red Cross Society, transfusions cost the patient nothing, but the Red Cross can only give this service because of the generosity of the donors at the clinics.

Kindergarten Opening Is Postponed

TYENDINAGA — There is little hope that the kindergarten will open in the Quinte - Mohawk School on May 1 as was expected. Although the room itself is ready, no furniture has yet arrived, although they are on order. Principal Alton reports that prospective pupils have not yet been registered, although he estimates that there will be about 30. Mrs. Lorne Graves of Napanee has been engaged to teach the little folk. She is a specialist in teaching children of ten and grade one, and has taught Indian children in the Winnipeg area.

Leslie Claus has returned to duties on the staff of Quinte - Mohawk School after an absence of about a month through illness.

The school has taken on tree planting as its Centennial project. Notice has been received that the trees will arrive on or about May 2.

About 50 pupils of the school and their parents will be visiting Expo-'67 May 12. All must be 12 or over unless accompanied by a parent. The bus will leave Belleville at 6.30 a.m. and will return there around midnight. Principal Alton states that the school committee has raised a substantial amount towards expenses, and that the Band Council has been generous. The children themselves are raising money through individual projects.

Ontario Exhibit Ready for Show

MONTREAL (CP) — The $8,500,000 Ontario exhibit at Expo 67 is "ready for business."

Stanley J. Randall, minister of economics and development, told newspaper men Monday the Ontario pavilion, housing 17 bilingual exhibits, will be ready today—three days before the official opening Thursday.

Workmen still were putting finishing touches to the two-storey structure, topped by a teal-blue roof that appears pierced by numerous spearlike supports.

Pearson Afraid Of Sectionalism

QUEBEC (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson warned Monday night against "a sectionalism that will destroy us and lead to our absorption."

The warning came in a philosophical and otherwise optimistic speech about Canada's future to the national centennial conference.

"If we can't be strong in our unity in this country what hope is there for the world," the prime minister said emotionally at another point.

"Let's start at home."

At the head table beside him were Premier Daniel Johnson of Quebec, former Prime Ministers Louis St. Laurent and Lester Pearson, federal cabinet members, Manpower Minister Marchand, his Quebec lieutenant, State Secretary Judy LaMarsh and Labor Minister Nicholson.

Mr. Pearson dwelt on the theme of unity in diversity.

He said he hopes Canada will some day become truly bilingual from coast to coast, by desire rather than decree.

In a speech on "the intangibles of nationhood," he said he dreams of a country where the individual is not forced to shape himself to economic or political systems.

Adult Training Students May Double

OTTAWA (CP)—The government hopes the number of Canadians taking adult training for new jobs will double this year and grow substantially in the future, John Munro (L—Hamilton East) said in the Commons Monday night.

Mr. Munro, parliamentary secretary to Manpower Minister Marchand, opened debate on second reading or approval in principle of a government bill widening and supplementing federal government help to trades training schools and students.

He said $250,000,000 may be spent on the program, which will pay allowances of $35 to $90 a week for workers taking courses.

There were 63,716 workers enrolled in 288 publicly-operated vocational and trades centres at the start of this year. The government hopes the number of students will rise to 120,000 this year and that eventually, five per cent of the labor force or about 320,000, will be trained each year.

Mr. Munro said the government's measure is not a federal invasion of provincial responsibility in the field of education. The federal government will simply buy training for workers, providing them with an income and paying part of provincial expenses.

He emphasized the program is not a cultural development one, or help for university students. Its emphasis is on technical skills and trades training.

To qualify, a person must have been in the labor force for three years—or one year, if he has dependents — and want trades training to improve his employment possibilities. There are more workers needing training this year than the system will be able to handle, and priority will be given to unemployed workers lacking skills, whose incomes can be substantially improved by training.

The federal government will also make loans to provinces to construct new trades schools and help them establish research and development programs for adult education.

Ontario Official Critical

TORONTO (CP) — The proposed federal "manpower policies will cripple Ontario's apprenticeship and on - the - job training programs, an official of the provincial labor department said Monday.

Michael Warren said in an interview that the new Adult Occupational Training Act, to be introduced for second reading in the House of Commons today, would remove the federal government from responsibility for on-the-job training.

U.S.-Bonn Accord On A-Arms Likely

BONN (Reuters) — President Johnson said today, after two hours of talks with Chancellor Kurt George Kiesinger, that he is confident that differences between Bonn and Washington will be overcome. Johnson is most interested in winning German support for an early nuclear nonproliferation agreement.

The president and the chancellor stood like by side in the gardens of the Rhineside chancellery as they spoke to reporters after the talks. Johnson then left for Washington by plane.

Johnson said that when the chancellor came to Washington they would review in depth the various topics of interest to both governments.

The president said he had invited Kiesinger to visit Washington, but no firm date had been fixed.

President Johnson, ending his three - day visit to Bonn for Tuesday's state funeral for former chancellor Konrad Adenauer, said no hard or fast decisions were made at today's talks.

The U.S. and West German leaders spent most of the time closeted together in Kiesinger's bungalow in the grounds of the chancellery. State Secretary Dean Rusk held parallel discussions with Foreign Minister Willy Brandt in the main building.

The four main points in today's talks were the proposed East-West treaty to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons; American troop strength in Europe; international monetary reform and the Kennedy Round tariff-cutting talks.

The president's talks with Chancellor Kiesinger come at a time of strain in German-American relations.

There is an under-lying fear here that, in the American search for accord with the Soviet Union, a deal could be made to the detriment of European and German interests. The chancellor has several times said openly that German and American interests no longer necessarily coincide as they did at the height of the cold war.

Bombs Fall Ever Faster

WASHINGTON (AP) — The tactic is bomb, bomb, bomb — and U.S. planes are doing it over North and South Vietnam at the incredible rate of more than 3,000 pounds a minute around the clock.

In March, American planes unleashed 77,000 tons of bombs — a one-month record for the war.

This total is just short of the 80,000 tons dropped in Europe during the average month of the peak of bombing in the Second World War.

With the present intensification of raids over the North and the widening of the approved target list, the April tonnage seems likely to exceed the Second World War rate.

The 77,000 tons in March compares with 29,000 tons a month dropped against the Japanese at the height of wartime operations in the Pacific, and with 17,000 tons a month dropped during the Korean War.

In various configurations and sizes bombs are hitting virtually anything associated with Viet Cong operations.

This includes roads, highways, bridges, railways, trucks, boats, barges, fuel tanks, major power plants and MIG airfields.

"See you at the next funeral!"

Greek King Meets Junta

ATHENS (AP) — King Constantine met today with members of Greece's new military government in his royal palace in downtown Athens.

The monarch drove to the meeting from Tatoi Palace in the suburbs. This fact appeared to discredit reports that the military leaders who took over Friday were holding him a virtual prisoner there.

The meeting with the new government was the strongest evidence yet that Constantine was assuming to the army takeover.

Speculation had grown that the king was opposed to the power seizure, although launched in his name, and was resisting the military's pressure to lend his personal sanction.

Over Half Dead In Hanoi Raid Are Children

This dispatch was filed to The Associated Press by Wilfred Burchett, an Australian writer who has had close connections with the Communists in Vietnam, Korea and Germany.

By WILFRED BURCHETT

HANOI, North Vietnam (AP) Last Thursday's U.S. air raid on Haiphong was officially described here as an "extremely serious new step in escalation."

The raid was the heaviest yet against the major city. Haiphong Mayor Le Duc Thing told me photos came in two types from U.S. 7th Fleet carriers only: 30 miles offshore.

Thirty-seven A-4Cs and A-3Js —the latter claimed to be a new navy plane—attacked 20 industrial targets and built-up areas in a 40-minute action between 10 and 11 a.m. A second wave at 2:15 p.m. hit the same targets in a fiercer, longer attack and caused casualties among rescue workers.

Mayor Thing claimed 44 were killed and 117 injured by the first count. I visited the Czech-Vietnam Friendship Hospital, the city's biggest, and counted 75 wounded. Dr. Nguyen Ming Tam, the director, said 13 others died en route to the hospital or immediately after admittance.

Of the total dead, 25 were children under 13 years of age. Of the wounded 1 counted, 65 were women and children, mostly wounded by pellets from baseball - shaped fragmentation bombs.

The mayor said at least 70 1,000- and 2,000-pounders were dropped with 50 "mother" munitions each of which discharges 300 pellet-filled fragmentation bombs. Twenty bullpup missiles and hundreds of rockets were fired.

The destruction was considerable. A Saigon communique stated two power stations were the main targets and that reconnaissance planes reported Haiphong was in total darkness after the raid.

This was incorrect. Street and house lighting was normal with no restrictions when I visited Haiphong a few hours after the raid. The only blackouts that night and the following night were when alerts sounded the approach of reconnaissance planes.

A large enamelware plant I visited was 100 - per - cent destroyed. Food - processing and rice-husking plants were damaged and much housing in the two of the city's six wards I visited also was burned out, including a big technical training school.

I didn't visit the power plants, but the destruction of the urban plants was unlikely to affect industry decisively due to the system of dispersal and improvisation. I watched a small engineering plant where power was artificially cut off. Within 12 minutes, lathes, planers, borers and polishing machines had been switched to emergency foot-treadle devices and production continued through changed gear relationships.

U.S. Hits Railway To Hanoi

SAIGON (CP) — U.S. fighter-bombers based in Thailand bombed the Hanoi rail and highway bridge, four miles from the centre of the North Vietnamese capital, a U.S. military spokesman said.

The spokesman said the bridge is the only route into Hanoi for rail traffic from the north.

It was the third consecutive day of U.S. raids on key targets in the Hanoi-Haiphong hearland of North Vietnam.

U.S. spokesmen said the bridge was a steel and concrete structure 540 feet long and 30 feet wide with five spans. They said the centre span was movable to allow passage of ships through the Dea Rapides Canal, the major water route between the North Vietnamese capital and the Port of Haiphong.

Flights of U.S. Air Force F - 105 Thunderchief swept through heavy anti-aircraft and missile fire to blast the bridge.

The Soviet news agency Tass, in a dispatch from Hanoi, said U.S. planes bombed the northern suburbs of Hanoi today and that an aircraft missile shot down one American plane. It also said Radio Haiphong reported "the port's defenders" shot down four American planes and one helicopter which tried to rescue pilots who had ejected.

Tass correspondent E. Kobelev in Hanoi said the North Vietnamese capital had three air raid alerts today and the air was filled with the roar of jet engines and artillery.

Napanee Hospital Board Head Backs Staff, Quits

NAPANEE — The chairman of the Lennox and Addington County General Hospital board of governors has resigned because of disagreement with policies of the hospital's administrator.

The resignation of Fred Creighton, first board chairman of the year-old hospital and a moving force in its foundation, is linked to an administrative controversy which saw dismissal of three senior nurses earlier this month.

The former chairman remains a board member.

Mr. Creighton's act was the latest move in a dispute made a public issue Saturday with the resignation of Violet Camblin, director of nursing.

The chairman tendered his resignation at a board meeting Monday night and his decision was announced yesterday.

A brief formal announcement said Mr. Creighton resigned "due to the pressure of municipal business and his health."

However, today Mr. Creighton told The Intelligencer the main motive was his disagreement with decisions made by hospital administrator, James Hepburn.

He linked his decision to the administrative controversy involving the director of nursing and Mr. Hepburn and the three senior nurses fired earlier this month.

He said he felt the three nurses were supported in their arguments by 90 per cent of the hospital staff.

Resignations were tendered in February by Mrs. Betty Hetman, a nursing supervisor; Mrs. Roy Harkman, chief operating room nurse, and Mrs. John Glenn, emergency department head nurse.

April 3 they were dismissed by Mr. Hepburn with full pay to the effective date of their resignations.

Mr. Creighton said one of the main areas of controversy is disagreement between the director of nursing and senior nursing staff.

When the three head nurses were dismissed the board backed Mr. Hepburn "because we had to stick behind our administrator."

"On the other hand," he added "there's always two sides to a story. I got their (the nurses') version and I had to side with the staff.

"I would say 90 per cent of the employees were along with these three nurses."

Mr. Creighton said he fought for "a long time" to have the nurses brought before the board to tell their story in the dispute.

"I was unable to impress them (the board) with seriousness of the situation."

Mr. Creighton refused to give any details on the controversy.

"I don't like to comment on it in detail right now. I've done my best to work out these problems and I thought it best I should get out and let some one else take over."

He said he had tendered his resignation at a meeting earlier this month but it had not been accepted.

The situation, he added, had been affecting his health.

However, Monday night he

Metro Cannot Meet Teachers' Demands

TORONTO (CP)—There is no hope of meeting Metropolitan Toronto teachers' salary demands, the chairman of the municipalities school board said Tuesday night.

Barry Lowes, after an hour-long discussion of salaries by the board, said any request from the Toronto board of education to the Metro board for more money for its 1,900 high school teachers would be rejected.

The Toronto board is being pressed by the teachers to provide an increase retroactive to Jan. 1, but the board's last offer was to make raises effective in September, as has been done in recent years.

Toronto teachers now make between $5,400 and $11,100 a year. The Toronto board offered raises which would pay a starting teacher $6,100 and make the top category maximum $13,100.

Hees Sees Slump If Tax Up

MONTREAL (CP) — George Hees, a candidate for the leadership of the Progressive Conservative party, predicted Tuesday night there will be a downside in Canadian business if taxes are increased when the next budget is brought down.

He said increased taxes to pay for an anticipated $1,200,000,000 increase in federal government spending will be passed on to the consumer and will price Canada's manufactured goods out of both the home and export markets.

Grieving Russians Honor Cosmonaut

MOSCOW (Reuters)—A grieving Russia today honored spaceman Vladimir Komarov with a hero's funeral in Red Square.

Thousands of Russians crowded into the big square to make their last farewells on the spot where Komarov would have been given a triumphal welcome on the day flight had ended successfully.

The 40-year-old flyer was the victim of the world's first space catastrophe when his Soyuz 1 spaceship plunged to earth Monday with its parachute crumpled by tangled strings.

The Soviet Union disclosed that Soyuz 1 had been down before without a man on board.

Mstislav Keldysh, president of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, said in a funeral oration that Komarov took up the Soyuz 1 Sunday "following its unmanned flights."

At least one more cosmonaut was ready for launching aboard a second spaceship when the flight of Komarov was cut short, informed sources said today.

They said Valery Bykovsky, who spent five days in orbit in 1963, was due to be blasted-off at about the time Komarov crashed.

The sources said there were indications that Bykovsky and one or two more cosmonauts were intended to link up in a rendezvous with Komarov's ship.

It had been generally expected that a second spaceship would be launched about 24 hours after Komarov's flight, which started at dawn Sunday.

When Komarov was launched there were reports that he was the pathfinder for an elaborate group flight likely to involve several spaceships and five or more cosmonauts.

Usually well-informed sources predicted today that the disaster would lead to only a brief pause in the Soviet space program, and that another launch-

Tax Jump for Thurlow Ratepayers

Increased educational costs together with a five-mill hike in the county rate will result in sizable mill rate increases this year for Thurlow township taxpayers.

The increase for public school supporters is 12.43 mills for residential and farm properties, and 13.36 mills for commercial and industrial properties.

Increases for separate school supporters are about the same depending on which school the taxpayers supports.

The over-all mill rate this year for public school supporters is 73.51 mills for residential properties and 88.39 for commercial and industrial properties.

Compared with 1966 rates the increase amounts to 19.7 per cent for residential and farm properties, and 21.39 per cent for commercial and industrial properties.

Township clerk treasurer Earl DeRoe reports that the budget for general township purposes is up but due to an increase in the provincial unconditional grants, the 1967 rate for this purpose is increased only slightly from 13.62 to 13.18 mills for residential and farm properties.

However, commercial and industrial properties do not share in the unconditional grant and the rate here has been increased from 17.64 to 21.10 mills this year.

The demand to the township for county purposes this year was increased by approximately $34,000 and the county rate has been increased by 8.08 mills, from 22.50 mills last year to 27.50 mills this year.

The 1967 requisition from the Bay of Quinte District High School Board was increased by $30,228 this year forcing a rate increase of 4.36 mills for residential and farm properties and 4.85 for commercial and industrial. The respective rates this year are 20.69 mills and 22.77 mills.

The Public school requisition to the township is up by $20,000 resulting in rate increases of 2.82 for residential and farm and 3.13 for commercial and industrial properties. The rates are 14.43 mills for residential and farm and 16.04 for commercial and industrial.

Vice Principal For High School Is Appointed

PICTON (Staff) — Officials at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute report they have hired a new vice-principal to succeed George Ekins who is leaving with his wife to teach in Tanzania, Africa, next term.

The new vice principal is Edward A. Brown, a department head presently engaged in a Chatham high school.

Mr. Brown will commence his duties here in September. The hiring of Mr. Brown fills the ranks of the school's administrative staff for the next year in the wake of resignations by Principal J. H. Syrett and vice-principal Elson.

Beard Judging Now Set for June 30th

TRENTON — Good news for the barbers. The date for the judging of beards in Trenton has been set forward from August 7 to June 30.

The prizes will be awarded at the Canadian Forces' Base "Welcome Trenton Citizens Night".

"Those participants who have registered who have found it necessary to withdraw temporarily from the contest need not re-register, but will have two months to establish a suitable growth for judging," Robert Carleton of the Centennial Committee said yesterday. (Let's put it this way . . . their wives made them shave it off last week).

A great deal of fun is promised for judging evening . . . there will be no hard feelings, said chairman Robert Carleton, "democratees that we are a country of many beliefs, and that by working together we can provide for some as our forefathers did in bygone years."

Parks director Lloyd Syer and gardener Ed Burleigh trade ideas on redevelopment designs for Corby Park . . . scheduled for face-lifted opening this summer.

Bed of Roses

Park Gets Face-lifting

The flowers that bloom in the spring this year will fast fade in memory by June if the garden plots patterned by Lloyd Syer plan out.

In fact, by mid-summer, everything should be coming up roses, for the public viewing pleasure of Bellevillians.

As city parks director, Lloyd this year also qualifies for tribute as the Quinte district's biggest gardener.

The emphasis this Centennial Year is turning more on beautification of existing green areas and the program's showpiece is now under redevelopment in Corby Park.

Despite its size, the pocket-size piece of land — only about a square acre in extent—has always been a city prize of what municipal planners call "passive park area."

This means it was intended for no unsightly function, but serves as retreat for citizens seeking cool and quiet on its tree-shaded benches.

Its location, a city-block wide between Queen and East Bridge streets, was considered ideal for the purpose when deeded the city by the Corby family in the 1900s.

For more than 60 years the little green haven remained unchanged — until the Centennial spirit inspired redevelopment.

Now, Lloyd Syer is directing a face-lifting program which also puts a new beauty spot on the complexion of city park programs.

Underway this week it calls for turning the little cube of green into a bower blooming with 1,600 roses.

Coupled to new plans for pathways, lights and shrubbery, with a lighted fountain to give added sparkle, the new Corby Park promises to be a prime public attraction at its official opening June 29.

In all, close to 60 different varieties of roses have been selected to ensure the showpiece shapes up to parks commission expectations, says Mr. Syer.

Making the project possible is the fact the district industry founded by the original park donors—Corby Distillery—is helping out with costs.

The scheme may be a prototype that could eventually spread throughout the city, Mr. Syer says hopefully.

"This is a start, although we need more of these areas in the city," he says, "it would be nice if we could have one downtown. But, I think, gradually it'll come. So far we've been mostly concerned with recreation. But we also need passive park areas."

Youth Concert Great Success

PICTON (STAFF) — Officials of the Picton Junior Band report that Monday night's Youth Concert was a great success.

A large audience of an estimated 500 attended the concert which was held in the auditorium of Prince Edward Collegiate. A total of 11 children participated in the program, including East Junior band, St. Gregory's Junior Choir and the Picton United Church Hand Bell Choir.

Department Will Increase Park Areas

PICTON (Staff) — The advent of the four-day work week has initiated a department of Lands and Forests drive to accommodate a vast increase of visitors to park areas.

Harold Cantelon, District Forester, told Kiwanians here this week the department hopes to fill the coming need with a series of 20-year plans.

Steps have already been taken towards expansion of existing parks through walking trails, newly opened water access areas and a park interpretation program. Sites have been made available for archeological expeditions by legitimate students of the Canadian Indian's past.

Wilderness areas have been designated for visitors with a yen for "roughing it." These areas will be left unimproved in as natural a state as possible.

Mr. Cantelon said plans have also made to accommodate an interest in camping by teenagers. Under pressure of school most of the young campers are taking more and more to the woods during summer vacations and are now posing a minor problem through their youthful capers.

Standard Trust Buys Armouries From Council

PICTON (STAFF) — The Picton Armouries, which was purchased last year from Crown Assets (Department of National Defence) has been sold. It was announced this week that the purchaser of the building is Standard Trust Co. of Toronto.

In confirming this sale yesterday Mayor H. J. McMichael said that he felt "this is a step in the right direction for everyone concerned". The mayor has promised to release details of future plans for the building as soon as possible. It is a possibility that the armouries may be used for industrial purposes — by an industry which will fit into the general location in town. Mayor McFarland had originally turned the "old home" of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment into town offices and a recreation centre. These plans failed to materialize although a good number of public events have been held there recently.

Lodges Will Provide Park Fountain

TRENTON — An oft - forgotten Centennial theme, "co - operation" will be brought to the fore by Trenton's various lodges as they unite to provide a Centennial fountain for Centennial Park.

"The project," says Centennial chairman Robert Carleton, "demonstrates that we are a country of many beliefs, and that by working together we can provide for some as our forefathers did in bygone years."

Pool to Open May 24

TRENTON—The official date for the opening of the United Service Clubs' swimming pool was announced yesterday as May 24 by Douglas Whitley, finance chairman with the Trenton school board.

The opening date of April 1 was re-scheduled when the Trenton health board refused to approve the project unless the sides of the pool were sloped sufficiently to avoid "splash-back" from the runway back into the pool. This situation has now been corrected, and workmen are painting the walls of the building.

Tractor Tips, Woman Killed

PICTON (Staff) — A 22-year-old mother of two was instantly killed Tuesday afternoon near her home at R.R. 2 Milford in a freak tractor accident.

Dead is Mrs. Katherine Way who was assisting her husband Laverne, when his tractor became stuck in the soft ground. On the second tractor, Mrs. Way was trying to pull him out when the tractor she was driving flipped over pinning her beneath the machine.

The accident occurred about 3.30 p.m. a few miles away from their home which is located only a short distance from the village of Milford.

Surviving are her husband Laverne, an eight-year old son, Blaine Allan and a five-year-old daughter Brenda Ann. The Way's were ardent horse fanciers and frequently exhibited their palomino horses at county fairs and were well known throughout Eastern Ontario.

Local Parks Board Pondering Use for Old House on Cannifton Road Riverside Property

Riverside Property to Have Dual Use as Park And Dam Site

If present plans of the city of Belleville and the Moira River Conservation Authority are carried through, the former Thomas A. Orr property on Cannifton road just north of the old Lazier's dam will have a dual use.

The property will form part of a new riverside park in the north end of the city and will also see use as the site for a proposed seasonal dam expected to be constructed this fall.

The city started its north Belleville riverside park development last year with the purchase and development of the former Fry property.

This area has now been cleaned up and following placement of some topsoil it was seeded last fall. An artificial creek tapped from the main stream of the Moira River, runs through the park area and will add considerably to its appeal.

The city recently purchased the Orr property to the south and Parks Board Chairman Alderman Donald Williams says adjacent properties will eventually be acquired to make a continuous park development along the river.

Cost of the property was $17,000.

When the first of several seasonal dams was proposed for construction the site considered was on Hydro property midway between the Orr and the Fry properties.

Now an engineer's study has shown that the Orr property would provide a more suitable site for the dam.

Arrangements have been made for the sale of the new city-owned Orr property to the Moira River Conservation Authority on the understanding that the authority will obtain a 75 per cent provincial grant on the cost.

The conservation authority will enter into an agreement with the city whereby the city will have permanent use of the property. The city will assume full financial responsibility for park development and maintenance costs.

As a member of the Moira River Conservation Authority, the city would pay 95 per cent of the net authority cost in purchasing the property from the city i.e. 95 per cent of 25 per cent.

City council this week approved the sale of the property to the authority, but Ald. Dr. J. Russell Scott claims the city should not have to assume park development costs.

He claims this was not the policy when the authority developed parks in Madoc, Hungerford and Elzevir townships. He said the authority in each case developed the parks with authority funds.

However, he said the sale of the park property to the authority was a "step in the right direction."

Ald. Donald Joss replied that the Cannifton Road riverside park was actually a city park and it was authority policy that the benefiting municipality paid 95 per cent of the authority's cost.

Situated on the old Orr property is a substantial stone house which has considerable historic value.

The old stone residence, said once used by the owners of a mill at Lazier's Dam, is still in good condition but city and park authorities haven't decided to what use it might be put.

Suggestions for its use range all the way from a tourist information booth to storage for park equipment.

Put Pressure For Safety On Member

Foxboro residents are putting the pressure on for safety.

Yesterday, Mrs. Don McKeown, treasurer for the Foxboro United Church Women, sent petitions carrying about 200 names to MPP Clarke Rollins.

The United Church Women had decided to take action to get a flashing red light at the intersection of Highway 14 and the 5th concession after the fatal accident there recently.

Mrs. McKeown said that petitions were put in eight places of business in Foxboro.

She said that a man told the UCW six weeks ago that Mr. Rollins was in the process of going through the red tape to get a flashing red light installed. But Mrs. McKeown noted that there were quite a few accidents at Highway 14 and 62 before anything was done.

"It's not just for ourselves or our children, but for strangers too," Mrs. McKeown added.

Napanee Hospital

told the board "I couldn't stay because I disagreed with the administrator."

Mr. Creighton said he believed a meeting was now in the offing between the three nurses, Mr. Hepburn and board secretary Reg. Chapman, acting as temporary chairman for the governors.

"I wish we could have had it weeks ago," said the former chairman.

As a spokesman for the three dismissed nurses, Mrs. Markman today had no comment on the latest developments in the issue.

"It's the same for all three of us. We've never made any statements at all," she said.

Mrs. Markman was assistant to the nursing director, Miss Cambiln, for about seven months after the hospital opened in March, 1966, before she transferred to operating room supervisor.

Asked if there was a meeting pending between the three nurses and administration representatives, Mrs. Markman said they "had heard it mentioned."

Mr. Hepburn, also with the hospital as administrator since its recent foundation, today also had a "no-comment" response to questions on the situation.

The announcement of Mr. Creighton's resignation made by board also tersely referred to the controversy:

"Over the past short period of time, there have been administrative problems at the hospital. These problems have been considered by the hospital board and corrective steps are being taken which, it is believed, will lead to satisfactory solutions to the problems."

"The resignations received from a number of senior nurses have been accepted with regret by the hospital, and the board believes that no criticism or adverse comment should be attached to these resignations.

"The Board also wishes to make it clear that it believes the quality of patient care in the hospital has not been affected . . . by the recent staff changes."

Canada, U.S. Neighbors Says Kiwanis Speaker

"Canada and the United States have many similarities," L. G. Morlock, president of the Quinte Kiwanis Club said yesterday to the Belleville Kiwanis Club. This week is Canada - United States Goodwill Week.

"We are geographically neighbors. We both have a mixture of races. We are both democracies. We have the same people and the same enjoyments."

"But they have many differences as well. Our populations are different. The United States has stronger economic influence. Canada has more resources while the U.S. is highly industrialized."

But Mr. Morlock felt there were problems between the two countries. "Prejudices are the basis for all these problems, prejudices caused by ignorance and competition."

As solutions Mr. Morlock said we would have to "be more objective in our attitude. We should work together."

However he gave the Kiwanians inspiration. "We have had no antagonism for 150 years. We cross each other's borders at will. We have no restrictions except trade agreements on the border. There is no relationship in the world as good as ours."

"But," he said, "the Kiwanis clubs can improve the relationship even more."

Goodwill Week To Be Observed By Kiwanians

John Trafford, president of the Kiwanis Club announced today that the 44th annual Canada - United States Goodwill Week is scheduled for April 23-29.

April 28, which falls within that period, is the 150th anniversary of the signing of the Rush-Bagot Agreement, a treaty of friendship that resulted in the demilitarization of the 3,000 mile common border between the two countries. This is the only document there is relative to the border.

This year, 1967, is the 50th anniversary of the first Kiwanis Club in Canada. "It is interesting to note," Mr. Trafford said, "that Kiwanis has existed in Canada for exactly half of Canada's own life as a nation."

Canada-U.S. Goodwill Week is traditionally marked by across-the-border visits by Kiwanis Clubs, telephoned greetings between clubs, joint meeting time, and the exchange of messages and gifts.

Union Takes Issue With Board Statement

Spokesmen for Local 1022 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees have taken issue with the Belleville Public School Board on a statement yesterday that the board has no immediate intention of contracting out janitorial services.

Monday night union members voted to take strike action if necessary in support of demands for a no contracting out clause in their working agreement now under negotiation.

Members of Local 1022 provide janitorial services at schools owned by the Belleville Public School Board.

A school board official said yesterday however, that this was not an issue as the board had no immediate intention of contracting out janitorial services.

In support of a claim that the board had failed to bargain in good faith, the union referred to a board recommendation last October where members discussed contract caretaking and voted to call tenders for caretaking at one school on a trial basis.

School board officials say that investigation was made and that tenders were called for contract caretaking.

As part of the investigation specifications and estimated costs were prepared by a firm in the caretaking business, but no further action was taken by the school board.

However, in view of the uncertainty of future school needs and the unknown economic situation with which the board could be faced, the board would not reserve the right to implement such changes of procedure or policy which will be consistent with the board's obligations and responsibility to the city of Belleville and to the children for whom the system exists.

The Board expresses every confidence employees will continue to maintain the schools in such a manner as will make other means of maintenance such as contract caretaking, unnecessary.

CNR to Put Antenna On City Water Tower

It was announced yesterday that there will be a Canadian National Railway antenna on the top of the Belleville water tower.

The antenna will increase the adequacy of radio communication between the engines and the railway station.

The city has already approved the idea and the CNR and the Public Utilities have reached an agreement. All that remains is the signing of the agreement.

Negroes in News

News reports of the activities of Negroes in the United States lay heavy emphasis on the less attractive aspects of that element of U.S. society.

Racial violence, rioting in the streets, civil rights marches, acts of homicide involving Negroes — these and other facets of Negro society distract us from the fact there are thousands among them who live useful, happy and progressive lives. These are people who would be a credit to any society.

In Viet Nam large numbers of Negro GIs are fighting and dying alongside white Americans. There are regiments of Negroes. Proportionately more Negroes in the field on a population basis than white troops. And more of them sign on for further terms in the armed services. One reason for this ironically, is the fact the services provide them with a degree of security and purpose they would not find in civilian life. And in a conflict such as Viet Nam the blood shed by both white and black men is the same colour.

These thoughts arise from remarks made by delegates to the recent convention of the American Society of Newspaper Editors. Floyd McKissick, national director of the Congress of Racial Equality, charged U.S. newspapers ignore the news and needs of Negroes in their cities unless one Negro attacks another or utters radical or violent statements.

Newspaper treatment for the words of Negro spokesmen which are rational and earnest, he said, is "a total blackout. . ."

It is true the Negro problem is often cloaked in distortion and hysteria where the news media are concerned. A balanced picture of the Negro is difficult to obtain, other than through Negro newspapers which are unavailable to most people.

Sex Education

For all their long history and latter-day sophistication, men and women still have no clear idea of how best to impart the basic facts of life to young people.

Sex education in the schools is finding acceptance — but Canadians are by no means unanimous that school is the place for such instruction. Many regard home as the proper environment, and discussion between parents and their offspring the most effective and acceptable medium of expression on the subject.

In any event, the subject is still marked by controversy. In Winnipeg, for example, a resolution dealing with sex at a parent-teacher conference was approved only after a board member resigned and following heated debate.

The occasion was the annual meeting of the Home and School and Parent-Teacher Federation of Manitoba and the resignation that of Mrs. Margaret Annett. Mrs. Annett said a pilot program of sex education was already in being. She complained the two would conflict. The pilot program calls for teaching of sexual anatomy in Grades 5 and 6 when teachers are available and where feasible. It has been in operation in some schools since last September.

The new program on the other hand calls for a study by the health education departments into "family life education, including sex education and human relations, incorporated into the school curriculum, to be developed from Grade 1 through Grade 12."

An interesting comment from Mrs. Michael Dwojack who said sex education in schools would "give away the birthright of this generation and future generations." She said all racial, political and religious freedoms had been lost in the past by abdication of responsibility for recognizing the sanctity of the home.

"We have no right to ask educators to carry our burden," she said. Well some educators would agree. But what happens when parents fail to live up to their responsibilities? It is through ignorance of the facts parents should take it upon themselves to impart to their children the knowledge of the latter find themselves in trouble, and more and more children being born out of wedlock and having no prospect of a satisfactory upbringing other than through adoption.

Thus, if parents don't accept their responsibility, and the schools are reluctant to do so, who is left? The medical profession perhaps — say the school doctor?

One way or another there is a definite need for information and enlightenment on sex education where the young are concerned. In eastern Canada a body called the Institute of Sexology has been established. Its president is Dr. Frank Macmeiner of Dunkleek Hill and last weekend some 40 high school teachers and social workers from Ottawa and western Quebec met there for the second of a series of seminars.

According to Dr. Manquvrier, "there is far too much improper sex education in our schools and we are attempting to counteract it." Note the emphasis on proper information on the subject — whether it is given at home or in the school.

Progress of U. S. and Soviet Space Missions Checked

By ARCH McKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — Tragedy has touched the last-lap efforts of both the U.S. and the Soviet Union to put men on the moon.

But nobody expects either to quit although the pace has been slowed and critics of the high cost—in money and perhaps in more lives—given more ammunition.

The New York Times for example, even before the Soviet mishap, Monday, commented that the successful landing of Explorer III on the moon shows men are not needed in initial space exploration and "that aside from the propaganda and prestige purposes, there is no reason for them to endanger brave men's lives."

The U.S., still grieving for the three astronauts killed Jan. 27 in a space-test inferno, quickly extended sympathy on the delayed announcement that cosmonaut Vladimir Komarov was killed when his returning space vehicle plunged more than four miles trailing a fouled parachute.

The U.S. mishap, whose cause never may be pinpointed, has stalled the $25,000,000,000 Apollo program, successor to the Mercury and Gemini series. Apollo was aimed at putting American men on the moon by "what seems now to be the impossible target of 1970.

Major revisions may be needed for the Apollo space cabin. The main contractor, North American Aviation Inc., as well as the National Aeronautics and Space Administration itself, is being indicted for sloppy safety and quality - inspection procedures and design flaws.

The impact on the Russian program is cloaked by the few facts made known about this first test for new heavier equipment—the first Russian flight in 18 months.

The gap is comparable to the 22 months before the U.S. got its Gemini teams off the ground after Mercury.

There is some belief here the Komarov flight had problems aloft the way it also suggested that Komarov was landed prematurely because a companion space shot failed.

The Soviets have not yet announced in space as the U.S. did in the Gemini series. It has been assumed they are planning something spectacular for the Nov. 7 celebration of their 50th anniversary.

Until 1967, both space powers have been blessed with good fortune, in publicized experiences at least.

It was known that one of the last Soviet manned flights should not, however, be viewed as a giant eraser to wipe clean the slate of the habitual criminal.

Crimes should remain on record for the protection and reproof of courts should the need arise, but a past mistake should not bar a man from serving in his chosen field. Some safeguards should be incorporated into the audit which would provide courts with information on former offenders but at the same time, would not prevent the offender from going about freely in public once his debt to society had been paid and he had learned to live within the law.

However, it is a sad thing that a Member of Parliament first had to catch his tail in the crack before the Government would consider the need for replacing this broken bench of unfair legislation.

Employment Problem

Prison Records Haunt Many

Editor,
The Intelligencer,
Solicitor-General Pennell has said he is actively considering giving priority to the efforts being made to pass legislation which would give a clean sheet to persons with past criminal records who have successfully "gone straight" over the years.

This proposal is long overdue, and for those persons who have been denied certain jobs and positions because of a teenage mistake which resulted in a criminal record, the change cannot come too soon. However, the rehabilitation should be an established fact — proven by the efforts made by the offender to live down his past mistakes and his success in living within the law and gaining the respect of his fellow beings.

It does not necessarily follow, that because a man had a teenage record, he is of the same mind at age 35 with a wife and a couple of children dependent on him as he was at age 17 when everything was a bash and no one thought of tomorrow or even cared about today.

What he looked on at that time as mischief, he views with an adult eye as lawlessness and disregard for the rights of other people — he no longer considers it fun to push 10 kids in an old car and hold drag races; he does not think it smart to whistle at girls and to talk loudly or even profanely to show how adult he is. Nor does he consider crime an easy way of attaining such that he desires at little effort to himself. His whole outlook is different. But his record from his early teens stands firmly blocking the way to advancement in many careers. Indeed, it often is the chain lock on the door to employment.

The bill under consideration should be carefully studied and perused by all those who have a stake in the matter, for a new bend of state would be installed, the powers he would be able to exercise, his relationship to Parliament, and the safeguards that would be necessary.

There is no shortage of questions on this topic. It's answers that are hard to come by.

Confucius Remembered

National Geographic

The selected works of Mao Tse-tung may be a current best seller in Communist China, but Confucius will doubtless have the last say.

For more than 2,000 years, ideas formulated by China's great philosopher-teacher have endured and profoundly influenced his homeland. As a youngster, even Mao studied the Confucian classics.

Confucius has fallen from official favor, however. Red Guard youths recently razed a shrine honoring Confucius' honor at his birthplace centuries ago; his works have been burned and condemned. As Confucius himself said: "An oppressive government is more to be feared than a tiger."

Confucius' birthplace — the town of Ch'ufou in northern China's Shantung province — was a stronghold of ancient Chinese philosophy. In the master's time, pilgrims from Ch'ufou solemnly ascended the sacred mountain T'ai Shan only a few miles away. The mountain path was lined with shrines representing every major Chinese faith of the time.

Confucius (551 B.C.-479 B.C.) devoted his long life to mankind. He dreamed of a society in which "all men could live and work in harmony. He promulgated his own golden rule: "What you do not want done to yourself, do not do to others."

As a teacher, Confucius accepted the humblest and poorest students, provided they showed promise. His personality and practical wisdom attracted the most fervent disciples. One disciple described him as "gentle but dignified, austere yet not harsh, polite and completely at ease." Confucius' followers believed that since the beginning of the human race, there had never been another man like the master.

Would It Work?

Dr. Forsey Probes Republicanism Issue

Globe and Mail

Republicanism (or Canada whether creeping, crawling, or bounding, occasionally rears its head as a topic for discussion, stimulated by celebration of the 100th anniversary of Confederation (or Canada as a natural occasion for taking stock) and by the appointment of a new Governor-General. The subject has engaged the attention of Eugene Forsey, director of special studies for the Canadian Labor Congress, and one of the distinguished contributors of background papers to the Ontario Advisory Committee on Confederation.

In the first volume of the committee's report most of the papers are concerned with aspects of the present Constitution — the process by which it might be amended, the provinces and international agreements, the future of the Supreme Court, and so on. One of Dr. Forsey's papers, however, deals with the matter of the constitutional monarchy and the alternatives.

He dismisses, to begin with, the possibility of a Canadian province becoming a republic without ceasing to be part of the one political nation, Canada. To propose this is to propose secession, separatism, total independence for that province, he says. If the people of any province favor republicanism, but want to remain part of Canada, the only thing they can do is to try to make Canada a republic.

Earlier in his examination of such a proposal, Dr. Forsey asks a question which the Globe and Mail has asked in a similar context on other occasions: Why? If we are to throw away the constitutional monarchy for a republic, what blessing will it confer upon us?

Our own quest for a reasoned explanation of the benefits — as distinct from flat assertions that the change would be good for us — has been fruitless, and it is evident that Dr. Forsey has fared no better. He is still asking, however, and to encourage response he has broken the question down into a number of components.

His wonders, for example, why it is so readily assumed by certain Canadians that the people who live in a republic are any how "freer" than those who live in a constitutional monarchy. "It is not obvious that South Africans (especially colored South Africans), or Ghanaians, or Russians, or Chinese, or Hungarians or Egyptians, for example, are even Americans, where had never been another man like the master, have "Dr Forsey concludes."

In a supplementary question, Dr. Forsey lists some 30 states with republican forms of government, and asks which of them Canadian republicans would take for a model. He is also interested to learn how the change would make Canada more "independent," give it greater dignity, or make us — as is frequently suggested — more truly "Canadian."

The last of these claims is probably the strangest. Canada has never been a republic and to become one would be to make a break with things Canadian. As Dr. Forsey points out, "... our monarchy, our British monarchy, our Anglo - French monarchy, our historic monarchy, is part of the Canadian tradition; it is a something alien. It is bone of our bone and flesh of our flesh."

The implications of the familiar argument that this is relevant only to those of British ancestry. Yet it is plain enough that British Canadians got their ideas of constitutional government from Britain. Is society "built" where did the French Canadians get theirs? From France? From Rome? From the Iroquois Nation? No; just as plainly, definitely and unmistakably as the British Canadians, from Britain.

When it comes to the manner in which the new republic would be made to work, the questions arise thick and fast: Would it give a better distribution of legislative powers between the Dominion and the provinces? A better Executive, wiser, stronger and more responsible in public opinion? A better balance between Government and Parliament, or between either and the civil service?

Dr. Forsey examines the proposition like a lawyer. The republic would help solve problems arising out of French Canada's position in Confederation, asking whether it would automatically mean more bilingualism in the trading, administrative and public service, more top jobs for French Canadians in public office or private business, or "special status" for Quebec?

Beyond all this there looms the immensely difficult matter of how a new head of state would be installed, the powers he would be able to exercise, his relationship to Parliament, and the safeguards that would be necessary.

There is no shortage of questions on this topic. It's answers that are hard to come by.

An Affair Of Honor

Peterborough Examiner

A sword duel between two deputies of the French National Assembly, as reported Friday from Paris, underscores that modern politics can be very exciting. At a time when parliamentary parties have poured the cold water of scientifically organized electioneering over us, it is gratifying to see some of the old-style partisan action take such a passionate form. Fisticuffs will no doubt argue that politically inspired duelling cannot be exported. It should, however, be pointed out that we have already acquired one French institution, the guillotine, which has already been put to use in Parliament. If we have found use for the guillotine, why not duelling swords?

It was rather pathetic to see Mr. Hellyer entered his allegations against Admiral Landymore. What made this episode particularly disappointing was the icy calm with which the Admiral responded to Mr. Hellyer's attack.

How much more exciting it would have been if the Admiral had challenged the Minister of Defence to a duel — perhaps with cutlasses in the navy tradition. Instead of the same old tired arguments addressed half-heartedly to the same old tired ears, the House would have rung to the bold clash of burnishing steel. Perhaps when President De Gaulle visits Europe he will enliven the Canadian political scene by giving the Government a set of dueling swords to settle political differences in the proper manner.

Who Needs Winter In Brisbane?

RICHARD J. NEEDHAM

In The Globe and Mail

In this corner the other day, I remarked that if more people you're going on a short trip, or example to Hamilton, they simply yawn, but if you tell them you are going on a long trip, for example to Brisbane, Australia, they turn green with envy.

So they should—says John E. Morgan of Hanover, "when you're not be envious of having an average of over seven hours of sunshine for every day over the past 50 years? When the temperatures range between 70 and 85 in summer, and between 50 and 70 in winter, who cares about missing the winter sports? To have all the modern conveniences fruits in the nearby Granite Belt, and tropical fruits all around you — well."

Carter Report: Great Merit to Gamble of Worst Sort

TORONTO (CP) — Different segments of the Carter report on taxation were described Tuesday as offering everything from great merit to a gamble of the worst type.

The reactions came as 1,700 delegates to the conference of the Canadian Tax Foundation started the first detailed, public study of the 2,800-page report released Feb. 24.

In addition to the two extremes, the report drew plenty of cautious appraisal — that some of it was possibly good, some of it possibly bad and much of it needing prolonged and careful study.

Surprising no one, officials from Canada's mining and petroleum industries swung out at sections of the report dealing with them. The report recommended that these industries lose special tax allowances granted them for years.

The strongest support came for the commission's suggestion that sales tax be applied at the retail instead of federal level.

R. F. Winfield, vice - president of finance for Shell Canada Ltd., told a panel on resource industries that the commission's recommendations relating to the gas and oil industry need "the most exhaustive re-examination."

He praised the report for the clarity of its writing style, then went on to say it relies vital and complex issues and tries to dismiss them in a sentence or two.

The petroleum industry found the commission's references in it were "over - simplified" and the conclusions drawn therefrom sometimes inaccurate or incomplete."

Mr. Winfield rejected the commission's proposal that government subsidiaries replace depletion allowances as a method saying they could "hardly avoid subjectivity and paternalism, reflecting the budget condition of the subsidy agency and perhaps the personal judgment of the administrator."

W. B. Dix, vice - president and treasurer of McIntyre Porcupine Mines Ltd., who said the report is "replete with highly encouraging exploration, socialistic concepts involving revolutionary changes in the philosophy of taxation," listed eight proposals that would adversely affect the mining industry and six that would help it.

He called the recommendation that mines lost their depletion allowances—set at one-third of operating income, same as for oil companies—one of the most serious and adverse proposals.

Mr. Dix also said the commission's suggestion that new mines lose their three-year, tax-free benefit "will reduce the number of new mines brought into production."

He questioned the reports claim that mineral reserves generally appeared to be increasing, adding that in his opinion "Canadian ore reserves for most metals are still quite inadequate to meet the projected demands and requirements both for ourselves and customers throughout the world."

Withdrawing the tax concessions now given mines would hurt Canadian more than foreign countries and "if the government should accept their recommendations it will be a long step backward in Canadian mining history."

On the sales tax question, W. Hugh Flynn, Ontario general manager of Canadian Industries Ltd., said he feels industry will accept shifting the tax to the retail level from the manufacturing.

One unsatisfactory feature of the present system was that the effect of the tax built up as it was passed along through the distribution system.

In addition to helping overcome this, the recommended change would show customers clearly how much tax they were paying and make them more conscious of government spending."

Benefits Tax Questioned

TORONTO (CP) — Recommendations of the Carter commission on taxation to tax non-cash benefits received by workers are open to serious question, John L. Fryer, director of research for the Canadian Labor Congress, said Tuesday.

He told the annual meeting of the Canadian Tax Foundation, holding the first major public study of the 2,800-page report released Feb. 24, that the recommendations could lead to serious administrative and social problems.

Mr. Fryer said the report suggested the recipient of a non-cash benefit has a choice between taking the benefit or the cash—and so should be taxed on either equally.

"In fact, of course, such an alternative does not usually exist, nor am I completely convinced that even if it did it would be desirable.

"Surely considerable administrative and social problems would be created if employees were given the opportunity of opting out of fringe-benefit programs in favor of cash payments"

Investment Programs Would Change

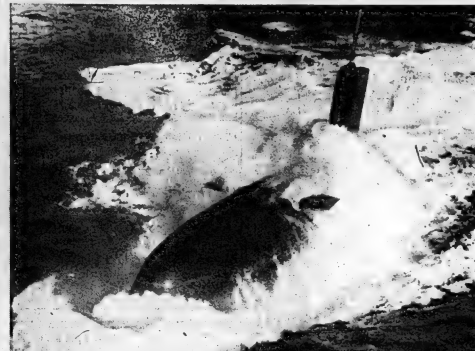
TORONTO (CP)—Officials of Canada's financial industry said Tuesday implementation of the Carter report on taxation would make them change many of their traditional investment programs.

The opinions were expressed at the annual conference of the Canadian Tax Foundation in the first detailed study of the Carter commission's report.

T. A. Hutchison, a Toronto chartered accountant whose firm handles the accounts for a number of chartered banks, said:



"If the integration of personal and corporate taxes is carried out, then the shares of blue-chip Canadian companies are going to increase substantially in value."

He said it would follow that bond rates would increase as well as interest rates on first mortgages.

Mr. Hutchison also criticized the commission's recommendations concerning banks' hidden reserves. He said they probably would mean the reserves would be lowered to between one and 1½ per cent as well as being subject to tax.

At present, the hidden reserves of chartered banks, estimated at about 3.5 per cent on most classes of loans, are exempt from taxation.

John A. Tuck, managing director of the Canadian Life Insurance Association, said the life insurance companies would have to consider significant shifts in their investments in accordance with the "commission's strong leaning towards equity investment as compared to debt investment."

Investors Turning to U.S. Stocks

TORONTO (CP)—A growing number of Canadian investors are finding a more lucrative market in the United States.

Since the beginning of 1966 Canadians have been buying more U.S. securities than Americans are buying Canadian.

There doesn't appear to be anything in sight to halt the flow.

The shift resulted in a 10-per cent decline in the value of trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange in 1966 to $2,877,191,000 compared with $3,199,082,000 in 1965.

Dollar value on the New York Stock Exchange meanwhile jumped 35 per cent to $98,700,-000,000 compared with $73,000,-000,000 in 1965.

The Toronto exchange fared badly in its ranking among major North American exchanges, sliding to fifth spot in 1966 from third in 1965.

The situation doesn't appear any brighter this year. So far trading has slumped to 231,000,000 shares compared with 456,-000,000 for the same period last year and value has dropped to $939,476,000 against $1,333,000,-000.

Most of the shrinkage has come from the speculative market where volume has plunged to 196,000,000 shares compared with 420,000,000 in 1966 and value to $282,000,000 compared with $845,000,000.

"Speculatives have been chased away to Vancouver and Montreal because of a tightening up of exchange regulations in Ontario," one observer said.

He added that many Canadian investors are showing greater interest in the "high-flyers" trading upwards of 200,000 shares daily on the New York exchange.

These are companies involved in the computer, space and electronics fields.

In the first 11 months of 1966 —the latest period for which figures are available—Canadians spent $194,000,000 more for U.S. stocks than Americans spent for Canadian stocks. That is a sharp reversal from 1963 when the balance was $29,000,-000 in favor of American buyers of Canadian stocks.

David Bryson, an analyst with the J. H. Crang and Co., brokerage company, attributed the sharp decline in value to the U.S. interest equalization tax, levied on Americans who buy Canadian-owned stocks.

The tax was recently increased to 22½ per cent from 15 per cent last year. It went into effect in 1963.

Mr. Bryson said the effect has been U.S. purchasers of Canadian stocks drop to $189,000,000 in the first 11 months of 1966 from $319,000,000 in 1964.

He also cited the collapse of Atlantic Acceptance Corp., Provincial Finance Corp. and the Windfall Oils and Mines Ltd. fiasco as causing disillusionment among investors, especially in the speculative market.

Schlitz Divests Holding

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A U.S. district judge Tuesday approved the sale of the 29 per cent controlling interest in John Labatt Ltd., held by Joseph Schlitz Brewing Co.

The Milwaukee firm had been ordered to divest itself of control of Labatt because the Canadian brewers had stock control of General Brewing Co., one of the largest in the west.

Schlitz was ordered to get rid of its Labatt stock and to sell Burgemeister Brewing Co., of San Francisco. The Burgermeister deal is still in negotiation through Goldman Sachs, New York investment brokers.

Tuesday, Judge Stanley A. Weigel observed the sale of Labatt to three Canadian companies was, so his opinion, in full compliance with the divestiture order

The three companies buying the stock are Brazilian Light and Power Ltd., which is looking about 1,000,000 of the 1,799,-600 share block; Investors Mutual of Canada, and Jonlab Investments, a Labatt manager. ment company.

The stock is being sold for $21 a share. Schlitz paid $22 a share for the same stock in 1961.

The court was also told the sale would be completed within five days.

In London, Ont., President John Henderson Moore of Labatt said Jonlab Investments Ltd. will close the deal with Schlitz next Tuesday. He also is president of Jonlab, formed to carry out the deal.

Under the plan, Jonlab will buy the shares from Schlitz and keep 400,000. Then will be 1,000,000 going to Brazilian Light and Power and 300,000 to Mutual.

Will Speak At Sorority Dinner Meet

Doris Clark, well-known social worker with a country-wide practice and a clientele in 86 cities and towns from Vancouver to Halifax will be the guest speaker at the Founders' Day banquet sponsored by the Gamma Mu Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi. The event will be held this Thursday evening in Maloney Street United Church.

Miss Clark's advice column Successful Living has appeared daily in The Intelligencer for the past six years. The Intelligencer was the first newspaper to carry her column after she decided she could reach more troubled people through writing than she could as a social worker.

Qualifications accumulated for handling all these requests for advice include a Bachelor of Arts from McGill University, Montreal, a Master of Social Work degree from the University of Toronto and a vocational guidance diploma from McMaster University, Hamilton. She has also worked on the staff of several welfare and social agencies.

Her column is a distinctly Canadian feature, in question and answer form, which discusses problems involving personal and family relations of Canadian readers.

When necessity arises Miss Clark consults professional people in allied fields (minister, lawyer, doctor, social worker, vocational expert, homemaker) when this is indicated. Knowledge of Canadian resources, agencies and ways of thinking give this feature authority.

Congratulatory messages were received from Right Hon. John Diefenbaker; Hon. John Robarts, Premier of Ontario; Clarke T. Rollins, MLA; Lou Jerome, MP and the Grand Orange Lodge.

"All in Fun" Teasing by Dad Could Result in Misshapen Personalities

Dear Doris: What do you think of a man who, when he comes home from work at night, teases the children, making them yell and scream and even cry? The mother has to practically attack him to stop it.

He says they're his kids, he'll play with them if he likes. Have seen a few occasions and it doesn't look like play to me; just something to satisfy the misery in his soul. It's hardly something to look forward to each night after housework and children all day.

If you could get a divorce here for mental cruelty I'm sure she could have one. — Wondering.

Dear Wondering: If that is play, what does he use for punishment?

Some people become bullies to make up for their own lacks. Could it be he is bored around at work and comes home to take out his resentment on little human beings less adequate than he is?

Then he passes it off as "all in fun". Later on he'll be wondering why his children don't love or respect him. Worst of all, he is actually contributing to misshapen personalities.

Dear Doris: I am 18 and have been going with a boy for two years. Several times he stopped phoning for a while and I heard he was taking out other girls.

Now he has done it again, Doris! It is several months now since I heard from him. My parents say he is causing me too much heartache, and even if he calls again to refuse seeing him.

(1) If he calls, what do you think I should say to him?

(2) If he doesn't call, how should I act if I should meet him?

Dear Broken: What you eat and the weather you live in affect nails. Gelatin, milk, citrus fruits, and a warm climate are recommended for improvement. I'm sending you my new leaflet on "Nail Strengtheners", which goes into all this. (Available to others for 10 cents and a stamped envelop.)

FIFTY CENTS in coin (no stamps, please) for each pattern. Ontario, residents add three cents sales tax. Print plainly, size, name, address, style number.

Send order to Anne Adams, care of the Intelligencer Pattern Dept., 60 Front St. West, Toronto 1, Ontario.

While stew is the right name this chicken stew is lifted from weekday to Sunday stature. It may be the elusive combination of herbs or it may be the addition of cream or both which works this magic.

We start off with a 3½ to 4-pound roasting chicken.

SUNDAY CHICKEN STEW
(Serves six generously)

One 3½-4 lb. roasting chicken, cut up
½ of a lemon
¼ cup butter
2 chicken bouillon cubes
3 cups boiling water
½ bayleaf
¼ tsp. thyme
¼ tsp. pepper
1 tsp. salt
6 or 7 med.-small carrots, quartered or left whole
6 small onions
1 cup outer celery stalks, cut in ½" pieces
One 12-oz.* pkge. fresh frozen peas
6 tbsps. flour
½ tsp. salt (second amount)
2 tbsps. chopped parsley (or bottled flakes)
½ cup 18 percent cream.

If you are on friendly terms with your butcher ask him to cut up the chicken into serving pieces and include giblets. If not do it yourself. Dry the chicken pieces and rub all surfaces with the lemon.

In very large frying pan or saucepan melt the butter and brown the chicken pieces in it until deep gold. Meanwhile dissolve the chicken bouillon cubes in 1 cup of the boiling water. When all chicken pieces are brown add bouillon water and remaining 4 cups boiling water and the bay leaf, thyme, pepper and salt and simmer covered 45 min. Add onions and carrots and simmer covered 30 min. longer. Add celery and simmer covered 10 min. longer. Add fresh frozen peas. Stir together the flour, ½ tsp. salt and parsley, then mix to a smooth paste by stirring in cream. Stir into stew until slightly thickened. Be sure to add this thickener as soon as stew returns to boil after adding peas for you want the peas to retain their bright color.

tion of colors and aromas. The bright orange of the carrots, the bright green of the peas and parsley, and the rich, creamy color of the stew gravy will have your hungry family hovering over your shoulder waiting to hear you call "Dinner is served".

Dinner Menu

Crumbed Baby Beef or Calves' Liver with Onion Gravy; Buttered Rice; Creamed Carrot and Celery Dice; Relish Tray: Chunk Pickles, Olives, Radishes; Frosted Jelly; Raisin-Almond Quick Bread (see Tom.); Tea.

Fish out the bay leaf if you can find it and serve Sunday Chicken Stew in your finest silver tureen or large deep turkey platter. Wonderful with Tea Biscuits Supreme or you could cook Magic Dumplings on top during the last few minutes.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Now that I am working at the office, everybody will have to pitch in and help around here. You can't expect me to do everything the way I used to."

A working mother needs her family's help — but she will have to organize and plan the work so the necessary chores will be done. Just ordering everybody to help in a general way will result in confusion.

Mother: "We will take care of our own rooms, and I have listed the other chores I'll need help with. Will you each choose two or three things for which you will be responsible?

Men Need Facials

SASKATOON (CP) — If someone is snitching mother's face cream, she shouldn't automatically blame daughter — the culprit may be daddy, Maurice Mullaney of Regina, past vice-president of the Saskatchewan Association of Hair Stylists, says men need facials "at least once a month."

Ann Landers

Mayor Wants Help To Resolve Problem

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was elected mayor of this town of 1700 people by a write-in vote in 1965. It is my first public office, and I am inexperienced in the ways of politicians.

Some Federal-State bureaus want to spend $60,000 to restore an unneeded airport runway. I hold that since the other runways can handle the traffic easily this expenditure would be a waste of money. I want to turn the $60,000 back to the public treasury.

ANN LANDERS

I am told that this would be foolish. The word is, "If you don't take the $60,000 some other town will." I feel this is the same as saying, "Let's rob the bank because it's going to be robbed anyway."

Please help me resolve this ethical problem, Ann Landers. Is it right for our town to accept Federal taxpayers' money, assuming the facts are precisely as I have stated them? I look to you for guidance. — RICHARD I. MORRISON, Mayor of Delta, Utah.

* * *

DEAR MAYOR MORRISON: If any of my readers run into Diogenes, I hope they'll send him to Delta, Utah. There he will find an honest man.

It is heartening to know, in this age, when larceny (both petty and grand) is defended as "a way of life" that some people are still concerned with ethics.

Unless a committee of five Delta business men can produce evidence that the runway is needed — or will be needed because of future growth — turn the money back to the government.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Ten years ago my husband and I had a terrible argument, and I locked him out of the house. He went to his mother's and she persuaded him to stay two weeks "to teach me a lesson."

I'm happy to say we worked out our difficulties, and our marriage is now a good one. Recently my mother-in-law, in a joking manner, reminded us of the incident (in the presence of other members of the family) and said she would do it again because "it is a mother's duty to protect her children at all times."

Our son is being married in a few months, and I would like to know how to handle the situation if his wife locks him out of the house and he tries to come home to me. Should I let him in? — BLOOMFIELD HILLS.

DEAR BLOOMFIELD: No. Tell him to go home and settle his domestic problems with his wife. The mother who tells her children (son or daughter), "If things don't go well, you can always come home," does them no favor. Countless separated and divorced couples would have pulled up their socks and learned to live together if they had no alternative.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am enclosing an Associated Press item. Dateline: Corpus Christi. "A 19-year-old Go-go dancer who does a topless act plans to marry between acts — still topless. Her maid of honor will also be topless.

"The justice of the peace who agreed to perform the ceremony said, 'I never question the dress of the people who ask to get married. My job is to get them married.'"

And people say you make up letters! Why would you have to when there are so many dingbats running around loose? — SHOCKED READER.

DEAR READER: Why are you shocked? Somebody was bound to do it! Don't you know people will do anything? My mail proves it.

Police Powers Sought

OTTAWA (CP) — Tough new police powers to search homes without warrants and to jail people without filing charges have been advocated by the Canadian Association of Police Chiefs.

In a brief to a federal inquiry on the administration of justice, the policemen called for 10 specific Criminal Code amendments to enlarge their powers.

They also proposed that magistrates be subjected to psychological examinations to ensure they are "stable persons."

They urged the retention of charging of prisoners and argued that governments often lose sight of the need to protect society in their "zeal for the rehabilitation of the criminal."

The brief, made public today, said police should be authorized to jail persons temporarily to prevent them from breaking the law in the future.

This would be done under a "preventive detention law" that would allow police to hold "rabble-rousers and trouble-makers when threats are made against the person of VIP's, etc."

This proposal echoed one made recently to the Quebec royal commission on justice by Montreal Police Director Gibbort.

Several organizations denounced the idea as a violation of civil liberties reminiscent of Gestapo tactics.

In their brief to the federal committee on corrections headed by Mr. Justice Roger Cuimet of the Quebec Superior Court, the police chiefs advocated a law allowing police to detain any criminal suspect up to 24 hours without having to bring him into court on a specific charge.

They proposed the following new police powers:

—Requiring any person to give his name and address whenever asked to by a policeman.

—Entering homes without warrants whenever a policeman thinks a criminal offence has been, or is about to be committed.

—Forcing all persons suspected of impaired driving to take breath analysis tests to determine the alcohol content in the blood. These tests now are voluntary.

—Use of wiretapping and electronic "bugs" when warrants are issued by judges.

—Arrests without warrants of persons suspected of minor criminal offences.

—Searches without warrants for counterfeit money, stolen property or burglary tools.

—Arrest of persons found "loitering" in hallways and locker rooms inside apartment buildings.

The brief said children aged seven to 14 should continue to be liable to prosecution and imprisonment. Youths aged 18 and over should be tried in adult courts. Victims of crimes should be compensated by the criminals as part of the sentences.

The lash should be retained to punish violent criminals, but used only under medical supervision.

"Judges and magistrates should perhaps be subject to psychological examination as a prerequisite to appointment," the brief added.

Students Visit Sugar Bush

MARMORA — A trip to the sugar bush was the third Home and School centennial project with children of the Earl Prentice Public School visiting the farm of Mr. and Mrs Everett Barrons last Wednesday and Thursday.

Mrs. Barrons explained to each group how the sap was made into maple syrup as they took turns going into the sugar house. How to tap a tree was demonstrated by Mr Barrons. They saw the old method of gathering sap using spiles and buckets, and the new method of running plastic lines from trees to tree and finally down to the sugar house.

The children all had a drink of sap as well as a small jar of maple syrup to take home for their supper. En route home by bus they visited the old Beaver Creek Church.

This was an outing the pupils will always remember, and sincere thanks were expressed to Mr. and Mrs. Barrons for hosting this children's day.

Indians Traditionally Live In Present Rotarians Told

One of the most difficult Indian problems Canadian society has had to learn with regard to the Indian population is that "it is unwise to impose one system of values on another society," James H. Buller, executive secretary of the Indian-Eskimo Association of Canada told Belleville Rotarians yesterday.

"I think Canadians (of European stock) as the dominant society are beginning to realize that other societies and minority groups have their own traditions and culture and way of life which can contribute greatly to society as a whole."

Mr. Buller said one of the reasons the Indian people have "sat back" stems from the "tremendous frustrations and defeatism caused by the imposition of the values of the dominant society on their own."

"Indians traditionally live in the present," Mr. Buller pointed out. "They are not future-oriented. Our society is, Canadians as individuals save and generally build up resources for the future. In the old days (before the arrival of the white man) there was always plenty of game. The Indians here always held to the belief of sharing. The exploits of a hunt in the past and even to this day are shared among all who need it. The essence of life is found in the here and now and in becoming something we are not today."

Mr. Buller told of a young man from a reserve in the Parry Sound area who came to Toronto, found a job and accommodation. Soon all his relatives descended on him; the young Indian got behind with his rent and finally the landlord had to evict them.

Indians who try to integrate in Canadian society have another problem in the ostracism they face on returning to the reserve — an attitude of "So the Indian way of life is not good enough for you."

In education the Indians language itself (and the many dialects) has a limited vocabulary. The Dick and Jane type of textbook moreover, showing the daily life of a typical Canadian family, have no meaning for Indians. Similarly, Eskimo youngsters hearing about Little Jack Horner sitting in a corner would not know what a "corner" is.

Mr. Buller presented statistics indicating the extreme poverty and distressing living conditions of the Indian population at large and said the problem may be expected to intensify as the population increases.

The annual population increase among Indians is about twice the normal that of the national rate. In 1963 the number of registered Indians was estimated at 205,000, an increase over the last 15 years of 51.2 percent. In 1949 the Indian population totalled only 136,407.

About 60 percent of Canada's Indians, representing some 45 percent of the general population, is under 21 years of age. In addition to the registered Indians, there are about 200,000 persons of Indian ancestry among the general Canadian population.

Despite their problems, Mr. Buller said the number of Indians being educated in Canada is constantly increasing. High school enrolment has increased 6.6 times since 1948, from 611 to 4,065. University enrolment has risen from 9 to 68 in the same period. Those in vocational training have risen from 41 to 720.

However, about 24 per cent of Canada's Indian population remain functionally illiterate. In the Northwest Territories, a quarter (25 per cent) of the school-age Eskimo children are not enrolled in any educational institution.

Mr. Buller went on to discuss the work of the Indian-Eskimo Association in offering advice and programs whereby the native peoples may be encouraged to help themselves to a better future. This was done with the assistance of field workers and he mentioned a radio program which links Eskimo communities through the CBC Northern service.

Some 3,000 people attended the Rotary Club's Science Fair and Hobby Show, an increase of about 30 per cent over last year, Bob Lanning told fellow Rotarians yesterday.

Bob Michaud said gross receipts in the Easter Seals campaign in aid of the crippled children totalled $6,039 compared with $5,915 last year.

Unification Approved at Last, Commons Ready to Adjourn

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons is expected to adjourn for a week late tonight after setting a record for the longest session in Canadian history—249 sitting days.

Tuesday's sitting extended past midnight as the controversial armed forces unification bill got final approval 127 to 73 and several other measures were debated. The longest previous session lasted 248 days in 1964-65.

Second reading—approval in principle—was given Manpower Minister Marchand's bill to make federal payments to the provinces for adult occupational training. There was no recorded vote.

It now is planned to adjourn late tonight or early Thursday until May 4 after passage of the training bill and three more items: changes in the Income Tax Act, extension of provisional Commons rules to the next session and a money supply bill.

The adjournment without a formal prorogation now would give the Senate time to pass the final bills sent to it from the Commons in preparation for royal assent next week and the immediate opening of a new session.

Prime Minister Pearson has already outlined 49 pieces of legislation the government wants to see passed during the centennial session.

The unification bill, now in the hands of the Senate, will not be proclaimed law until the fall.

This time will be required to rewrite regulations for a single service and for policy decisions to be made on such matters as sailors retaining their present rank titles.

Defence Minister Hellyer said the new bottle-green uniforms for the single service will not make their first trial appearances in public until next month.

Voting in favor of the unification bill were 101 Liberals, 12 New Democrats, eight Creditistes, four Social Credit MPs and two independents.

Against were 69 Conservatives and four NDP members—H. W. Herridge, Kootenay West, Harold Winch, Vancouver East, Arnold Peters, Timiskaming, and Colin Cameron, Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands.

The Senate, meanwhile, gave second reading to a government bill making it a criminal offence to possess or traffick in the hallucination-producing drug LSD.

The bill, calling for penalties of up to 10 years in prison for trafficking, was sent to the Senate banking and commerce committee for examination today but will not go to the Commons this session.

Mr. Marchand, in a spirited, bilingual defence of his occupational training bill, said a great deal of misinformation about it had been given out by a few provincial officials, chiefly in Ontario.

The legislation was a means of combatting unemployment by retraining workers for new types of jobs in industry.

The bill states that persons eligible for living allowances while they are training must have been employed for three years or have been out of school for one year.

Several opposition MPs said there had been too little consultation with the provinces, especially with education officials.

Mr. Marchand said there have been two federal-provincial conferences on the subject. A third would have only delayed the legislation.

200 Pieces
Sculpture Throughout Expo First for World Fare

MONTREAL (CP)—Expo 67 has set a precedent among world exhibitions in its use of sculpture, says W. Arnold Phillips, chief landscape architect and designer for the fair.

Never before has a world exhibition corporation commissioned sculpture for a fair for the sole purpose of bringing beauty in all its many diverse and unusual forms to the public's attention, said Mr. Phillips in an interview Tuesday night.

"There are approximately 200 unique pieces placed throughout the fair grounds," he said.

"These include 35 works in the international sculpture gardens located in the park on St. Helen's Island beside the rose garden and 34 Canadian works commissioned by the fair corporation which can be found in various areas on the fair grounds."

One of the most unusual creations is on Ile Ronde, a haven of fun and frolic for children and adults. The sculpture is entitled Optical Orbit No. 2. The sculptor, Gerald Gladstone, incorporates a fountain into the forms which represent the shapes that matter takes while circling in the system of planets.

Outside the German pavilion, the art lover is confronted by Walter Fuhrer's Transcendance, made of welded steel plate put together in a mass of straight lines, angles and triangles.

Henry Moore fans will be delighted to see his Locking Piece reflected in a sloot surrounding the British pavilion.

Four metal structures by German Bergeron are on Notre Dame Island.

Michael Pine's steel and bronze Wind Pendulum is located on Ile Ronde as is Raul Hunter's Iris,

Princess Faces Induced Birth

UTRECHT (Reuters)—Crown Princess Beatrix of the Netherlands, expecting her first child, was reported to be receiving special treatment in Utrecht's Academic Hospital here today to induce labor.

Some newspapers predicted the baby would be born today.

The princess spent a quiet night in the hospital, a government spokesman said.

Pavilions Ready for Assault

MONTREAL (CP) — The tempo of Expo 67 quickened today and the 1,000 - acre exhibition site took on a cosmopolitan air with the inaugural of Canada's world fair only 24 hours away.

The forecast for Thursday was for sunny and cool weather, like Tuesday's when bands paraded and television crews set up vantage points at Place des Nations where the formal opening will be staged.

Blonde hostesses from the just - opened West German pavilion in their bright orange-and-grey costumes appeared on the roadways, sometimes accompanied by officers of the German state police.

Members of Italy's famed police force, the carabinieri, turned out in their plumed tricorns and swords.

Bluejackets from four Canadian destroyers moored at the site added color to the scene.

Prem Lance Bellows, Expo's advertising chief, cane a prediction that the six - months show will have about 80,000,000 admissions compared with a forecast a year ago of 28,600,000.

The general public will be admitted Friday morning, the day after the Thursday afternoon inaugural, which will be limited to more than 5,000 invited guests.

By Tuesday night most of the major participating nations had opened their pavilions to the more than 600 accredited newspaper men and broadcasters.

The West Germans displayed their achievements in science and the arts under a canopy of steel mesh and plastic covering of 110,000 square feet, the area of a city block.

The Italians displayed one of their treasures, the bronze statue, Athys, by Donatello. But they reserved a wing to show off 20th-century technology with a car in the process of assembly and a remote-controlled robot for handling radioactive materials.

The Australian preview came on Anzac day which honors the Australians and New Zealanders who fought at Gallipoli in the First World War.

Five Prize Dogs Shot as Wolves

TIMAGAMI, Ont. (CP) — Five prize Siberian husky dogs, mistaken for wolves at this community 60 miles north of North Bay, have been shot and killed by a department of lands and forests official.

The dogs, part of an eight-dog racing team owned by Denis Smith of Val Gagne, Ont., were tied to a chain between a truck and a tree at the Sherman Mine when the shooting occurred.

The huskies, four males and one female, were valued at $1,250.

William B. Clarke, North Bay district forester, said Tuesday:

"It's a mistake anyone could make under the circumstances. Huskies look like wolves and there has been a cry 'wolves' in Timagami."

"Our man made the mistake and it's up to the department to make it up to the owner."

The post office department will issue this five-cent stamp August 31 marking the 50th anniversary of The Canadian Press, the co-operative news-gathering and -distributing association of Canada's daily newspapers.

Youth Pleads Guilty to Extortion Bid

VANCOUVER (CP) — Gary Stephen Ross, 18, pleaded guilty in magistrate's court Tuesday to attempting to extort $5,000 from Frank Howard, NDP member of Parliament for the British Columbia riding of Stikeen.

Ross was remanded to May 4 for a pre - sentence report at the request of his lawyer, Albert Mackoff. He is free on $2,000 bail.

Magistrate Maurice Mulligan told Mackoff he doubted that Ross would receive a suspended sentence.

Stewart McMorran, city prosecutor, said Ross came to Vancouver from Toronto in January and wrote a letter to Mr. Howard which was postmarked March 15.

The letter, said Ross needed money fast. It instructed Mr. Howard to send $5,000 to general delivery in Vancouver in a small box wrapped in paper.

"If received within 21 days of March 15 you will be repaid at $10 a week for one year beginning May 4. If not, I will totally ruin your career by distributing proof of your past to friends, relatives, political associates and appropriate authorities. If you comply you won't be bothered again and will be promptly repaid."

After the RCMP arrested Ross, Mr. Howard publicly revealed his past criminal record in a television audience in Terrace, B.C., in his Stikeen constituency.

He said he was convicted in 1963 on three charges of armed robbery and sentenced to two years in prison.

Mr. McMorran said Ross knew Mr. Howard many years ago through his parents who are friends of Howard's.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

Ray Alvin (Rod) Storey best known for a starry professional football career with the Toronto Argonauts and as a standout referee in the National Hockey League will be the guest speaker at the Quinte McFarlands Junior hockey club's first sports celebrities dinner slated for Picton May 12th.

A native of Barrie, Ont., Storey has been connected with football, hockey and lacrosse in one way or another since his youth.

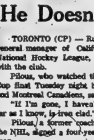
He arrived in Toronto at the age of 17 and played for the next six years with the Argonauts being a member of the Grey Cup champions in 1937 and 1938. In the latter game against the Winnipeg Blue Bombers' he scored three touchdowns to spark a 30-7 victory.

He played lacrosse with teams in Orillia, Hamilton and Montreal and hockey clubs in Atlantic City, Sault Ste. Marie and Montreal.

When he retired as an active player, Red shifted his talents to those of an official. He refereed for ten years in the Quebec Lacrosse League, 21 years in the Canadian Football League and 16 years in various hockey leagues.

He was the top-ranked referee in the National Hockey League for nine years until his sudden retirement in the 1959 Stanley Cup playoffs.

Red is a raconteur of marked ability and probably one of the best sports after-dinner speakers in the country. He has an across-the-table personality, a delightful sense of humor — and is a swell guy in the bargain.



Red John Bobby and Dennis Hull, Red O'Quinn and Nick Block of the Ottawa Rough Riders, Bob Wilson, who discovered Bobby Hull, Bill Dunnell sports editor of the Toronto Star, Vic Bagrade of boxing fame, Bill Cowley, former Boston Bruin, Syl Apps, Lorne Cook and other sports luminaries at the head table. Jack Devine is the M.C. Harry Sinden, Boston Bruins coach will also be there.

Mayor Harvey J. McFarland in a nostalgic frame of mind has invited on his special guests the members of the 1959 McFarland worlds champions and those who played with the 1958 Allan Cup champions.

Drury Denyes is contacting as many of the old Macs as possible. Some tea or twelve will be immediately available. Members of Quinte McFarlands junior "B" club will also be there.

The celebrities will be the special guests of Mayor McFarland at his home later attending a general reception at the Royal Hotel.

There will be nostalgia here too, as many of the party who accompanied the McFarlands overseas on their world junket will be there in a reunion state of mind.

Bobby and Dennis Hull will likely steal the spotlight before and at the dinner. By the way Bobby has donated a puck-laced Hereford calf which will be won by some lucky person in a draw.

Quinte Mac's officials Jim "Salpe" Matthews and "Red" Mavety anticipate a large crowd at the dinner. "Mayor McFarland has gone all out to make the dinner a success," says Matthews, "and we hope a lot of people are there to meet the special guests".

The tab is ten dollars per plate and tickets are available at Maher's Shoe Store with Mr. Mavety and the Liquor Control Board where Mr. Matthews holds forth.

Rudy Pilous Fired? He Doesn't Know It

TORONTO (CP) — Rudy Pilous, reported ousted as general manager of California's Seals in the expanded National Hockey League, insists he still is connected with the club.

Pilous, who watched the third game of the Stanley Cup final Tuesday night between Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens, said of his reported dismissal: "If I'm gone, I haven't been told. My contract, so far as I know, is true clad."

Pilous, a former coach of Chicago Black Hawks of the NHL, signed a four-year contract with the Seals last year.

Reports of his dismissal circulated after Barry Van Gerbig announced last week he had taken over control of the California franchise.

Van Gerbig said last week he had chosen Frank Selke Jr., an official of Montreal Canadiens, as executive vice-president.

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Left-hander Glynn Perkins upset former champion Dale Morey on the 20th hole and Dr. Ed Updegraff was four under par in trimming John Guenther 5 and 3 to share the spotlight Tuesday in the second round of the North and South men's amateur golf tournament.

BOURNEMOUTH, England (CP-AP) — Mike Belkin of Montreal, star of Canada's Davis Cup tennis team, advanced Tuesday into the third round of the British Hard Court championships when a Colombian opponent quit because of illness during their match.

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP) — Bert Yancey's $20,000 first prize money in the Greater Dallas Open pushed his total winnings for the season to $44,594, good enough for sixth place in Professional Golf Association standings.

Leafs Snatch 3-2 Win In Overtime

TORONTO (CP)—The name of the game is practise, practise, practise.

And Maple Leaf coach Punch Imlach claimed it made the difference in Toronto's 3-2 overtime victory Tuesday night over Montreal Canadiens that gave the Leafs a 2-1 lead in the best - of - seven Stanley Cup finals.

"We trained all year for this," said Imlach, who believes there is no substitute for hard work.

There was not a member of his team who disagreed with the theory after the victory that went 28 minutes and 26 seconds into overtime before veteran Bob Pulford popped in the winning goal.

Peter Stemkowski and Jim Pappin scored the other Toronto goals, while Jean Beliveau and John Ferguson tallied for Montreal.

Toronto players, after the game, said they were getting stronger as the game got older.

"Us old war horses are better in a long race," said Marcel Pronovost, a 36-year-old defenceman.

Team captain George Armstrong, 36, said:

". . . you always keep going. Afterwards you feel tired. It'll be worse tomorrow."

Frank Mahovlich agreed the "team seemed to pick up momentum as the overtime progressed."

Although the Leafs played nearly two games in one night, Imlach said he will hold a practice at noon today.

Veteran goaltender Johnny Bower was a standout for the Leafs. He blocked 60 shots and kept the Leafs in the game during the first 30-minute overtime period.

The Canadiens had at least six clear chances to score in the first overtime.

Rogatien Vachon, the 21-year-old rookie goaltender for Montreal, was also brilliant. Playing in a seasoned veteran, he said he was not disheartened by the loss.

"Next time it will be my turn."

Pulford got his goal on a pass from Pappin, who relayed a pass from Stemkowski to the edge of the crease. All three play on the same Leaf line.

Pappin leads the playoff point getters with five goals and eight assists, and Stemkowski is second with five goals and five assists. Pulford has one goal and seven assists for fifth place among the point getters.

"I'd have to say it was the greatest goal of my life," the veteran left winger said.

"I had the whole net to shoot at. He (Vachon) was still on the other side of the net. Peter cleared it out to Jimmy and I don't know whether he saw me or not, but anyway he knew I should be there and he laid it right on my stick."

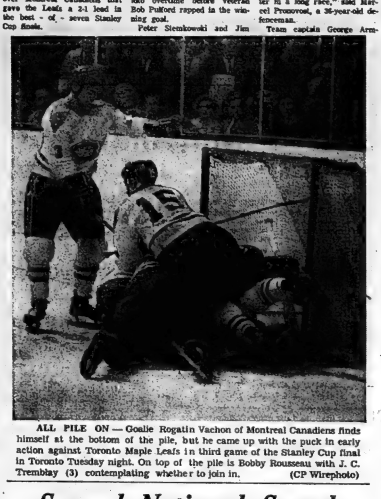
The game was well off the Stanley Cup record of two hours, 38 minutes, 30 seconds March 24, 1936, between Montreal Maroons and Detroit Red Wings.

Both clubs started fast and Montreal scored on its first power play, Beliveau taking a goalmouth pass from Bobby Rousseau to beat Bower. Defenceman Tim Horton was serving an interference penalty.

Stemkowski tied the game on the Leafs' first power play. Ferguson was in the penalty box when Larry Hillman's hard drive from the point was tipped into the Montreal goal by the Toronto centreman.

The Leafs controlled the play in the second period and Pappin gave the Leafs a 2-1 lead at the mid-way mark, sliding Tim Horton's pass under Vachon.

The Leafs continued to hold the edge in play, but Ferguson stole the puck from Stemkowski just to Bower's left with less than a minute to play in the period and slammed it past the Toronto net.



The final regulation period and first overtime period were scoreless.

Horton suffered a minor cut over his left eye late in the game, while Montreal's Henri Richard, Leo Boivin knocked out of him when checked by defenceman Allan Stanley early in the second overtime.

Montreal's Claude Larose also suffered a seven-stitch cut on his forehead during an altercation with Toronto's Brian Conacher. "Conacher clipped me a good one," Larose said. Both players drew five-minute major penalties.

Fourth game of the series is scheduled for here Thursday at 8 p.m. and will be televised in its entirety by the CBC national network.

The clubs then travel to Montreal for the fifth game Saturday afternoon.

ALL PILE ON — Goalie Rogatin Vachon of Montreal Canadiens finds himself at the bottom of the pile, but he came up with the puck in early action against Toronto Maple Leafs in third game of the Stanley Cup final in Toronto Tuesday night. On top of the pile is Bobby Rousseau with J. C. Tremblay (3) contemplating whether to join in. (CP Wirephoto)

Second National Squad

MELVILLE, Sask. (CP)—The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association has given the green light to formation of a second national hockey team to be based in Ottawa, secretary-manager Gordon Juckes said today.

First proposed at the CAHA semi - annual meeting in January, the second - team concept was approved at a weekend meeting in Winnipeg and the national team committee instructed to go ahead with arrangements.

Juckes said in an interview that the intention is eventually to have two equal national teams from which players would be drawn for international competition. It was hoped that the Ottawa - based team may be formed in time to make a tour of Europe in December, while the Winnipeg team will play Swedish and Russian teams in Canada.

Lady Curlers Break

TORONTO (CP)—The Southern Ontario Ladies' Curling Association, largest group of its kind in Canada with almost 35,000 members, announced Tuesday it has withdrawn from the Ontario Ladies' Curling Association.

The announcement was made following an executive meeting of the southern provincial group.

Mrs. J. H. Buttery, newly-elected president of the southern association, said in a telephone interview from her home in Oakville that—there are two main reasons for the secession.

Under present regulations, only two representatives from each province may attend the annual national meeting of the Canadian association. The southern Ontario association, with three-quarters of the province's membership, wanted annual representation while the Ontario association, with four zones, wanted representation alternated each year.

The southern Ontario group was also critical of the decision to drop Dominion Stores Ltd. as sponsors of the Canadian women's championships. The company was dropped as sponsor after the 1967 championship in Montreal.

In Winnipeg, Lorn McLockie, president of the Canadian association, said the national group will continue its work on next season's championships, which will be held in Winnipeg.

"We certainly won't dissolve because of this," she said. "This is an internal problem involving the Ontario association."

In Sudbury, Lynn Beaver, president of the Ontario association, had little comment on the withdrawal by the group.

"We were hoping they wouldn't withdraw," she said. "I can't say too much now. I will have to talk to our secretary and I will probably hear from the Canadian association."

Auto Club Suspends Drivers

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP)—The U.S. Auto Club suspended two race drivers Tuesday, knocking them out of the running for the Indianapolis 500-mile race.

The 60-day suspensions for competing in a non-sanctioned race were handed Peter Revson of New York and Lothar Motschenbacher of Los Angeles.

Revson, late in the Revlon cosmetic fortune, was nominated to drive the Dayton Steel entry of Johnny Walther. Motschenbacher was picked for a car entered by Kenny Brenn of Plainfield, N.J.

Henry Banks, USAC director of competition who announced the suspensions, said the two drivers competed at Vegas Stardard Raceway in a Sports Car Club of America event.

Sometimes even the best laid plans go awry. Steve Hargan's did, but he improvised well.

"The last thing I wanted to do was walk Tony Oliva," the Cleveland Indian pitcher said Tuesday night. "I was trying to give him a chance to hit."

But with two out in the ninth and Hargan breezing along on a two hitter and a 1-0 lead, the Minnesota right - fielder did walk.

"I wasn't planning on pitching to Harmon Killebrew in the ninth inning," Hargan said.

Plan or no plan, there at the plate stood the Twins' clogger.

Hargan struck him out.

The 34-year-old right-hander also scored the only run.

In other American League games Tuesday, New York Yankees took over first place by trouncing Chicago White Sox 11-3, Baltimore Orioles nipped California Angels 2-1, Detroit Tigers blanked Kansas City Athletics 5-0 and Boston Red Sox whipped Washington Senators 9-3.

The Yankees broke a 2-2 tie, scoring six times in the fifth inning.

Whitey Ford, who won his second game against one loss, contributed two singles to the Yankees' 17-hit attack. Charley Smith had two doubles and two singles.

Frank Robinson was the key man in Baltimore's victory, driving in a run with a sacrifice fly in the third inning and tripling and scoring on Brooks Robinson's single in the sixth. Tom Phoebus made the two runs stand up, with California scoring only in the seventh.

Joe Sparma allowed only five hits while his Detroit mates made the most of the same number of hits in beating Kansas City.

Al Kaline of Detroit extended his hitting streak to 11 games with a single.

A three-run homer by Mike Andrews, solo blasts by Reggie Smith and Tony Conigliaro and Chet Yastrzemski's two - run double powered Boston past Washington.

Pittsburgh Rochester Playoffs

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—As many as five games of the American Hockey League's Calder Cup finals may be played in Pittsburgh's Civic Auditorium, the league said Tuesday in releasing the schedule for the best-of-seven series.

It was explained that other bookings in Rochester's arena will enable the Americans to play only a maximum of two games on their home ice. Rochester is the defending champion.

The schedule:

Wednesday, April 26—at Pittsburgh.

Friday, April 28—at Rochester.

Saturday, April 29—at Pittsburgh.

Letter to the Sports Editor

In your sports column of Friday, April 21 there appeared a letter signed by Mr. Bernard Howe, 508 Dundas Street West, in which he drew attention to the number of severe hockey injuries which occurred across Ontario "last year." In this he stated that of the 200 severe hockey accidents some 161 cases happened where there were qualified medical personnel on duty. He then mentioned the fact that St. John Ambulance people were available to attend hockey games.

May I, as senior officer in this area, comment on this letter. First, I suppose it is amazing that, with dozens of hockey games going on in hundreds of arenas each week, there are so few serious accidents. This is a tribute to the coaches and referees who are attempting to inculcate ideals of clean sportsmanship. The term "serious injury" is a difficult label to apply, since every injury, no matter how trivial-appearing can, and does, become serious.

Those of you who have attended hockey games in Picton, Trenton or Belleville may have, or may have seen uniformed St. John Ambulance volunteers on Public Duty at games. You may well not have seen us in Quinte, Madoc, Tweed, Marmora, Napanee or Campbellford. In winter it is obviously necessary for us to dress warmly too, so that often our personnel may not be distinguishable from the other spectators. I do know, from our Divisional records the amount of time spent and number of cases treated by our St. John people at local hockey games. One of our Ambulance Division men has, for instance, attended all Novice All-Star games this year, if for no other reason than that his son is a player. We have an Emery man on duty at Fee Wee games in Belleville as we are able to supply. One must bear in mind that these men are volunteers, that they too have family obligations and often have to work night shift or on Saturdays. In Picton you will have seen Nursing Members on duty at Trenton both men and women.

Since it is physically impossible for our members to be at the arenas when all hockey games are on from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. might I suggest that it would be nice if we could persuade all of the hockey, rugby and softball coaches to receive a course in first aid? Often they are dealing closely with the boys and going with them to play in distant towns, where there are no St. John Ambulance volunteers. These coaches invariably are working men who are employed by local industry which, in turn, is required by Warmen's Compensation Regulations to have certain numbers trained in First Aid. Why not then have the coaches trained, thereby serving both their employers and their sports activities? While I am at it, may I add that we would like to have every school sports teacher on every leader of Scouts, Guides and other groups trained and efficient in First Aid. Training these is an important part of the work of St. John Ambulance and we are ready to do it if they want such knowledge.

Those interested in swimming and aquatic sports might give thought to having 50cc groups trained in Artificial Respiration next month. Last year members of this Corps alone trained 1600 persons in that skill. In Belleville our work is made possible by your support of United Appeal.

J. W. Hodgson,
Corps Superintendent,
Quinte.

Blanks Astros 4-0

Cards' Johnson Tosses One-Hitter

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Al Johnson, St. Louis' stylish Ittle, left - hander, allowed only one hit—a leadoff single by Bob Aspromonte in the eighth inning —as the Cardinals blanked Houston Astros 4-0 Tuesday night.

It was the third one-hitter in the majors this spring and the first in the National League.

Bill Rohr of Boston Red Sox, making his big league debut, 11 days ago against New York, held the Yankees hitless until Tom Tresh singled with two out in the ninth. Two days later, Baltimore Orioles' Steve Barber went into the ninth with a no-hitter against California Angels before yielding a one-out single by Jim Fregosi.

Johnson who came to St. Louis in a 1965 winter trade, was in command. He fanned five, walked three and struck out three in hiking his early - season record to 2-1.

While Jackson was pinking Houston with his single straight loss, Juan Marichal won for first time in four decisions, scattering seven hits San Francisco Giants' 6-1 victory over Cincinnati Reds.

In other National League games New York Mets edged Chicago Cubs 2-1 in 10 innings behind rookie Tom Seavers' four - hitter; Pittsburgh Pirates whipped Philadelphia Phillies 7-3 and Atlanta Braves rocked Los Angeles Dodgers 7-1.

Catcher Tim McCarver gave Jackson all the help he needed with a two-run homer off loser Chris Zachary in the second inning. Lou Brock doubled and scored in the third. Steve West, a run-scoring single in the fourth.

Marichal, who lost his first three starts, ended Cincinnati's five - game winning string, pitching out of jams in the second and third inning.

Tony Perez' sixth inning homer ruined the Giant ace's shutout bid.

Jim Hart pounded a two-run homer in the first inning, Marichal doubled another run scored in the second and the Giants knocked out Cincinnati's 19-year-old rookie Gary Nolan with three more in the sixth.

Ron Taylor, the Mets' fifth hurler in the 10th inning, took second on a sacrifice and third on a wild pitch, and scored the winning run on Al Lupkow's single.

Willie Stargell lashed a homer and single, drove in four runs and led the Pirates past Philadelphia. Relievers Billy O'Dell blanked the Phillies over the last 4 1-3 innings to earn the victory.

Ricy Carty slammed a two-run homer and Mack Jones knocked in two runs with a single and double, as the Braves trounced the Dodgers behind Phil Niekro's 2-0 record. Johnson, who scattered seven hits,

Named National Coach

For the second time in succession Ken Carr - Brant, manager - coach of the Belleville Apollo Barbell Club has been named coach of Canada's national weightlifting team for the Pan American Games scheduled for Winnipeg in July.

KEN CARR-BRANT

Carr - Brant headed the team at the British American Games in Jamaica last year. He also coached the squad at the Pan - American Games in Sao Paulo, Brazil two years ago.

A Carr - Brant protege Price Morris heavyweight champion of Canada is virtually assured of a place on the national squad.

Morris set a new record in lifting a short time ago when he broke the mark set by Doug Hepburn, famous Canadian lifter, which had stood since 1953.

He is training for the Games trials which will be held in Montreal on June 3rd.

Australian Girls Enjoy Hospitality Quinte-Style

Yesterday was the day before — and a big day it was for two girls in the Quinte district, if they had time to think about it.

April 25 was Anzacs Day, the big national holiday for Australians — who also live in a time zone 36 hours ahead of North Americans.

But Kaye Dalton and Judy Sullivan could be forgiven an extra dash of sentiment in their patriotic toasts as they gathered with new-found friends in the Quinte district.

It's the first time they've been half the world away from home and the event — plus the time difference — only serves to emphasize intercontinental paradox.

The Quinte district is a staging post on a round-most-of-the-world trip the girls are earnestly embarked on.

It's also among the most important as far as they're concerned since they're out to meet people and take their impressions back Down Under. The adventuring Aussies won't be staying as long in most other North American centres.

"I think you get to know a lot more about the world by travelling through it than anyother way," says Kaye, who is a primary-grades school teacher.

Judy agrees and reveals impetus was loaned the partnered project by earlier trips to neighboring New Zealand and Fiji.

We decided to take off and meet stacks more people and see as much of the other countries as we could."

Currently they're meeting "stacks" of people courtesy of their hosts, Avondale school principal Burle Summers and his wife, Kay.

Their stay is a link in a chain of friendships forged when the Summers' were in Australia. (Prior to her marriage, Mrs. Summers was Kay Homan, well-known in Quinte district junior farm and community recreation enterprises).

After attending teachers' college there, Mr. Summers taught school for 16 months before returning to Canada. One of the friends they made Down Under contacted the Canadians before the girls left and the Summers' offered the hospitality at their home, south of Roslin.

Kaye and Judy arrived 10 days ago and have been going ever since.

They're not only been introduced, all around. The Summers' even helped them secure a job at a new restaurant in Trenton this week.

They'll work there for about a month, when their plans call for an Expo trip as the next leg. After that, it's through the northwestern U.S., Saskatchewan, Alberta and finally — on October 3 — farewell to Canada as they leave for Britain, via Panama.

Right now, however, they're sitting tight waiting for finer weather, understandable when it's remembered that right now its only the end of summer in Australia, and recent beach temperatures there were 110 degrees.

The contrast was starkly sent home when both girls visited their first real North American beaches Sunday at the Sandbanks and Outlet Park — chilly and deserted.

Their "beautiful-but-blooming-cold" verdict sums up their reaction to what they've seen in the Western Hemisphere since their arrival.

They've seen more than, taking kindly to a Canadian's advice on the best over from Sidney in February that they stay away from Canada's winter. Instead, on arrival in Vancouver, they embarked on a 'bus tour through the U.S. southwest before swinging towards the 49th parallel again — for Spring arrived.

The differences range from the seeming hugeness of farmstead barns — there's little call for stock shelter in sunny Australia — and driving on the opposite side of the road, to higher costs.

This is particularly noticeable in such things as food and accommodation.

They have been impressed by natural splendors — like the Grand Canyon — and man-made history — particularly the mission complex of El Paso.

Mostly there has been humor:

Like the one who wanted to know if Australians had to nail their shoes on.

Or the American who asked if Australia was as big as the U.S. Pacific base of Guam — 32 miles at its widest.

Americans are usually surprised to hear Australia is about as big as the U.S. itself.

However, Canadians needn't scoff.

The other day a Belleville man, who had visited Down Australia, asked the girls if that wasn't near where Expo was.

They pointed out Expo was in Montreal, which was in Quebec, which was part of Canada.

"Oh no," corrected the woman quite definitely. "Quebec isn't part of Canada."

The biggest contrast registered so far is the pace of life in both hemispheres, say the girls.

The bustle, particularly in the great North America metropolitan centres is overwhelmingly frenzied, compared to the continent they count home.

While North Americans seem to live under stress, Australians take restless setbacks in their stride and "don't get into a flap" when schedules go awry, says Kaye.

With so many bus stations as terminal points in their trip they've had ample opportunity to observe the mobile society of modern North America on home plate.

Watching passengers aimlessly loafing in the fore as buses pull up, the girls made one observation that could be a key comment on life in this hemisphere:

"Everyone seemed to be pushing to get to the front."

TRACTOR DRIVER KILLED

ST. THOMAS (CP) — Ted White, 34, of nearby Aylmer was killed Tuesday when the tractor he was driving collided with a car on Highway 3 about four miles east of here. The driver of the car, Basil Storie, 71, of Welland was taken to hospital with chest injuries. His wife Florence, 68, received multiple injuries.

Down Under It's Dreamy...

Deserted Outlet beach, chilly water, is stark reminder to Australians Kaye Dalton and Judy Sullivan they're in Canada. Their homeland, famed for its seashores, now is crowded at end of summer season.

Divers Recover Body From Quarry

NAPANEE — The body of Oscar Vankoughnett, 52, of R.R. No. 2, Joyceville, Ontario, was recovered April 25 at 10.30 a.m. by scuba divers. It was recovered from Baker's quarry on No. 33 Highway, after the divers, Prov. Const. J. E. McCormick of Madoc detachment and civilian diver Frank Lochasaul from Trenton had spent approximately 10 minutes in the water.

Mr. Vankoughnett was operating a bulldozer on Monday when it went off a ramp into approximately 25 feet of water. Another employee in the immediate area attempted to save Mr. Vankoughnett but was unsuccessful. Dragging operations were kept until dark without success. The scuba divers were called in to begin work Tuesday morning.

The Napanee detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police directed the operations under direction of department head Sgt. G. L. Langton.

Around Town

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES

DESERONTO — The guest speaker for the 12th anniversary services of the Deseronto Pentecostal Church April 9 was the Rev. T. G. Mill of Kingston. Mr. Mill is the former pastor of Gospel Temple there, and director of Gospel Echoes, which is heard weekly on CKWS-TV. He remained for the following week to conduct special meetings, which were well attended and inspiring.

PRESENT CHEQUE

A signal honor was recently paid to four Mohawk women of Deseronto and the Tyendinaga Reserve. As their special project, the Salvation Army Home Leagues of mid-Ontario have been raising funds for a home for Indian girls in Northern British Columbia. At a rally held in Kingston, Mrs. S.Alfard Claus, Sr., Mrs. Johnston Brant, her daughter Cheryl and daughter-in-law Mrs. Shirley Brant, were chosen to present the cheque for $2,000. Mrs. Lt. Col. Hawkes of Belleville Home League leader, accepted the cheque from the four, who were in tribal dress for this occasion.

Alexandra Students In Ottawa

The Grade 8 classes and senior boys special education class of Queen Alexandra School, Belleville, enjoyed a bus tour of Canada's capital on Friday, April 21.

By leaving before seven in the morning, they were able to be in Ottawa in time to have a tour of the Parliament Buildings.

At the R.C.M.P. Barracks, the group was fascinated to see the "musical ride" in practice. An interesting hour was spent at the Aeronautics Museum at Rockcliffe, where aircraft from The Flying Dart to jets are on display. A scenic tour across to Hull and back to the experimental farm was climaxed by a visit to the National Museum.

One Big Family

There's more Australian here than meets the eye, as young travellers enjoy meal with Canadian hosts Mr. and Mrs. Burle Summers, holding children Gillian and John. Those peaches Kaye Dalton is serving are Australian parents' four-year stay there.

BC Indians Want All Province Back

VICTORIA (CP) — British Columbia's 43,000 Indians laid claim Tuesday to all the land in the province.

Tsartlip Band Chief Philip Paul, 33, of West Saanich announced B.C.'s 218 bands have united to demand compensation for lands never surrendered to the white man.

"In addition we are seeking compensation for the 100 years of hardship and suffering the Indian people have undergone since Confederation."

At the founding meeting of the Confederation of Native Indians of B.C. in Vancouver Saturday, Mr. Paul was named chief spokesman. Public announcement of the formation of the united front was withheld until Tuesday.

A brief outlining their demands will be sent to the Indian claims commission at Ottawa, he said.

"We are not primarily interested in money, although large amounts are involved," he said.

"British Columbia Indians are the only ones in Canada without a treaty. We want a complete agreement with the federal government to cover education, hospital care and Indian lands."

Indians would retain the title to British Columbia until an agreement was reached.

"Up until now we have been at the mercy of the federal government. Now we are going to play our trump cards."

Indians hoped to conclude a treaty with Ottawa before the end of summer.

Judy LaMarsh Will Retire--Maybe, That Is

QUEBEC (CP)— State Secretary Judy LaMarsh said Tuesday she does not intend to contest another general election but added that her decision to retire may hinge on who is Liberal leader.

"It's pretty hard to tell what the circumstances will be," she told a press conference.

If Prime Minister Pearson runs again and it looks as if "they need people not to rock the boat" by opening Liberal seats unnecessarily, "who knows?" she said.

If Mr. Pearson did decide to retire, "a new leader might be chosen "who I wouldn't follow for $1,000 a day" or it might be someone "who was a good leader and needed support."

Miss LaMarsh, 42, a lawyer, has been MP for Niagara Falls for six years. It is among the few seats that will not be touched by electoral redistribution.

She said she feels six years in Parliament is long enough.

"I don't think 25 years is the House of Commons is my dream of the way to spend my life. I look at Mr. Diefenbaker and I think there are other things to do with your life."

A reporter asked if she plans to get married.

"Is that a proposal?" she replied, pleasantly non-committal.

Miss LaMarsh has talked about retirement before and there has been speculation that she might be appointed to run the CBC, or as educational television network, or be appointed a judge.

However, she ruled herself out as a successor to retiring CBC President J. Alphonse Ouimet.

Radar Plane Falls Into Sea

NANTUCKET, Mass. (AP)— A flaming U.S. Air Force radar picket plane with 16 men aboard plunged into the Atlantic Tuesday night after the pilot apparently tried to avoid homes on Nantucket Island.

Only one survivor, Lieut. Joseph H. Guenet, 28-year-old navigator from Montreal, was picked up by a helicopter. Guenet, father of two children, was reported in satisfactory condition in hospital.

Officials at Otis Air Force Base, Falmouth, Mass., said they had reports before the crash that crew members were manning individual life rafts for a ditched landing at sea, but there were doubts that many could have survived the explosion.

Albert Manning, an experienced private pilot, said that a last-minute manoeuvre kept the plane from striking Nantucket Island. Manning said he is convinced that the pilot "was fighting desperately to get it (the plane) to the water and avoid this summer colony."

"It skidded along the water for about 4,000 feet and when it hit there was this huge burst of fire and a big red fireball," said Rene Orleans. "I'd never seen anything like it."

At the controls of the four-engined superconstellation, when it went down about a half-mile off shore was Cob James Lyle, 47.

The crash was the third fatal plunge in less than two years involving Otis radar planes which fly air defence missions between Newfoundland and Bermuda.

The craft was less than 10 minutes out of Otis and carried about 7,500 gallons of fuel.

Eight minutes after takeoff, Lyle had reported fire in his No. 3 engine—the one close to the fuselage on the right side.

Trenton Response Good To Cancer Fund Appeal

TRENTON—Trenton and area residents are giving more this year than ever before to the Canadian Cancer Society's annual appeal for funds, according to the area campaign chairman, Mrs. George Greer.

With only a quarter of the canvassers reporting, $3,000 towards the 1967 $7,000 objective has been collected. Mrs. Greer said there was every indication this year's total would exceed last year's figure of $7,200.

Commercial and industrial donations in Trenton realized $915.50. This is up from last year. A Batawa residential canvass brought in $152 — $17 up from last year. Middleton Park's campaign last week netted $200 with only half the results in.

Mrs. Greer said in Memoriam donations were higher this year. Donations honoring E. Morton Parker, who died two weeks ago, placed $200 in the fund. Mr. Parker was known to have been very interested in the fight against cancer.

Local unions have helped to swell the fund this year, with several sizeable donations.

The campaign will continue until the end of this month.

Northern Electric Experts Produce Artificial Arm

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian researchers have produced a working model of a battery-powered artificial arm suitable for use by young children.

The arm is controlled through a series of switches which must be worked by the patient.

The researchers say, however, that the device eventually will be adapted to function through the use of impulses in muscles in other parts of the body, eliminating the need for switches. This will make it useful for children who are without arm growth of any sort below the shoulder.

A report on the research appears in the current issue of the Canadian Medical Association Journal.

Clinical experience indicates children as young as four years of age will eventually be able to use the arm through muscle impulses, the report says. Up to now myoelectric arms, or those controlled through impulses in the muscles, have been suitable only for older persons.

A teen-ager from Kingston, Pierre Provencher, is the only Canadian fitted with the Russian-developed myoelectric devices. He lost both arms in 1964 when a home-made rocket exploded, killing a companion. Canada paid $27,000 for patient rights to the Russian invention and Provencher was fitted with a pair at Montreal.

The Journal report was written by researchers Peter B. Nicholls, David A. Stevenson, E. David Sherman, Andrew L. Lippay and Gustave Gingras, all associated with the Montreal rehabilitation institute where the major research work is being conducted.

Researchers with Northern Electric Co. Ltd. in Ottawa produced the electric prototype arms for children in six months.

Legislature Endorses 13 Bills in Principle

TORONTO (CP)—The legislature Tuesday gave second reading—approval in principle—to 13 bills including one which will permit the government to borrow up to $500,000,000 in the 1967-68 fiscal year toward capital expenditures by the government, municipalities and universities.

The borrowing limit under the proposed Ontario Loan Act compares with a $400,000,000 limit in 1966-67 and $150,000,000 in 1965.

All 13 bills were approved unanimously with a minimum of debate although Attorney-General Arthur Wishart told the house seven of them will be submitted to the legislature's legal bills committee for study.

QUESTION: When is the Kentucky Derby run and which route is best to take? Also main places of interest to see in the vicicity, especially the horse farms.

ANSWER: The Kentucky Derby is run the first Saturday in May at Churchill Downs in Louisville, Ky. Free tours of the grounds and gardens are held June through Sept. 2 daily, 9 to 4

Kentucky colonels are brought out of mothballs especially for the occasion and co-eds become southern belles again. There are parades and steamboat races between the stern-wheelers "Belle of Louisville" and "Delta Queen."

Women vie with each other to see who can come up with the wackiest hat, while men vie to see who can down the most mint juleps.

The weather is mid-summery and the accent is definitely southern. The place is bursting at the seams and hotel reservations are made as much as a year ahead.

It is also appealing because summer comes to Kentucky about a month before it reaches southern Ontario. It stays much longer.

The bluegrass country around Lexington, where the famed horsebreeding farms are located, is certainly one of the beauty spots of North America. The parks have camp and trailer sites, but they also have modern motel units which rent for about $14 a night for two. They also feature dining halls where chicken and southern ham are regular fare, golf courses, riding stables, outdoor theatres and airports.

Park accommodation is booked for July and August early in the year but June, September and even October are pleasantly warm in Kentucky.

The millionaire owners of farms where most of North America's top race horses are born usually welcome visitors all year round. Finding the best farms is a bit tricky because there are so many of them. There is now a place in Lexington called Blue Grass Tours, Chamber of Commerce building, tours—$3.75 for adults and $1.25 for children

After one of these tours you'll agree that horses live better than some people and some of the stables housing million-dollar sires are classier looking than some homes.

Information and maps are available at the Blue Grass Automobile Club.

Another Kentucky feature which a visitor shouldn't leave without seeing is Mammoth Cave, a park site near Bowling Green. It is one of the world's largest networks of underground caverns and one can stop for lunch 287 feet underground.

Almost everyone wants to visit Abraham Lincoln's birthplace, 50 miles south of Louisville, and the Bardstown house, which is supposed to have inspired Stephen Foster to write "My Old Kentucky Home."

"The Belle of Louisville" is an old-fashioned sternwheeler that offers three-hour cruises on the Ohio River. Trips are made Wednesday, Saturday and Sunday at 2:00 p.m., June through August; fare $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for children.

The fastest and shortest route to Louisville from Belleville is No. 401 to Detroit, No. 75 to Cincinnati, Ohio, No. 42 to Louisville, Kentucky. Seventy - five miles east on No. 64 and No. 60 is Lexington, Kentucky.

Mileage from Belleville to Louisville is 790 miles.

First LSD Trip Taken By Chemist by Mistake

Easy-to-get LSD and its increasing use on Canadian campuses are a source of worry to authorities. This story, based on a coast-to-coast survey, explores the extent of its use and efforts to control the hallucination-producing acid.

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Chemist Albert Hofmann was pedalling home from work at Basel, Switzerland, in 1943 when the view from his bicycle seat started looking crazy.

He didn't know it until later but his bike ride was also the first of the LSD "acid trips" that now have Canadian officials scrambling for a solution to the spreading and chancy use of the mind-bristling drug.

Five years earlier a batch of material produced during a search for a drug to ease childbirth had been discarded in a desk in Hofmann's laboratory. Somehow a bit of it got into his system and thereby made him the father of the psychedelic cult fascinating thousands of amateur experimenters in this country and elsewhere.

From chemist Hofmann's dizzy-doodling ride to Vancouver's newly-named "Psychedelphia" neighborhood isn't much of a jump as the acid travels these days. Lysergic acid diethylamide has become cheap and easy to synthesize, and almost any chemist can turn it out. And despite a legal ban on sale for non-medical use, it is readily accessible to the swelling number of Canadians who want a mental merry-go-round ride from its mystic properties.

Pockets of LSD devotees have sprung up here and there in Canada, with the heaviest concentrations apparently in Toronto and Vancouver. A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows wide variations in the intensity of the problem around the country, dwindling to about zero in the Atlantic provinces.

Relatively large usage is reported at some universities as students try out the so-called "mind-expanding" psychedelic—quality of LSD. The best fringe samples its hallucination-producing kicks in such bohemian areas as Toronto's Yorkville district, where one self-styled colony has formed a "church" around it and claimed "freedom of religion" to use it.

There is no clear picture of how many Canadians take LSD. Federal officials say there is a sharp and continuous rise in unauthorized use, especially on university campuses. Most users are young, university age or under.

While LSD is not addictive, Robert MacDonald of the Student Health Service at McGill University, Montreal, said it is habit-forming because it leads to psychological dependency. He also said it is possible for a user's IQ to drop 20 points after long and continued use of the drug.

A student informant at McGill said there is no way of estimating the percentage of the student body taking the drug. Some got it by mail in a piece of blotting paper, which they soaked in water for a dosage. Others got it from campus laboratories, where it is used for research.

Dr. Morton Shulman, former chief coroner for Metropolitan Toronto, said that 10 per cent of the students at one University of Toronto college have experimented with LSD and five of them were so "hung up" on it that they were unable to continue their studies.

Dr. Geoffrey Payzant, a college official, termed the 10-per-cent figure ridiculous, though he said students are experimenting with homemade LSD.

Bob Parkins of Fort William, Ont., managing editor of the student newspaper The Varsity, said there is a "extremely small percentage" of users at the university, though most persons who are well known on the campus know where to get LSD. He knows of no students selling it, he said.

In Hamilton, a student LSD user at McMaster University estimated about 50 at that institution have taken it, along with about the same number of non-university Hamilton people. An RCMP narcotics division spokesman said these members would not be too far out.

Hamilton's Ontario Hospital, having recently treated two LSD users who turned up "confused, frightened and quite furious from visual hallucinations." One of them had asked for help while on LSD trip, fearing he would hurt himself or others. Both were released after a week.

At the University of Western Ont. trip-in London, a co-ed user of LSD said marijuana said between 30 and 50 students there are experimenting with either these or with hashish.

"I know one fellow on campus who holds regular parties and passes out $20 worth of LSD to kids free, for kicks, just like it was candy."

In a sampling of other Ontario universities, LSD was reported almost impossible to get in Kitchener, home of Waterloo and Waterloo Lutheran universities. It is described as no problem at Queen's in Kingston, where it was said to be available but not widely used.

"In Cold Blood" Could Have Been A Nine-hour Movie

This is the third in a series by Bob Thomas Associated Press movie writer, on the filming of the picture In Cold Blood in the actual location of the brutal slaying on which author Truman Capote based his best-selling novel.

GARDEN CITY, Kan. (AP)—Truman Capote clashed at his book with a tissue and said in his small-boy's voice: "It's my own fault, I guess, riding all the way from Kansas City with the top down at a convertible."

The author had made the 400-mile trip to witness the filming of his novel In Cold Blood and caught a cold.

Capote was staying at the Santa Land Motel, where he had resided during his research into the 1959 murders of the Clutter family.

"I spent a great deal of time here—18 months in all," he explained. "I like seeing my friends again, but really, what in there to do in Garden City, Kans.?"

One thing was to visit the set of In Cold Blood.

He said the Richard Brooks script was a condensation of his book—"it had to be condensed, or it would be a nine-hour movie." Producer - director Brooks had carried out his specification, said Capote, that the movie had to be shot in black-and-white with unknowns.

What about John Forsythe, who plays the killers' nemesis, Alvin Dewey of the Kansas Bureau of Investigation?

"Well, John Forsythe was unknown to me," said the author.

Several critics had sport with Capote's claim that he had invented a new literary form with his "non-fiction novel," but the author himself believes the experiment to be wholly successful.

"It had been tried before in different forms, but never with the idea of taking the facts of an actual event and fashioning them into a novel-like book in which I never intruded.

"By researching the case for 5½ years, I actually placed myself in the eyes and heads of the characters, yet I never was seen. That was an achievement."

Sideline Turned Doctor Into Mr. Show Business

NEW YORK (AP) — First he was a violinist. Then he became a top doctor.

Then, as the result of one simple idea, he switched to a new career that has made him almost a legendary figure in show business. In fact, he is sometimes referred to as Mr. Show Business.

Relatively little known to the general public, Jules C. Stein, now 70, is the philanthropist financier who founded and is chairman of MCA Inc., holding company for a $200,000,000-a-year entertainment, real estate and banking empire.

Stein, son of a South Bend, Ind., dry goods store owner, worked his way through the University of Chicago and Rush Medical College playing the violin and saxophone. After a year at the University of Vienna he became chief resident ophthalmologist at the Cook County Hospital.

"As a sideline I was booking bands," he recalled. "As the time bands often played in the same spot for years.

"I conceived the idea that bands ought to move around more from place to place—the idea of the traveling band."

The idea proved an instant bonanza. Stein founded the Music Corporation of America in 1924 and a year later gave up the practice of medicine.

His firm, in addition to booking bands, began to manage individual performers in vaudeville, motion pictures, radio and eventually television.

Stein, a small slender, white-haired man with genial brown eyes and a chipper manner, chuckled drily as he recalled the temperamental problems of dealing with some of the stars he helped make famous.

"My medical background often stood me in good stead because some of my clients also became patients," he said, "and sometimes that the more neurotic an artist was, the better also was his talent.

"Their greatness was exemplified by their difference from normal people. In my opinion you shouldn't go into the artistic or medical fields unless you are warm or sensitive in personality. Great artists may often be emotional, but they aren't cold-blooded."

To Your Good Health

Retardation Has Variety of Causes

Dear Dr. Molner: A film was shown on what makes a retarded child. It said that if the mother hadn't had German measles before, and got it during pregnancy, the child would be retarded and deformed.

I never heard of this before and was wondering if there was any truth to it. I have a retarded daughter and am quite sure I never had German measles. — Mrs. F. B.

It's true. If the mother has German measles very early in pregnancy (first three months) there is great possibility that the child will be defective in some respect, whether it is mental or both.

This is only one of many causes of retardation, however. The causes fall into several main categories: heredity; illness occurring early in pregnancy (some drugs are dangerous); or something that happens to the child after it had been born.

The significance of having German measles before pregnancy is simply that if you've had them, the disease and you are protected against getting it again.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am an alcoholic but haven't had a drink in over a year. Recently I have been working too hard and was advised by a friend in A.A. to take niacin to pep me up.

It seems to help but I get a tingling sensation when I take it. Could it be harmful or dangerous? I had a physical recently and nothing was found wrong. — Mrs. C.

Niacin is one of the B-complex vitamins. In large doses it has an effect of dilating the blood vessels. This gives you a flush or tingling sensation, but it hasn't only a few minutes and is not harmful.

However, neither niacin nor any other vitamin is the answer to fatigue. True, you may feel better temporarily but there is no substitute for adequate rest, and adjusting your work to suit your energies. (Congratulations on the year in A.A.)

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it true that a woman using oral contraceptives ("the pills") must change to another brand after three years because the system becomes immune and pregnancy is possible? — Mrs. G.

No, that is not so. There are differences in ingredients, strength and schedule of use for different kinds, but there remains a fundamental similarity in the way of all of them work. Therefore follow exactly the instructions given for your type of pill.

Pregnancy when the pill is being used, is the result of breaking the dosage schedule one way or another.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have something wrong with my eyes, black spots or lines. I went to an eye doctor, and he called it floaters. He pointed the picture kind of dark, and said it could get worse. I wish you could give me a little encouragement. — Mrs. A. S.

Floaters are quite common as we grow older and rarely indicate serious trouble — merely specks in the eyeball fluid. They come and go without apparent reason. There is nothing we can do except put up with 'em and (when examination has ruled out anything serious as in your case) not worry.

Dear Dr. Molner: I know a Shoshyis for diabetes should be taken first thing in the morning. Is it best at any other time in the day? — true analysis? — H. N.

You are mistaken. The first urine test in the morning is the least reliable for detecting early or mild diabetes. A specimen collected two hours after a large meal is more reliable. (If there is doubt, a sugar tolerance test should be done. That is a type of blood test.)

General's Report to Congress Seen as LBJ Bid for Backing

WASHINGTON (CP - AP)— Gen. William, Westmoreland's pending report to the U.S. Congress appears to be a Johnson administration bid for wider support as the air war against North Vietnam escalates.

But it also could help create a climate for commitment of more U.S. troops in South Vietnam if President Johnson should decide such a course is necessary.

Westmoreland's staff officers in Saigon have, for many months, spoken in terms of needing another 100,000 men beyond the 470,000 now due in the war area by the end of the year. American military strength in Vietnam now totals about 439,000.

Westmoreland's address, to be delivered to a joint session of Congress Friday, comes against a background of apparent hardening of the administration's war attitude.

Such a hardening showed itself after North Vietnamese rejection of Johnson's latest bid for reciprocal moves that could lead to peace talks with North Vietnam.

The air war against North Vietnam has escalated markedly in the last few weeks. The bombing of Vietnam is going on at the incredible rate of more than 3,000 pounds a minute—around the clock.

In March, over both Nagh and South, American planes dropped 77,000 tons of bombs—a one-month record for the war.

Pentagon sources said Westmoreland's speech will be a military progress report, summing up where the war stands today compared with two years ago.

The scheduled congressional appearance of the U.S. military commander in Vietnam renewed bitter debate on the Senate floor Tuesday.

Critics of U.S. policy in Vietnam, led by Senator J. W. Fulbright, claimed that Westmoreland was being used as a propaganda tool.

Westmoreland told the annual meeting of the Associated Press in New York Monday that U.S. troops in Vietnam are "dismayed" by "unpatriotic acts" of dissent at home that give the Communists hope they can win politically what they can't by force.

Fulbright warned that "this criticism of dissent" will lead to charges of disloyalty and eventually "treason" against those who oppose the president.

Fulbright forecast a drive for vastly-increased manpower in an effort to win a military victory in Vietnam.

Senator Robert Kennedy (Dem. N.Y.) said that the drive to win a military victory with its attendant escalation could lead to a Third World War.

"As nearly as we are standing here, the Soviet Union, the Chinese Communists and North Vietnam will have to react to what we have done by acting themselves," Kennedy said of this week's U.S. air strikes against MiG fighter bases in the North.

Senator George McGovern (Dem. S.D.), who is up for re-election, said he is convinced "that the new level of escalation . . . has brought us one step closer to World War III inviving the Russian legions of China backed by the enormous firepower of Soviet Russia. . . . I do not intend to remain silent in the face of what I regard as a policy of madness. . . ."

Chairman Richard Russell of the Senate armed services committee said Westmoreland is giving a "well-reasoned assessment" of the war situation. Westmoreland told the AP meeting that he sees no end to the war except by exerting maximum military pressure to grind the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese supporters down.

China warned today that it was "ready to undertake the maximum national sacrifices" to support North Vietnam, but there was no mention what form they would take.

China-born Chester Ronning, Canadian authority on Asian affairs, said in Regina Tuesday that bombing on an escalated scale in North Vietnam "could raise the possibility of bringing China into the war."

Research Support Economical Program

MONTREAL (CP)—The government's policy of providing financial incentives or assistance to industry to foster research and development is far less costly than any other possible system, Industry Minister C. M. Drury said Tuesday night in a speech delivered by his deputy minister, Gordon W. Hunter.

Such assistance is essential to help industry meet some of the risks inherent in research and development, Mr. Drury said in his speech to the annual meeting of the International Institute of Synthetic Rubber Producers.

The major powers could easily stimulate such programs by massive government expenditures for defence, space and nuclear programs.

Svetlana: Others Shared in Father's Crimes

NEW YORK (AP)—Svetlana Alliluyeva has accused some of the present Soviet leaders of sharing responsibility for killings and other crimes that occurred during the regime of her father, Joseph Stalin.

"I think that many other people who still are in our central committee and politburo should be responsible for the same things for which he (Stalin) alone was accused," she told a televised news conference Wednesday.

During the hour-long session she also described her disillusionment with communism, her conversion to Christianity and her decision to seek haven in the United States to find self-expression in writing.

More than 400 newspaper men packed the conference room at the Plaza Hotel to hear Mrs. Alliluyeva — poised throughout —answer questions drawn at random from written queries submitted in advance. They applauded when it was over.

She drew chuckles with her reply when asked if she would apply for U.S. citizenship:

"Before the marriage there should be love. So if I should love this country and this country will love me then the marriage will be settled. But I cannot say now."

Of her children, a son, 21, and daughter, 17, left in Moscow, she said:

"I don't think something bad will happen to them, because they don't deserve it," she said. "I don't think it (her defection) endangers them because they knew nothing of my plans. . . ."

She said she was baptized into the Russian Orthodox Church in Moscow in May, 1962.

No one, no book influenced her, she said and described finding God "as when the person who was blind, one day his eyes become open and he can see the world and the sky and birds and trees."

She says her main reason for leaving the Soviet Union was the death of her Indian husband, Brijesh Singh, who she said had been denied "the main human right."

This apparently was a reference to Soviet refusal to let her take him to India for medical treatment.

Another reason, she said, was the trial of writers Andrei Sinyavsky and Yuli Daniel, sentenced to prison for having published their works abroad.

The trial and sentence, she said, "produced a horrible impression on all the intellectuals in Russia," and "made me absolutely disbelieve in justice."

Replying to another question, she said there are restrictions on the number of Jews allowed to enter Moscow University—a fact which the Soviet government always has denied.

Hanoi Wants Shippers To Protest Bombings

HONG KONG (Reuters)—The North Vietnam Chamber of Commerce has accused the United States of threatening foreign merchant ships sailing in and out of the country's ports.

A North Vietnamese news agency report said today.

The agency said a statement issued at a press conference in Hanoi referred to a strafing raid by American aircraft on the 2,700-ton Hong Kong-registered freighter Dartford Tuesday.

Six Hong Kong Chinese seamen were reported wounded during the attack on the British-owned vessel.

The statement called on trade bodies all over the world to help "stay the blood-stained hands of the U.S. war criminals and support the Vietnamese people's fight against the U.S. aggressors."

A spokesman for the Dartford's agents here, the Ocean Tramping Co., said a message was received from the ship's captain at 4 p.m. that one of the wounded seamen were in serious condition.

He said the freighter carried a crew of about 30 Hong Kong Chinese and was on charter to Japan Interest. He said the ship was expected to leave Haiphong today.

He added that the company wished to express its "great indignation at the U.S. attack" on a ship which was carrying out normal, legitimate commerce.

In London, Foreign Secretary George Brown, said Wednesday the British consul general in Hanoi has sought an interview with North Vietnamese authorities to assess the extent of damage to the ship and injuries to the crew.

Brown, answering a call from left wing members of the ruling Labor party to protest the attack, said the government will not "influence events by shouting one side on whom to visit our condemnation and seeking to put up with what the other side is doing."

He noted that a British ship was almost sunk last week in Saigon harbor by a Viet Cong mine.

DeGaulle Requests Free Hand

PARIS (AP) — President de Gaulle, employing the characteristic element of surprise, is shaping up his first challenge to the new French parliament and has touched off a wave of criticism.

De Gaulle's government announced Wednesday it will seek blank - cheque powers for six months to speed up economic and social reforms. It will ask Parliament next week for authority to legislate by decree in the economic and social fields for six months without the delay of parliamentary debate and the possibility of defeat.

De Gaulle's working majority in the National Assembly was almost wiped out in the March elections, and he can no longer be certain that his bills will get the quick rubber stamp they previously received.

Sharp Sets September Date for Tax Comments

TORONTO (CP) — Finance Minister Sharp announced the government's timetable for its intentions on the Carter report on taxation on Wednesday night and its lightness caught 1,700 tax experts by surprise.

The minister announced the program at the closing banquet of the Canadian Tax Foundation, where the experts had spent three days looking at the 2,000-page report of the Carter commission, made public Feb. 24.

Mr. Sharp said he wants to see comment of interested persons by the end of next September, so recommendations can be passed on to the cabinet this fall and a white paper containing government proposals published.

Translation of the report, which called for a complete overhaul of Canada's existing tax system, should be passed in 1968, Mr. Sharp said.

Immediate reaction to his timetable was one of doubt of the surprise of foundation officials. Many observers had predicted that serious consideration of the report's recommendations would be left over until next year.

Marcel Cadieux, acting chairman of the foundation, said in thanking Mr. Sharp for his address that members appreciated getting the timetable but added he is "a bit concerned" about having only until the fall to digest the commission's 4½ years of work.

Outgoing chairman Philip Vineberg commented that the foundation had been working under the assumption it had more time.

Many delegates, however, suggested the tight timetable could be a blessing in disguise. Concern about how the government would react to the far-reaching proposals of the report is causing uncertainty in many economic areas and, these doubts should be removed as quickly as possible, they said.

The point about concern over uncertainty had been raised by several speakers during the three-day conference.

Mr. Sharp, who emphasized he was offering clear of any inclination of what his thinking may be on the merits of the report, suggested briefs to the government on the report should concentrate on 12 major points, all dealing with income taxation. Section of the report dealing with sales taxes were simpler and less advance work would be needed on them.

The point he stressed included the commission's recommendation for a capital gains tax, integration of corporate and personal income taxes, including bequests and gifts in taxable income, averaging income over a period of years to determine taxable income, use of a family instead of individual as a tax unit, deduction of expenses in business and employee incomes and lifting tax unit, deduction of expenses in business and employee income and lifting tax benefits now given oil and mining companies.

Mr. Sharp also said the three levels of government will take up an increasing share of Canada's output during the next four years to pay for their programs.

In 1964 federal, provincial and municipal spending accounted for 30.5 per cent of the gross national product. That would rise by say two or three per cent in the next four years.

The issue, he said, is how much public spending will grow and where it will grow, rather than should it grow at all.

MiGs Scarce On Two Bases

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the two North Vietnamese MiG bases struck by U.S. fighter-bombers was empty of Communist jets, Pentagon sources said today.

Only four MiGs were on the other base bombed by American jets Monday, the sources said.

Asked about this, a defence department spokesman said "we don't know for sure" how many Communist jet fighters were on the Kep and the Hoa Loc bases near Hanoi when they were bombed.

The pilots "said they were too busy with their missions to count," the spokesman said.

Because of poor weather, he said, there has been no satisfactory bomb damage assessment by reconnaissance planes.

So Much Love Police Will Be Busy

DETROIT (CP) — There's likely to be so much love around Detroit next Sunday that hundreds of police will be on duty to control it.

John Sinclair, 25, who sells paintings, has organized Detroit's first Love-In, a massive out-pouring of goodwill — if it doesn't get out of hand.

He said the Love-In will take place on Belle Isle, in the Detroit River across from Windsor, Ont.

Sinclair said he expects 20 bands to show up and pay for the love of it, people to express affection for each other, flowers galore and thousands of balloons.

The police will be there to see the milk of human kindness doesn't turn to sexy behavior, Sinclair said.

Marines Repulsed

SAIGON (CP) — North Vietnamese, dug in near the demilitarized zone, repelled a three-day United States marine attack, killing 37 marines, while the United States admitted losing four planes Tuesday over North Vietnam.

The aircraft losses brought to 10 the total number of United States downed since Monday when they began a series of raids on the heavily industrialized areas around Hanoi and Haiphong, a U.S. military spokesman said today.

Communist Hungary have shot down 28 U.S. planes since Monday — 11 over the North Tuesday, 11 Wednesday and four over China near the border.

The American spokesman said two air force Thunderchiefs were shot down during raids on Hanoi and two navy aircraft were lost over Haiphong.

General's Speech Called Blackmail

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. William Westmoreland's mission at home came under Republican attack today as a move to silence Vietnam war critics.

Vice - President Hubert Humphrey told a press conference Wednesday night that no one wants to muzzle "responsible" criticism of Johnson administration policies.

But Westmoreland's charge in the speech that "unpatriotic acts" of protest at home are giving comfort to Hanoi brought criticism from Republicans who had been silent when Democratic critics complained bitterly about ill in the Senate Tuesday.

Senator Mark O. Hatfield, Liberal Republican from Oregon, said the Johnson administration is using "political blackmail" and "McCarthyite tactics" to silence its critics.

Hatfield told a Yale University audience at New Haven, Conn., Wednesday night that "those who dare to challenge the administration's policies do so at the risk of having their patriotism questioned."

The Senator asked whether Americans have "become so mesmerized by the McCarthyite tactics of the administration—the tactics of indiscriminate insinuating of unpatriotic motives to those who dissent—that they fail to recognize the threat of these tactics to liberty."

Senators George Aiken of Vermont and Thruston Morton of Kentucky also protested that the patriotism of those who differ on policy is being questioned.

"It detect an air of desperation on the part of the administration," Aiken said. "I think they are searching for someone to blame for this situation. I have the impression that they are running considerably more escalation."

"Dissent is not unpatriotic," Morton said. "I hold no brief for these draft card and flag burners. We should avoid creating any misclassification in Hanoi, but there can be responsible dissent without burning draft cards and flags."

Greek King Backs Military Dictatorship

ATHENS (AP)—Greece's military dictatorship lifted the curfew in Athens and Pireaus today after King Constantine broke his public silence and gave qualified acceptance to the regime which seized power six days ago.

The 26-year-old monarch met with the new cabinet Wednesday and expressed confidence in "a true and healthy democracy," and expressed the "fervent wish" that parliamentary government would return "as soon as possible."

Life appeared nearly normal in Athens and Pireaus, where the population of Greece's 8,000,000 people live. But the 1.30 to 3.30 a.m. curfew remained in force elsewhere.

Meanwhile, in the first known action against any of the 8,000 persons arrested in the coup, the Athens investigating magistrate subpoenaed Andreas Papandreou to testify in the Aspida treason investigation.

The son of former premier George Papandreou is accused of being a leader of Aspida—Shield—a secret organization of leftist army officers charged with plotting to overthrow the monarchy. Lake Greece out of the Patriotic Front and make it a socialist country.

A military court convicted 15 army officers of treason in the Aspida affair March 16 and sentenced them to prison terms ranging from two to 18 years.

Peking Papers Report Revolt in Western Province, Tsinghai

TOKYO (AP) — Peking wall papers reported today that the deputy military commander of Tsinghai province has staged a coup d'etat against his chief and killed or wounded more than 200 supporters of Mao Tsetung.

This report followed an earlier one that several hundred persons were killed or wounded in fighting April 18 between the Chinese army and 10,000 anti-Maoists in Lanchow, capital of Kansu.

These unconfirmed accounts of wide spread violence in China's far western provinces appeared to mark an intensification of the struggle between Mao, the Chinese Communist party chairman, and supporters of President Liu Shao-chi.

Another aspect of this conflict was mirrored in another wall paper report that Foreign Minister Chen Yi and two famous marshals have been kicked out of China's highest military organization, the military affairs commission of the party central committee.

The mutinous wire - commander in Tsinghai was identified as Chao Yung-chi. The overthrown commander was Gen. Liu Hsiao-chuan.

Chao's action was examined by an emergency meeting of the party central committee, the government, the purge committee and the military affairs commission, and orders were given to set up a military control commission in the province to restore the Maoists, the wall papers said.

The fighting in Kansu swirled around the Kansu Daily in Lanchow, which Maoist Red Guards encircled April 18. Supporters of President Liu on the party provincial committee whipped up an agitated crowd of 10,000 to encircle the cockcicles, the wall paper said. Eight truckloads of army soldiers joined them.

Japanese correspondents in Peking said only three marshals —Lin Piao, Liu Po-cheng and Nieh Jung-chen—are standing on Mao's side following the ouster of Chen Yi and Marshals Yeh Chien - ying and Hsu Hsiang-chien.

Planning "Bombshell"

Divide County by Economy Is Proposal of Trenton Clerk

By HARRY MULHALL

NAPANEE — A proposal that northern townships in the Quinte district should be separated into an improvement district thereby aiding expansion of more richly-developed southern areas, startled local politicians here yesterday.

The suggestion was all the more provocative since it came from a veteran municipal figure within the Quinte area — O. W. Larry, Trenton clerk-comptroller.

Mr. Larry ignited quick reaction from involved municipal representatives as he timed the proposal for the end moments of a panel discussion at a Quinte-zone meeting of the Lake Ontario Regional Development Council here.

"I don't think we should think as parochially as this," responded Hastings County Warden William Shannon.

In essence, Mr. Larry's proposal was this:

The southern municipalities of the Quinte area were now involved in construing community problems which had no relation with the pattern of life in the lesser-developed townships of the north and the present municipal boundaries welding both together were unrealistic.

Growth problems had caste them in different economic patterns.

"We are faced with the problem of trying to marry historical-political boundaries with economic ones and I don't think that's the answer," he told the municipal representatives early in the debate in which he was a member of a four-man panel.

Mr. Larry, one of the more articulate figures on the Ontario municipal - administrative scene, held his punchline to the end of the discussion.

Then, he added: "These county boundaries were formed many years ago and the characteristics of these northern areas are different from those of the south."

The northern townships could well be detached from county boundaries north of Highway 7 and formed into an improvement district.

(Interviewed later, Mr. Larry said this suggestion applied to Hastings County townships, in Lennox and Addington County the line could be drawn even further south).

Surmising the reaction to his proposal, the Trenton town administrator added impishly: "I have that as a bombshell."

The proposal drew gasps from several of the municipal representatives listening on the floor of the Lennox and Addington County building auditorium.

It also generated instant response from Warden Shannon Reeve of Marmora in an interview immediately afterwards.

Mr. Shannon said county boundaries were formed with the purpose of equitably distributing the economics of the region between rich and undeveloped areas.

"That's why these counties were set up that way," he added.

But, the northern townships need take no backseat to its richer, southern neighbors.

"The resources of the central and northern part of Hastings County always have tradtionally fed the southern areas — and at great cost and sacrifice of effort.

"My people carried potash through the woods to the southern townships and I don't think it should be forgotten now by the people in the south."

The town of Trenton, he pointed out, was economically assured in other years by the lumber felled in northern Hastings and fed that town's mills.

"And if the mines started up and if Bancroft were to have 10,000 people tomorrow, Mr. Larry would immediately say we should have a share in this assessment."

"I don't think we can think as parochially as this. The facts of the matter are we have 40,000 people and we do have $35,000,000 assessment, which does not lie in the southern townships and Trenton and Belleville.

"You must view the county as a whole."

Joint ventures involving the county and the separated municipalities of Belleville and Trenton have so far included administration of health, welfare of the aged and justice.

"All this has been achieved in good will and they have proven to be economically sound."

"At the present time," said Warden Shannon, "it's important to me that this carry over into the field of education and industrial planning for the county as a whole."

Such a co-operative pattern could extend a standard of living in the Hastings County area comparable to that of Western Ontario

Warden Shannon also revealed he had set up a nine-member committee of county councillors to promote municipal activity in hastings.

Hastings County Warden William Shannon, (left), shares joke with Trenton clerk-comptroller O. W. Larry after both men emerged seriously proposing secession from other at Napanee development conference. Reeve Shannon thought Mr. Larry's area planning proposals no laughing matter.

Police Hunting Two Men

MADOC — Provincial Police late this morning were hunting for two men in bush country 25 miles north of here after they were seen near a stolen car.

Police from Bancroft and Madoc OPP detachments were called in on the search in the Stressbury Lake area, west of Highway 62.

Scene of the hunt is the same general area where armed bandits three years ago fled with loot from a Havelock bank robbery. All were later arrested in the bush, but the money was never recovered.

No connection is believed to exist between today's hunt and the 1964 search for the bandits, all since jailed.

"The Facts Ma'Am..."

While male municipal colleagues have social chat, Tweed reeve Barbara Allen takes time out to get facts on area development at Napanee discussions.

Need of Co-ordinating Municipal Planning Stressed at Meet

NAPANEE — Local government representatives here yesterday learned they have to live with the mistakes of an unplanned past but cannot afford to ignore planning for future community progress.

The need of co-ordinating municipal planning was the key topic at the annual Zone 3 meeting of the Lake Ontario Regional Development Council and its problems were unlocked during a panel discussion with municipal veterans battling questions from yiveteld representatives.

The theme of the session was set at the start in the Lennox and Addington County Memorial building here, when Tweed reeve Barbara Allen posed the first question. Queried Mrs. Allen: "How do you cope in a small rural municipality the size of mine, with the bodge-podge of development that's occurred in the past 100 years, without any planning whatsoever?"

Panel member Harold Costell, reeve of North's Grimsby township and chairman of the Lincoln County Planning Committee, had a direct answer:

"Every town has a hodge-podge and you have to live rith what you have."

Municipalities, however, can redesignate land use and wait for the unplanned problems of the past "to go out of business." And the mistakes of the past should not discourage smaller municipalities from introducing land-use studies.

Failure to do this in the past in big-city areas has resulted in a legacy of decay and urban renewal problems "they will never surmount."

"That's why it pays to plan now," said Reeve Costell. "You have to live with what you've got. But you don't have to live with what you can plan against."

Neither need planning be costly to a municipality, the panel of government representatives were told.

Woolwich township reeve Howard Ziegler emphasized members of a planning board could work gratis.

Planning consultant Paul Pirie estimated cost of an official land-use plan drawn for a municipality could work out at less than $1 per capita.

The fourth panel member, Trenton clerk - comptroller O. W. Larry, revealed what could be achieved by co-ordinating municipal expansion — even unofficially.

While municipalities in the immediate Belleville - Trenton bayshore area have no joint planning boards, representatives meet formally on mutual planning problems.

"The committee has no status — it is informal," he told the session. "It was first stimulated by the urban sprawl into municipalities where it was considered there was insufficient (planning) control."

One optimist of the group has been "a measure of success" in a combined Prince, Edward-Hastings health unit.

Panel chairman David Logan, Lindsay town councillor, warned the benefits of area planning were in ratio to the efforts of participating municipal councils.

"If not, area planning is going to come to this part of Ontario — and if we don't partake of it, it's going to come in a fashion that's not advantageous to our thinking."

The significance of area planning was emphasized earlier by Mr. Pirie in the session's afternoon speaker.

"A community does not stop at municipal boundaries," said Mr. Pirie. "Any planning for an area has to take cognizance of the area outside the municipal limits."

"Otherwise, we're simply tampering with part of the piece and this isn't going to work out in the long run."

Five needs justified the need of large - scale planning unhindered by local boundaries:

Transportation, overall landuse patterns, parks and recreation facilities, utilities and public services and pollution control.

"All these things transcend municipal boundaries and are better handled on an overall scale," said Mr. Pirie.

Sentence Suspended

TRENTON — A 15-year-old Toronto area girl, charged with possessing a dangerous weapon, was placed on a year's suspended sentence in Brighton Juvenile court Wednesday by Magistrate R. B. Batten. The charge was brought by OPP following a stabbing incident at Hart's Corners' School, north west of Trenton, earlier this month. A 14-year-old girl suffered a two-inch wound to her chest during a recess baseball game and another young girl had her jacket slashed. The wounded girl has recovered and is back at school.

A second charge against the juvenile, one of committing assault causing bodily harm, was dismissed by the magistrate.

"I don't think we can afford to ignore it," he told the session. "It was first stimulated by the urban sprawl into municipalities where it was considered there was insufficient (planning) control."

One optimist of the group has been "a measure of success" in a combined Prince, Edward-Hastings health unit.

Federal Water Lot Fees Could Stymie Trenton Riverfront Plans

TRENTON — A federal department of transport crackdown on charging fees to commercial property owners along the Trent and Rideau Canal systems may lead Trenton officials to reconsider plans for face-lifting town waterfront areas.

A department spokesman announced yesterday the federal government has decided to enforce a long standing policy requiring lease payments for the use of submerged lands bordering docks or other structures.

Primarily affected this year will be commercial properties such as marinas and fishing camps along the two Ontario pleasure craft routes. Private cottagers are expected to be temporarily exempted.

Mr. Larry said the town may take "a second look" at immediate plans to extend the existing wall to the municipal parking lot and a long range scheme to build extensive retaining walls on both sides of the Trent to prevent erosion and to tidy up the riverfront.

W. D. Bennett, superintendent of canals on the Trent System said from Peterborough this morning the federal department has jurisdiction over waterfront properties from Trenton's existing town bridge northward.

He noted that any Trenton industries that are using docking facilities on the Trent "for their own profit" would come under the terms of the new crackdown.

Mr. Bennett surmised that if municipalities such as Trenton were going to be charged there is a possibility a separate rate will be struck.

At the same time, the department has announced a revision in the formula for annual lease charges, which formerly were based on the assessed value of shore property. In future, fees will be based solely on the amount of water occupied by the dock or other mooring structure.

For a water lot with an average distance from shore of up to 50 feet, the charge will be 20 cents for each foot of frontage.

Lots extending 51 to 100 feet out will pay 30 cents per frontage foot.

And the frontage rate increases by 10 cents on each additional 50 feet to a maximum 80 cents on lots of 301 feet or more.

The annual minimum charge will be $25 for water lots under 100 feet and $30 over 100 feet.

Two Weeks Until College Bridge Opens

Belleville motorists are going to have to wait another two weeks before they will be able to use the new four-lane College Street bridge.

This was confirmed yesterday as a result of a meeting of city officials at the bridge site with Dansas and Smith, consulting engineers, and the general contractors, Mastercraft Engineering and Construction Ltd.

The meeting was held at the request of Mayor J. R. Ellis to determine the feasibility of opening the structure to vehicular traffic in advance of completion of the work by the contractor, as had been asked two weeks ago in city council.

Yesterday the contractor strongly urged that the project not be opened until paving was completed and said he had been assured of a supply of asphalt by May 1. The contractor said it would take several days to prepare the bridge approaches for temporary use and felt the gain of a week's use of the structure did not justify the confusion which would result from mingling of traffic and construction equipment.

The consulting engineers said the work remaining to be done prior to asphalt laying May 5, and recommended the project remained closed until the asphalt work was completed.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell feels there would be more to lose than gain by opening the structure ahead of the paving work and he and Mayor Ellis concurred in the consulting engineers recommendation.

Plug for Fishing Contest

All fishermen are invited but it isn't necessary to enter the Trenton Legion's fishing contest on May 6 to win a prize. Just guess the weight of the hardboard fish to which derby chairman Bill Smith is pointing and win $25.

Cemetery Vandalism Reported

TRENTON—Brighton village police are investigating vandalism in Brighton cemetery, brought to light recently when Rover Scouts undertook to clean up the cemetery as a Centennial project.

Chief Thompson said yesterday he had issued warnings to the parents of a number of juveniles. He said he wasn't sure if the department or the press charges as he felt a warning might be enough to discourage the youngsters from repeating their actions.

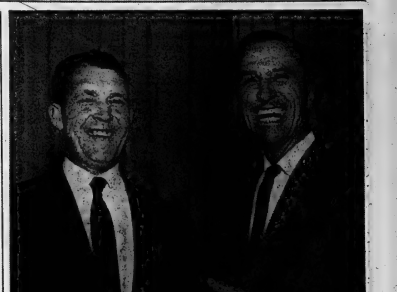
Tombstones had been broken and overturned and in some cases carried away to another spot, the chief said, but added that he wasn't sure if some of the damage had been committed recently or if it was a matter of long standing.

Water Pollution To Be Subject Of Conference

By HARRY MULHALL

NAPANEE — Work is under way organizing a large-scale conference to discuss water pollution in the Quinte district and its surrounding areas.

The conference will be sponsored by the Lake Ontario Regional Development Council and will aim at "definite recommendations."



The project was revealed to municipal councillors attending the LORDC Zone 3 meeting here yesterday.

"Realizing how important clean water is to the welfare and economy of the region the council has set up a committee to carry on this important project," said LORDC manager Don Kingdon.

"The conference, it's hoped, will be a working conference and definite recommendations will be the result."

Among other projects, the council will help tourist promotion through a new regional recreation booklet, known as SHARE — Seven Holiday Areas Promotion Executive.

Clarence Milligan of Napanee was named council chairman for the coming year with Jean Greenwood, Belleville; Belleville; Dr. Allan Hawley, Bath and Tweed reeve, Barbara Allen.

Fred Evans, of Rednersville last night named Liberal candidate for the provincial riding of Prince Edward-Lennox, is congratulated by runner-up Dan Nielsen. More than 300 attended the convention.

Fred Evans, Rednersville, P.E.-Lennox Liberal Choice

PICTON (Staff)—A 51-year-old Rednersville man Wednesday night was nominated in Picton, as the candidate to carry the "Liberal Banner" for Prince Edward - Lennox in the forthcoming provincial election. Fred Evans won out over one other candidate, Dan Nielsen, a former Edward County farmer. Evans is an NPF Administrator working at Trenton and is retired from the RCAF.

There were eight nominees— however six declined to stand for the leadership post leaving Nielsen and Evans on the slate.

Over 300 members of the Liberal party of Prince Edward - Lennox, had a packed auditorium at Queen Elizabeth School, heard each nominee speak for 10 minutes prior to the balloting. Nominated were Dr. Lionel Dockrill, vice-president of the Prince Edward-Lennox Association; Mrs. Harry Slavin, chairman of the Liberal Association; Fred Evans, Mrs. Frank (Alberta) McConnell, Fred Creighton, Dan Nielsen, Donald Baxter, Ken Casey.

Guest speaker for the nomination meeting was Farquhar Oliver, MPP for Grey-South, who was introduced by Don Baxter and thanked by Dr. Robert Clapp.

"The Tory party in this Province today is only a shadow of its former self", said Mr. Oliver speaking to a crowd of well over 300 Liberals at the meeting. He could promise 80 per cent of the election taxes would be taken over by the Liberal government if they are put in power. "Mr. Davis" he said, "says he can't be done". Mr. Oliver emphasized last night that it "not only can be done — it must be done and will be done".

On the forthcoming election, Mr. Oliver said, as could—and predict a date now, "it may be called in June or it could possibly be held over until November". In closing his address Mr. Oliver took the stand of the farmers present and said, he fully stands for the emancipation of the farmers of the province "So they may receive the fruits of their labors". And as Dan Nixon he said, "He will bring to Ontario the kind of government we haven't had since the early days of Mitch Hepburn, "Ontario," he said, "is for Ontario people and not for any select clique."

Dr. Lionel Dockrill, Vice-President of Prince Edward-Lennox Liberal Association along with five others decided to stand as leader of their party at a nomination meeting held in Picton's Queen Elizabeth school last night.

Rapping Robarts, Dr. Dockrill said, "He came along at an opportune time, when things were on the rise, he's been riding the crest of that wave ever since."

Dan Nielsen, Prince Edward County farmer and runner up for the leadership of the riding, criticized Queens Park government for being "too busy" to meet with 1,500 farmers from across Ontario, who were in Toronto to speak to the Government on farm problems.

Police Powers Controversy

Chief John McLauchlan Backs Colleague's Brief

If society wants to win the war on crime it must first allow its law agencies to operate efficiently, Belleville police chief John McLauchlan, said today.

The chief's comments were stimulated by the clash of Canada's police chiefs and civil liberty groups over police requests for wider powers to fight crime — including the right to search homes without warrants and to arrest suspects without filing charges.

The proposals have drawn outraged reactions from some quarters.

Chief McLauchlan said the dissent seemed based on faulty knowledges of the brief.

"I think that those voicing objections are opposing it without knowing the entire reasoning behind these suggestions. At least, that's the way it appears to me."

The chief objected to casting law enforcement agencies in the role of public enemy.

"I'm strongly opposed to the trend of thought that the police are against the public. We're against the law-abiding public," he said.

"And the serious picture of crime in our society suggests the public should stop looking on law enforcement as a game. If it is a game they should stop expecting us to win it by making the ground rules such that the police cannot operate efficiently."

(For Canadian roundup, see Page 12).

Births Strike Even Level

The number of births per quarter at Belleville General Hospital has apparently struck an even level after plummeting from high numbers of a few years ago.

The number of newborn at the hospital in March was 86, compared with up to 115 some years ago.

Admissions of adults and children to the hospital during the month totalled 798. The average length of stay for adults and children was 10.53 days and 7.65 days for newborn.

Out patient visits: occupational therapy and physiotherapy, 441; cardiac, 2; radiology, 736; clinic, 227; radioisotope laboratory, 14 and emergency department, 1,079.

New Set of Scales Installed by City

The city is again back in the weighing business and city hall officials hope their weigh scale troubles are over for years to come.

Some years ago the city purchased a new set of scales which were installed at the Coleman Plate city yard location.

But the scales did not prove entirely satisfactory and frequent breakdowns resulted in the decision that they were too costly to maintain in operating condition.

So council ordered a new set. These have now been installed and went into operation this week.

The old requirement of coal dealers putting loads over city scales no longer applies, but works department officials say there is still considerable use for city-owned scales.

All bulk purchases of crushed stone and other supplies by the city are put over the scales and despite the fact sales of coal no longer have to be city weighed, there is still much commercial use with contractors and others finding that the city scales are a convenience.

Two Sides of Expo

In a rather jaundiced appraisal of Expo an Ontario provincial editor noted for his outspoken and sometimes caustic comments says he is "sick" of the whole thing.

He is tired of the publicity and the freeloading, the politicking and "the barefaced attempt to butter up the French." Not least he is sick over the tax dollars that are being spent on the event.

Well, inevitably, the accomplishment of an enterprise of this nature is costly. It is too much to expect, moreover, that it should be completely devoid of undesirable features. Yet with, its overwhelming success the question remains, has it been advertised enough? Advertisements in news and magazine media here and abroad have been building up to a timely peak, and we may expect them to continue throughout the exhibition.

But anyone who claims to be sick of the Expo theme must reckon with what the exhibition is offering in the way of excitement, interest and potential business for Canada and improved international relations. These are no mean possibilities and this is no time to indulge in carping criticism of what overall is the biggest occasion in Canada's 100 years as a nation. Nor should we overlook the fact that 70 countries are exhibiting at Expo, a concentration of man's talent and genius never before equalled.

The pity is that despite all the publicity, and even ballyhoo, many people will be deterred from visiting Montreal by distance and cost. If only the entire Expo exhibition could go on say to Vancouver for the winter months, and perhaps back to Winnipeg next Spring.

Still, there are limits to any great enterprise. And we can sympathize not only with Canadians living far afield, but with Britons. Beleaguered by economic strains, and with only £50 a head in spending money, few will be able to visit Expo from the United Kingdom.

Yet, inside the British pavilion, according to The Toronto Telegram's Ron Evans, is "the most exciting, funny and genuinely wondrous show to be had at Expo, with the whole history of the island flashed in colored film on a cliffside where real waves beat, trumpets blare and drums roll. . ."

As Evans put it after a recent preview of the exhibition: "When you have finished a whirlwind tour like this there are still 50 or 60 pavilions yet to see . . . but you must try, if it exhausts and bankrupts you."

That's how interesting and amazing Expo should prove!

"Peace" Groups

However sincere the views of the protesters against American participation in the war in Vietnam, it cannot be emphasized too often that this conflict is a two-sided business.

If the United States and its allies were to withdraw, that would leave all of Southeast Asia, and not just South Vietnam, wide open for a Communist takeover.

The American commander in Vietnam, General William C. Westmoreland, put the issue in perspective in a recent address in New York. After saying that troops in Vietnam "are dismayed, as I am, by recent unpatriotic acts here at home," the general said: "Regretfully, I see signs of enemy success in that world arena which we cannot match on the battlefield.

"He (the enemy) does not understand that American democracy is founded on debate, and he sees every protest as evidence of crumbling morale and diminishing resolve. Thus, discouraged by repeated military defeats but encouraged by what he believes to be popular opposition to our effort in Vietnam, he is determined to continue his aggression from the North. . ."

It is the old problem of infiltration and subversion on which Communism from its earliest days has thrived. The "peace" groups in the United States and the west at large have their full share of infiltrators. There are any number of seemingly innocent organizations that are "fronts" for the working out of Communist doctrine.

That is something that needs to be remembered in any consideration of Communist policy, which still looks to the day when ultimately the whole world will subscribe to its alien system.

Ottawa Offbeat

Must Canada's Queen Take Back Seat to Canadian Emperor?

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — You hear all manner of Federal fretting and fussing these days about how General Charles de Gaulle and his people may regard us.

We worry ourselves silly — and silly surely is the word for it — about whether we so affront Le Grand Charles that he fell compelled, in his magnificent bastion, to give us the back of his hand by pointedly not attending, nor even delegating a high level representative to make an appearance at our 50th anniversary remembrance ceremonies at Vimy.

What is even more astounding — and perhaps self-revealing of the current state and mood of Canada — is that we are so consumed with concern for the General's homeathonally renounced sensibilities we seem to lose sight of the one really bad fact in this rather incredible kerfuffle.

And that is that he didn't show the flag at Vimy.

We worry, too, about Ottawa's relations with Paris, and make a political point of talk about our new cultural estesia.

We even have a special Foreign Aid effort going for France's former African colonies — special, presumably, for the reason that they speak French.

We are so busy fussing over the "French Fact," who stops to remember the other "fact" of national life—that we have ties, too, with Great Britain.

Maybe this is the way to have it.

But this assumes, of course, that the British connection is so firmly established as to be indestructible, so that all we have to really worry about is the keeping sweet of our "other mother country," as the Prime Minister several times has spoken of it.

Is such assumption safely if so very conveniently made?

Well, let us take a peek between the pages of the London Daily Express, the largest and most respected mass circulation daily — outside the royal circle of the tabloids — which speaks to a national audience of more than 4,000,000 English readers.

What has it been saying?

Well, here, cabled from Montreal by an Express "team" of newsmen flown over from London to take an Englishman's eye look at Canada and Expo, is an example.

"The Queen will be here and so will the Emperor of Canada.

"The WHO? The WHAT?

"They mean General de Gaulle

"The Emperor of Canada is the underground name for him here in Montreal at Expo '67.

"The visit of the Queen and Prince Philip will be a sneak-in compared with the reception which French-speaking Quebec Province is preparing for de Gaulle.

"He is guaranteed an ecstatic welcome by the people who want to pull Quebec out of the otherwise English-speaking Canadian Confederation that 'celebrates its 100 birthday this year.'

This is a news report — not an opinionated editorial, mind you, but a straight-down-the - middle of the road recital of the strictly objective.

And if you think these are hard uncompromising words read on.

De Gaulle, goes on The Express prose report, while "secretive" about his Expo plans, is expected to make "the grand entrance aboard a French cruiser" up the St. Lawrence about July 25.

"And he probably will seize the opportunity to raise the Tricolor in Quebec City, where the statue of General Wolfe no longer bears the inscription that proclaimed him Victor over Montcalm on the Plains of Abraham.

"Canadian officials who talk to him in Paris have no doubt about his attitude towards the 62-nation Expo.

"De Gaulle believes it will be further glittering evidence of the world-wide rebirth of French esprit.

"As one deeply perturbed Expo administrator put it:

"The General has set on demonstrating to the world that a French state-within-a-state is emerging in Canada."

At this point, the bitter memory of obscenities shouted by university students three years ago at the Queen intervenes:

"Her Majesty, by contrast, will cold-shoulder Quebec despite there will be no repetition of the insults we saw here in 1964."

Then there is sounded from London this note of sadness:

"Alas, the British presence will be further diminished by the 50 pound sterling foreign visitor limit that make it impossible for only a handful of Britons with well-heeled Canadian relatives to come here in 1967."

"While at least 100,000 Frenchmen — more than lived here when Britain first wrested Canada from France — are expected. And that's a diabolical English shame."

But is anybody listening to London these days, with everyone so preoccupied with Paris?

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

April 27, 1947

Major John W. Foote, formerly of Medoc, and the only Canadian to win the Victoria Cross in the last war spoke to a large congregation at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, which included the sorority-uniformed boys' and girls' cadet corps of Albert College.

Matters pertaining to Junior Chamber of Commerce policy in both civic and national matters were discussed over the weekend when delegates of Region VI embracing the area from Peterborough to Montreal met in Belleville for their annual conference and election of officers. Young local industrialist Warren E. Jones was named as regional director for the next year and Tom Carruthers, Belleville, will act as secretary-treasurer.

30 YEARS AGO

At Hotel Quinte last night the Rotary Club, the Kiwanis Club, the Kinsmen Club and the Y's Men Club united in honoring three hockey teams, namely: the Belleville Bantams, the RCAF team and the KI-Y Juvenile champions. A galaxy of the sporting fraternity joined with service clubs in the banquet, presided over by J. McKeown, chairman of the Olympic committee and chairman of the Ontario Athletic Commission, who was the principal speaker. Also present were "Dit" Clapper of Boston Bruins, "Flat" Walsh, the former goalie for the Montreal Maroons, "Toots" Holway, Fred Marples, secretary of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, Orland Pinkston, a local boy, now secretary of the Ontario Conservation Council, Pepper, a local boy, Canadian motorcycle champion, and W. J. "Tommy" Mills, also a local boy, who is a member of the Athletic Commission.

Invitations to the closing dance for the season of the Palencia Club will be out in a few days. A brilliant affair is anticipated.

At a meeting of the City Board of Health yesterday Mr. Thomas Wills, Yeoman St. was appointed sanitary inspector at a salary of $65 per month.

There was a large attendance at the meeting of Women's Canadian Club which was held in the city hall to hear Mrs. H. P. Plumtre of Toronto speak on the subject, "Women as Patriots". Mrs. Plumtre is a leading war worker and is the secretary of the Canadian Red Cross. The address was very informative and interesting. The vote of thanks was moved by Mrs. F. E. O'Flynn and seconded by Mrs. S. W. Vermilyea.

Expo Accommodation

Oshawa Times

The consternation created several weeks ago through widely-published allegations of shady dealings in accommodations reserved for Expo have been largely allayed through subsequent investigations by both police and fair officials.

Despite all the bad publicity, there will almost certainly be accommodation for everybody attending Expo at any one time this summer.

A report in the May issue of Maclean's Magazine examines the various charges laid against Lapointe, the fair's overworked accommodation bureau. The accusations said, among other things, that Lapointe was grossly inefficient, practised discrimination and had indulged in fraud.

The report concludes that: — Only the charge of inefficiency holds any ground at all. In the first days of Lapointe there will be inexplicable delays in filling out a pamphlet explaining exactly how the bureau works. As a consequence letters from would-be visitors from all over North America simply piled up. Now a computer has attracted several service to check the 30,000 letters a week.

— Ample accommodation still exists for anyone planning to visit Expo, though some hotels and motels are inflating prices. Expo will guarantee that no visitor has to sleep on a park bench.

— Fraud was extremely unlikely because Lapointe never handles money. It merely makes reservations and notifies visitors that bookings can be confirmed.

—All landlords with accommodation listed at Lapointe have been cleared of rumours of discrimination. A telephone check with 12 landlords by a Maclean's staff writer pretending to be a Negro failed to show any indication of discrimination.

With all these assurances there unfortunately cannot be a whisper that the "price will be right" for many of the thousands of Canadians wishing to attend.

The Canadian conscription plebiscite was held 25 years ago today—in 1942—as Prime Minister Mackenzie King asked the electorate for release from his "solemn undertaking," given in the election campaign of 1940, 1883 — Sir John Alexander Macdonald's ship Anglo-Saxon sank off Cape Race, drowning 237 people.

Immigration

More Americans Settling in Canada

Financial Post

Canada scours the rest of the world for professional and talented immigrants while the U.S. drains Canadian talent through a one - way pipeline south. That, until last year, was the personnel pattern of Canada - U.S. immigration flows.

The heartening sign today is that the mould may be cracking.

The 1966 immigration figures provide the most startling evidence of change, although partly distorted by exceptional events. The year saw the flow of Canadians to the U.S. drop to 23,000 (40,000 in 1964), while the U.S. stream northward jumped to nearly 18,000 (12,000 in 1964). Canadian officials believe the new Immigration Act has been good and is being followed up by government, industry and education officials. Some provinces are interested too.

How great is the potential for U.S. immigration to Canada? Government officials say that at the moment they don't really know. Middle management and university teachers are two of the heaviest categories among prospective U.S. immigrants.

Ottawa should find out what regions and what occupations in the U.S. are most receptive to recruiting by our Immigration and Manpower people. If Americans are becoming more interested on their own, Canada should fan the interest in every way possible.

History of Income Tax in Canada

Montreal Gazette

Some anniversaries go quite uncommemorated. Perhaps it may be just as well. One anniversary — a 50th anniversary, as it happens — has been going, and scarcely anyone seems to have been aware of it. This is the anniversary of the first, federal income tax in Canada.

It was in 1917 that Sir Thomas White, the Minister of Finance in Ottawa, introduced his Income Tax Bill. He had been reluctant to do so. He admitted that the administration of such a tax would be costly, in a country so big and so sparsely populated as Canada. He was also worried over the possibility that it might discourage immigrants.

But in view of the emergency that existed in wartime, "it is manifest to me," he said, "that the time had arrived when we must resort to this measure.

The income tax on corporations with an income exceeding $3,000 a year would be four per cent. As for individuals, here was the table of taxation, for all married persons, that Sir Thomas presented to the House of Commons:

| Income | Total Tax |
|---|---|
| $3,000 | Nil |
| $4,000 | $ 40 |
| $5,000 | $ 90 |
| $6,000 | $ 120 |
| $7,000 | $ 183 |
| $8,000 | $ 240 |
| $9,000 | $ 300 |
| $10,000 | $ 360 |
| $15,000 | $ 810 |
| $25,000 | $1,800 |

This scale of taxation on incomes was accepted grimly. But it was accepted because an emergency demanded it. And then there were Sir Thomas's assurances that it was a temporary tax only. Indeed, the Minister of Finance hoped that after the war the tax would be not only abolished entirely, but reversed — whatever that meant.

But now 50 years have come and gone. And the income tax is still here. There is a moral to it all — nothing is so likely to be permanent as a "temporary tax."

Costly Endeavor

Race For Moon Ultimately May Benefit Mankind

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

More than an entangled paradox may have caused the tragic death of Soviet cosmonaut Vladimir Komarov.

Western radar screens are reported to have detected that the new Soviet space ship was in trouble before Komarov was ordered to return and that his descent was in effect a full-scale emergency.

Both countries probably realize now that the race for the moon may be costlier in time, machinery and manpower than had been originally anticipated. Many countries are beginning to deplore that there should be a race, at such huge cost, and to plead for a greater degree of Soviet - American co - operation, in that both can reach their objectives in peace and with reduced human sacrifice.

President Johnson has publicly urged such co - operation, though some experts wonder whether his urging had a good deal of diplomatic gloss.

The experts on both sides are aware that the space race has high military significance. Each wants to be first to achieve control over the dynamic extension of the conventional battlefront. U.S. Defence Secretary Robert McNamara has stated it is essential that American military men learn how to operate skilfully in space. Undoubtedly the same kind of view is held by Soviet military leaders.

Nevertheless the high cost cannot be easily dismissed. Lord Bowden, principal of the Manchester University Institute of Science in Britain, has published a book on the economic and space effort as equivalent to a Roman circus. "The most extravagant, most sophisticated and most dangerous system of outdoor relief ever devised by a great nation in peacetime." It was "preposterous" that the U.S. should try to put a man on the moon when so much of the undeveloped world goes unrevitalized because of a lack of funds.

But Lord Bowden and others like him cannot discount the benefits of space exploration— the revolution in automation, space communication and development of new miniature electronic gear.

Reaching the moon and beyond likely will open up vast new knowledge of man's origins and effect his culture and environment.

Searching for the hidden knowledge of the stars might possibly even lead to less quarrelling on earth. That in itself may pay for all the human sacrifice in blazing space trails.

Electronic Aid

Students interested in attending the new Loyalist campus of the new College of Applied Arts and Technology received swift assistance at the recent Science Fair and Hobby Show.

And all by reason of the latest in business machines equipment — an electronic typewriter which beat out answers to students' questions at more than 180 words per minute.

The questions, selected in advance, and with the answers already programmed in the computer-like operation, all the student had to do was select his question and the typewriter programmed accordingly, did the rest.

B. C. Mobilizes for War Against Invading Balsam Bug

VICTORIA (CP)—Aircraft and guns soon may be used in British Columbia's year-old war to repel an alien invader of valuable forests.

The enemy, a bug, surreptitiously slipped into North American from a damaged European country several years ago, hidden in immigrant balsam shrubs.

Less than 1-16th of an inch long, the balsam woolly aphid can maim, cripple, dwarf and kill a tree, or a forest. The tiny insect is so powerful the B.C. forest service ranks it with fire as enemy No. 1.

The forest service says infestation of balsam woolly aphid is a direct threat to the province's 260,000,000,000 board feet of standing balsam and fir timber. The tiny insect could wipe out 14 per cent of the forest which covers nearly three-quarters of B.C.'s 359,278 square mile area.

Balsam's primary use is for pulp, and B.C. has 18 pulp mills operating and 16 more in various stages of planning, says Cy Phillips, chief protection officer for the B.C. Forest Service.

It takes 1,000 board feet of balsam timber to make a ton of pulp, and at current prices a ton of pulp sells for $60. That means B.C.'s stake in its war on the tiny insect could amount to $30,000,000,000.

A joint provincial-federal government project was started in an attempt to find out more about the aphid. Working within a $300,000 project budget, 18 members of the B.C. forest service are making extensive surveys to find the extent of the infestations, so far apparently confined to the lower mainland and southern Vancouver Island.

There also is an infestation of the same insect in the Maritime provinces, but there is a difference. There, the insect attacks the twigs and ends of branches of balsam trees, but here it attacks tree trunks.

To get samples of infected trees, the B.C. forest service is perfecting a strange gun-saw arrangement. A blank cartridge fired from a 9 mm rifle hurls a 30-pound test nylon cord over the top of a 150-foot high fir tree. In the middle of the nylon cord is a small piece of fine wire. Using the wire as a cutting edge two men alternately pull on their end of the nylon cord, sawing off the top few inches of the sample tree without felling it.

Mr. Phillips said the federal researchers now are trying to adapt a carbonium-based spray, which would be applied on the forests from aircraft.

Exactly how it works is still under study, Mr. Phillips said, but it is absorbed through the needles of the tree and somehow builds a sort of chemical immunity of which the tree, against the effects of the aphid.

C of C Gives Buying Guide For Consumers

The Belleville Chamber of Commerce has been flooded recently by complaints of shady business dealings in the area. As a result the chamber has drawn up a five-point buying guide for consumers.

Don't be misled by the dealer, who lures you to his establishment with an attractive advertisement of a standard brand item and then tries to talk you into a higher priced off-brand article.

Be wary of the story that he is all out of the advertised item, or that there will be a long wait for delivery, or that what he now is trying to sell you is better than the advertised article.

Don't be blinded by "bargains" offered at prices which are hard to believe. Check prices of the same quality merchandise or service offered by other dealers and make sure that the advertised article is what it is claimed to be.

Sash phrases as "reduced from", "made to sell at" and the like should act as a warning signal for you to check further.

Don't be rushed into buying anything by talk of a "golden opportunity" or persuasion that it is a "last chance" to get in on a "good thing". Take your time, investigate, and make up your mind carefully.

Don't allow a door-to-door salesman to leave merchandise with you on "approval receipt" until he returns. He may not come back and you will find yourself receiving a bill for an article which you did not want. Always ask for the salesman's credentials.

GM Reports Share Drop

NEW YORK (AP)—General Motors Corp. reported Wednesday that its first-quarter earnings fell to $380,000,000, equal to $1.35 a share, from $594,000,000 or $2.07 a share—a year earlier.

Sales in the first three months of this year slumped to $4,900,000,000 from $5,700,000,000 in the 1966 first quarter.

The decline in profits accompanied a sharp falloff in auto sales in the first quarter. But sales have been making a comeback in April.

Plumbing, Heating Company Will Locate in City

An encouraging business response since the firm moved into rental quarters at Belleville just under two years ago has resulted in Kawartha Plumbing and Heating Ltd. of Peterborough to become permanent members of the community.

Yesterday it was announced by Gerald Joyce Realty that the former Carquest Packers Ltd. building at the corner of East Moira and College Streets had been sold to the Peterborough firm.

Mr. Alex Clark, president and owner of Kawartha Plumbing and Heating Ltd. said that during a year he hoped that a 10,000 square foot building would be erected for use by a subsidiary firm, Trent Metals Ltd. manufacturing all-metal ductwork and other supplies.

Founded in 1949, Kawartha Plumbing and Heating Ltd. are wholesale distributors of plumbing and heating materials and also act as distributors of piping, valves, fittings and mill supplies to industry.

The firm started servicing the Belleville area in 1951 from its Peterborough location and in June 1965 opened its Belleville branch at the former Carnquest Packers site. The area from Colborne to Napanee is served from the Belleville office.

The firm has a staff of seven with Don Harrigan as warehouse superintendent and William McLeod as sales representative.

Yesterday the firm president expressed appreciation to local industrial commissioner Ernest Kneisel who, he said, had been most helpful in providing data which resulted in the decision to locate permanently in Belleville.

Investment Tax Credit Said Needed

TORONTO (CP)—E. G. Burton, chairman of Simpsons Ltd. of Toronto, Wednesday called for investment tax credits to encourage modernization and expansion of Canadian plant and equipment.

Mr. Burton told Simpsons' annual meeting that such a scheme is just being re-introduced in the United States.

"I think that this investment tax credit has proven over the past few years to be one of the most constructive measures ever undertaken by our neighbors to the south. It certainly merits careful and serious consideration by our government.

U.C.W. Meeting

FRANKFORD UCW UNIT 2

FRANKFORD — The April meeting of unit 2 of Frankford UCW was held Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. R. Reid.

Committees for coming events are Joan Gilmour, Laurwise Bauer, April 25; Marie Keller, Margaret Reid, Lois Rumsey, May 24; Marina Tomacek, June. The treasurer reported a balance of $125.

A letter was read from unit 3 inviting the members and their families to join unit 3 on May 11 in Rose Lowery Hall for movies of Rev. C. Dugan's trip to England.

Mrs. R. Reid, Mrs. R. Tomacek and Mrs. A. Patrick were in charge of the worship service on the church assembled. Rev. C. Dugan conducted the Bible study on the work of the church. He said the church is a believing community, a worshipping fellowship and is called to witness. He added that the most important witnesses are not church groups, but individuals. Instead of asking, "Why doesn't the church do something?" members should ask, "Why don't we do something?"

Wants Lot Of Women Improved

TORONTO (CP)—The 2,000-member Canadian section of the Roman Catholic St. Joan's International Alliance urged in a brief Wednesday that the women's lot in the church be improved.

The alliance says women are treated as "second class citizens" in the church and will ask, in a paper to be submitted to a lay congress at the Vatican next fall, that the priesthood be opened to women as a way of ending discrimination.

Cecelia Wallace of Toronto, who organized the Canadian section last September, released a report that said a shortage of priests existed in the world.

Miss Wallace said the alliance was formed in London, England, as a suffragette group in 1911.

The report said replies to questionnaires circulated to members throughout the world indicated a "general dissatisfaction with the position of women in the Roman Catholic Church."

The alliance said women want a wider scope in the church for the talents of women and full membership. The questionnaire was signed by many lay women.

Litter Bug Condemned At Horticultural Meet

STIRLING — Beauty is good business according to Paul Dodds of Picton, president of Class B Fairs in Ontario and prominent horticulturist.

Speaking to the Stirling Horticultural Society Monday evening he said, "The rewards of cleanliness are great. We want new cilizens, we want industry. Will not a clean town or city attract them?"

Mr. Dodds told the 30 members of the Society, gathered at St. John's Parish Hall that litter is a safety hazard. Many accidents are caused by drivers swerving to avoid wind-blown litter on the roadsides. Accumulation of trash and carelessly thrown cigarettes are a fire menace.

"This is the centennial year of our country," Mr. Dodds said. "People are receptive in an extended program of beautification. Let us urge on our municipal councils and others the need for improvement. We know there will be centennial celebrations in every community. Should we not make every effort to provide the most beautiful setting possible for them? It is true that many of us plant flowers and trees, but in addition like putting cosmetics on a dirty face? We need to clean up the background first."

The speaker drew attention to the clean-up week in May, sponsored by the Ontario Association of Horticultural Societies.

Futunlas decorating the hall for the meeting were provided by Mrs. Harry Clarke. Plans were made for the plant sale May 27 and entertainment of the Senior Citizens April 30.

Mrs. William McKeown of Springbrook showed slides of Bermuda, Florida and Vancouver and E. V. Lord of Picton showed close-ups of flowers.

Recommends Peach Melba

By MARY MOORE

Do you want to hear a story?

When Paul, my youngest nephew, and Dea were married, her parents gave a beautiful bri al reception and supper. I happened to be seated with convenient distance of the bride's mother. I boldly asked what was for dessert. They recommended Peach Melba, but I do not know exactly what it is." Boldly spoke I said, "I do," and proceeded to tell the story. When the famous Australian singer Nellie Melba was being entertained at the Ritz Hotel in Paris the world-renowned Escoffier was the Chef. He created this peach dessert and because Dame Melba enjoyed it so much, on the spot, he named it for her.

Minutes after I told this charming little tale I felt a gentle tap on my right shoulder. I turned to find the head waiter standing near me. "Madam, pardon me but could you tell me how you know that story? I've been in this job so long I'd forgotten the source but said "Why do you ask?" He smilingly told me he had apprenticed at the Paris Ritz and any mention of it brought back nostalgic memories.

Now Peches Melba are described by Escoffier thus: "Poach the peaches in vanilla-flavored syrup. Put them in a timbale upon a layer of vanilla ice cream, and coat them with raspberry puree."

This lovely dessert has been glorified and desecrated by good chefs and careless cooks. I'm here today to tell you my version:

Dinner Menu

THURSDAY

Canadian Pea Soup; Hot Ham and Swiss Cheese Sandwiches; Tossed Greens with Swiss Cheese. Strips; French Dressing; Rice-Raisin Custard Pudding; Coffee.

SUNDAY
(Guests)

Sunday Chicken Stew (see Wed.); Tea Biscuits Supreme ; Iceberg Lettuce Wedges; Roquefort Dressing; Peach Melba (see Thurs.); Tea.

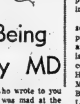
PEACH MELBA

In fine sintered glass cups ports of about 3½" in diameter put medium sized scoops of vanilla ice cream enough to serve the number of diners you have. Over each scoop of ice cream place half of a choice large drained peach. Over the peach half, spoon —

Clear Raspberry Sauce:

Thaw and force through sieve one package fresh frozen raspberries. Discard seeds. In a saucepan mix together well ½ cup sugar and 1 tbsp. arrowroot flour. (Arrowroot flour makes this sauce clear, not cloudy. But if you cannot buy it at your large drug store substitute 1 tbsp. cornstarch.) Stir in raspberry puree until thick. Reduce heat and cook, stirring, 2 min. longer. Cool to warm and stir in 1 tbsp. lemon juice. Cool.

NOTES: 1) This sauce may be made in advance and stored, covered.



2) This amount of sauce is plenty for at least eight servings but if you have any left-over it is delicious on rice or blanc mange puddings.

Top with a puff of unsweetened whipped cream.

Plan to serve it to your next batch of world-traveling guests.

Ann Landers

Complains of Being Kept Waiting by MD

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN: That doctor's receptionist who wrote to you isn't very bright. And neither are you. She was mad at the patient who got undressed, then suddenly remembered their meter time had run out. The receptionist thought it was brassy of patients to ask her to run out and feed the meter.

The patient was trying to get across the following message: "My appointment was for 3:00 p.m. It is now 4:10 p.m. and the doctor still hasn't seen me. What's wrong with him that he always runs late and ruins everyone's day?"

Now do you get it, Ann Landers? Please print this letter and come up with a solution. I'm sick and tired of being kept waiting by my doctor. Why have an appointment if he sees you whenever he feels like it? — DAY HALF SHOT.

DEAR HALF SHOT: The problem is insoluble. The better the doctor the less apt he is to be on time. Ironically the qualities that make him run late are the qualities that make him available to you. When an emergency patient calls he says, "Yes, come in. I'll take care of you."

When a patient needs to talk about his illness for a problem which may be causing the illness) a good doctor will not shove him out the door because he wants to stick to a schedule.

A competent, compassionate doctor is worth waiting for, so bring a book, prepare to spend the afternoon, and stop feeding.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our daughter is 17, bright, attractive and popular. She started to go steady six months ago with a boy who is also 17 but looks 20. I know for certain they are having sexual relations and I live in fear that one day she will tell me she is married or pregnant or both.

I confronted our daughter with the evidence and suggested that for her own good she should stop seeing the boy. She told me if I tried to break them up she would leave home.

Our daughter is college material and we can afford to send her. The boy is likeable but he has no interest in college. It would be a tragedy if she ran off and married him without giving herself a chance to go with others.

My husband is a wreck. He says, "Write to Ann Landers." I cannot sign a name because we are prominent members of the community. Can you help? — DESPERATE.

DEAR DESPERATE: The most significant phrase of your letter appears in the first sentence . . . "out of control."

My advice is to refrain from threatening, scolding and preaching. Don't talk against the boy. Be pleasant to him, and to her.

She may marry the lad right out of high school, regardless of what you say or do, but please don't push her into it by putting up resistance because she will surely defy you to assert her independence and then all will be lost.

WCTU Leaders Meet At County Convention

The 58th annual Women's Christian Temperance Union convention for the counties of Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington was held Monday at the Salvation Army Hall, Napanee, with the president, Mrs. R. Langford, in charge.

A worship and memorial service was presented, with prayer by Mrs. Don Welbanks and Mrs. W. O. Striker. Solo-lists were Mrs. V. Zufelt, accompanied by Miss Harriet Hannah and Mrs. F. B. Mills, accompanied by Miss Beatrice Daughn. Mrs. E. C. Lewis presented county awards for, pupils writing temperance essays and Mrs. Edna Craig conducted the presentation of provincial life memberships to Mrs. Votery, Mrs. Stanley Haynes and Mrs. Donald Paul.

Mrs. Frank Phelps of the Napanee Salvation Army Corps offered a challenge to those present to further the temperance cause. She mentioned the tragedies that occur after drinking parties and the number of homes wrecked by alcohol. One out of seven social drinkers become an alcoholic and there is only one way to cure this self-inflicted illness — stop drinking. To meet the challenge of the space age children should have a Godly home in which training is given in character development, self control and self discipline.

Mrs. Edna Craig presented the nominating report and installed the new officers. They are: president, Mrs. H. Langford, Napanee; first vice-president, Mrs. R. G. Coulter, Belleville; second vice-president, Mrs. George Finlay, Strathcona; recording secretary, Miss Margaret Mitchell, Newburgh; corresponding secretary, Mrs. L. Wright, Picton; treasurer, Mrs. G. E. Dobbs, Belleville; camp liaison officer, Mrs. Don Welbanks, Picton; camp treasurer, Mrs. E. Musclow, Belleville.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Jenny has a ballet class tonight and a music lesson tomorrow. Wednesday she has a dental appointment and Thursday she has to practice. It's hard to work everything in each week."

Children of grade school age need time to relax. Too many organized activities and a tight schedule will cause tension and prevent them from enjoying any of the activities.

Successful Living

Should Face Consequences Of Derriere Pinching Habit

DORIS CLARE

Dear Doris: What can be one about a husband who pinches other men's wives on the hip at parties and dances? My husband has done this three times now and I'm afraid he will get into serious trouble.

We were at a house party where only two small drinks were served. One of the women shrieked, "Oh! Your husband pinched me on the hip!" Everyone turned and looked. I pretended not to pay attention.

Her husband was furious and began to cross the floor after to him when the music started up and delayed things enough for me to get him out of there. That guy was strong-looking husband, younger than my husband, who is 50.

This is not the first time. I'm afraid some boy friend will beat him up real bad one time. But he makes light of it. — Terrified.

Dear Terrified: As long as you stand between him and every pair-looking husband, he'll not learn better. Just like an alcoholic, he has to face the consequences of his own derriere-pinching.

Look the other way. If an outraged femme or angry male turns on him he won't make so light of it the next time.

Dear Doris: At a youth retreat I went to last week, the speaker told us that youth was wasted on youth. By this he said he meant: what we learn in our youth affects our whole life.

I am 18 and in grade ten (failed three grades). It seems everything I do goes wrong. In truth I failed in my youth; what is the rest of my life going to be like? — Failure.

Dear Failure: Can't say I share your despair.

In my book, the point is that here we are young, we haven't lived enough to take full advantage of the glowing health and resilience and wide-eyed enthusiasm which belong to youth. We meddle through.

Then, "it said, when we have learned more we find ourselves too old and settled to make full use of our knowledge. It's a bleak sort of statement.

Now that you've taken a good look at yourself, hitch your wagon to a star and eld-dy-gup!

Dear Doris: It is true you can't learn to play without actual practice, but one of the difficult and dreary things when starting is to learn the names of the notes and where they come in the scale.

"Hopeful" can buy a keyboard chart and a couple of books which I consider invaluable for anyone who knows nothing about a piano. And I can add a few paragraphs of my own in explanation.

I have taught many children from these books. When these basics are mastered, lessons from a teacher might just be available for our friend, and she would have the advantage of sure note recognition from the beginning.— Mrs. R. I. K.

Dear Mrs. R. I. K.: Thank you for your long, explanatory letter (only partly reproduced here.) I have passed it all on to Hopeful, and will do so to anyone else with the same longing to learn piano without one.

Confidential to Father Problem: I am sorry, but I cannot answer your question in the column. Please write again, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and repeat the problem.

Centennial Theme Highlights O.E.S. Tea

Guests at the Centennial Tea of Minerva Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, were transported on Wednesday afternoon to an old-time world of Victorian charm. The Masonic Lodge was arranged to give visitors a glimpse of 1867 nursery, parlor, and finally the dining room, where tea was served by chapter members in 1867 dress.

The younger generation held sway in the vestibule, where antique nursery furniture was displayed. Included was a cradle, wooden baby carriage, iron bicycle and a high chair, presided over by a nurse-maid mannequin. Two dolls were dressed in heirloom christening robes of equisitely embroidered linen, formerly owned by the LaBrish family of Montreal and lent for the occasion by Mrs. Dorothy Tugnett.

Through heavy parlor draperies the guests moved into a drawing-room corner to be welcomed by Mrs. Margaret Stalker, Worthy Matron; Mrs. Arlene Ashbury, A.M.; and Mrs. Marjorie Morgan D.D.G.M., Mrs. Nellie Clarke, P.M., Mrs. Nellie Cooper P.M., Mrs. Teena Reed P.M., and Mrs. Minnie Mossman took tickets. Background music was played in this corner during the afternoon on a 1913 Edison phonograph.

Mrs. Marjorie Morgan officially opened the bazaar and tea room hostesses were Mrs. Lil Jordon P.M., Mrs. Carrie Oliver, Mrs. Phyllis Pearce and Mrs. Gladys Smith P.M.

Red, white and deep blue were the colors chosen to set the centennial theme in the tea room. Covering the blue cloth - covered tea table was an antique silver flower holder filled with red, white and blue 'mums. Two historic five-piece tea services were in use. One was a possession of Sir Mackenzie Bowell, a former Prime Minister. The second, lent by Mrs. Alec Peterson, was presented to Dr. Orontyshekia, "by a few friends in London and Oxford, England, Christmas 1873", in honor of his contribution to the civilizing and education of Indians of North America.

Individual tables were covered with red cloths with white ruffles and centered with miniature coal oil lamps with colored glass chimneys and brass bases.

Pouring tea were Mrs. Bess Marsh P.M.; Mrs. Ruth Crewe W.M., Trenton; Mrs. M. Fryer, W.M., Tweed; Mrs. Dorothy Tugnett P.M.; Mrs. Laura Hyde P.M.; Mrs. Marjorie Morgan D.D.G.M., Brighton; Mrs. Pearl Forge, W.M., Brighton; Mrs. Nellis King W.M., Campbellford; Mrs. Jean Kerr W.M., Marmora; Mrs. Lil Jordan P.M.; Mrs. Nelsie Cooper P.M.; Mrs. Ila Sine P.M., and Mrs. Mae Fiddle P.M. Mrs. Hyde, a charter member, wore an authentic old gown with black silk shawl and antique gold jewelry. Also in an antique costume was Mrs. Mark Vanner, who wore an 80-year-old aplos brown taffeta dress with ruching trim.

In the kitchen Mrs. M. Gill and Mrs. Aggie Gray were in charge of refreshments worthy of Victorian tastes.

Victorian abundance was evident at the bake table where Mrs. Edna Dobbs, P.M.; Mrs. Pauline Clare, P.M.; Mrs. Jess Bushell; Mrs. Helen Partinder and Mrs. Dorothy Middleton were in charge. The ever-popular candy table was convened by Mrs. Rhoda Gray, P.M. and Mrs. Dorothy Nicoll. At the miscellaneous table delicate-son items, aprons, baby clothes dusting mitts and an array of other articles were sold by Mrs. Isobel Woodley, Mrs. Dorothy Craighead, Mrs. Eva Heath and Mrs. Alberta Ireland.

Plants, roots and shrubs were offered at the annex table where Archie Jordan, Fred Furmidge, Adam Shiller, Ted Poste, William Adams and Alf Cooper were in charge. Lois Clarke displayed her original oil paintings, which were also offered for sale.

Draw tickets on a garden chair were sold by Georgina Rendell. Lucky winner was Mrs. Helen Shorey. Morley Tugnett and Georgn Greatrix sold tickets on grocery baskets. These were won by Mr. Kouglow, Steven Bushell and Mrs. Eva Heath. Mrs. Earl Bush won a flower arrangement.

Mrs. Georgina Rendell, P.M., convened the centennial event, assisted by co-convener Mrs. Kay Bushell, P.M., and her assistants, Mrs. Gray, Mrs. Tugnett and Mrs. Oliver.

Old - fashioned Greeting

Mrs. J. E. Marsh in bellskirt and 1867 ruffles and flounces welcomes Mrs. G. A. Frost to the tea and bazaar of Minerva Chapter Order of the Eastern Star Wednesday afternoon. Chapter members donned centennial costume to grace the Victorian decor re-created for the event.

Admirers Angry

Fisher Eased Out of Spotlight

QUEBEC (CP)—A move to shoulder Centennial Commissioner John Fisher out of the spotlight is said to have started as the 1967 celebrations show definite signs of success.

Mr. Fisher, a Conservative appointment, has gradually been surrounded by Liberals during the last four years.

Angry admirers say he was sudced to the end of the head table and virtually snubbed at a federal dinner during the national centennial conference here this week.

They say that it took Premier Daniel Johnson to set the record straight at a state dinner given by the province of Quebec for the conference Tuesday night.

Premier Johnson lavished praise on Mr. Fisher, known for years now as Mr. Canada, and said:

"He has a heart as big as this country, filled with love for this country."

At the federal dinner Monday night, Mr. Fisher was seated near the end of a long head table and wasn't mentioned.

Gilles Bergeron, the new associate commissioner appointed recently by State Secretary Judy LaMarsh, was placed near the centre and was chosen to introduce Prime Minister Pearson.

Some delegates were reported to be seething and Mr. Fisher himself was said to be hurt as a result of the arrangement.

The conference, an advisory body of 60 members from across Canada, meets twice a year to discuss the progress of centennial plans.

Theme of the conference here was The Centennial—A Success Story and commission officials gave glowing reports on various projects.

Mr. Fisher, after a lengthy and colloquially report to delegates, was stopped cold by Miss LaMarsh for mentioning money. He said that he had "beaten a path" to her door seeking funds and had not come away empty-handed.

Before his appointment as commissioner, Mr. Fisher was press secretary to former prime minister Diefenbaker.

Informants say the commissioner has been ignored or overruled in a series of appointments that have brought, among others, Liberal organizers, party aides and defeated candidates to the commission.

Church Bells, Swooping Jets Announce Expo 67 Is Open

MONTREAL (CP) — Four years of planning and hard work reached the end today as Canada's big show got on the road.

The inauguration of the Montreal Universal and International Exhibition — better known as Expo 67—was set for 4 p.m. EST after a day of pomp and ceremony.

Host for the state occasion was Pierre Dupuy, commissioner general of the fair, who left his post as ambassador to France in 1963 to guide establishment of a world fair in Canada's Centennial Year.

Wednesday his 70 - year - old diplomat looked back on the hectic years.

"My dream has been fulfilled —I am a very happy man," he said.

The reality is a $650,000,000 exposition mainly on two islands —one of them man-made—in the St. Lawrence River, a showplace for 62 nations revealing themselves to the theme Man and his World and a mecca for an expected 15,000,000 visitors between now and Oct. 28.

For the open - air inaugural ceremony in Place des Nations, a 4½ - acre amphitheatre, the weather office predicted that early - morning clouds would blow away, leaving the more than 2,000 guests bathed in light, with a high temperature of 50 degrees.

Guests ferried to the ceremony included Canadian dignitaries and members of the diplomatic and consular corps.

The big day for the public, excluded from the inaugural, will come Friday when fair officials predict 119,700 will come through the four main gateways on the fair's first public day.

Mr. Dupuy prepared to greet dignitaries at the Helene de Champlain restaurant on St. Helen's Island where he had invited 100 for lunch.

These guests included Governor-General Roland Michener, who will officially declare the fair open, and Mrs. Michener, Prime Minister Pearson and Mrs. Pearson, the premiers of the 10 provinces, commissioners of the Northwest Territories and Yukon Territory, Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau and Mrs. Drapeau, Expo's board of directors and members of the clergy.

The ceremonial plan called for the remainder of the invited guests to take their places in the amphitheatre before 2.30 p.m.

There they would be joined by the guests of honor with Mr. Dupuy accompanying Mr. and Mrs. Michener in a horse-drawn carriage.

After the Governor - General reviews the guard of honor, there are seven-minute speeches by Mr. Dupuy, Mayor Drapeau, Jan Gorin, president of the college of commissioners general, Premier Johnson of Quebec, the prime minister and Mr. Michener.

Then 12 military cadets representing the provinces and territories bring a torch to the stand of honor.

The flame was kindled two years ago at the foot of the Peace Tower in Ottawa and Brought to Montreal in an overnight marathon by military cadets. It has burned since then in the office of Robert Shaw, Expo deputy commissioner general.

Mr. Dupuy will call out the name of each country participating in Expo and the flag of that nation will be unfurled. Canada's name will be the last.

The torch-bearer is to hand the torch to Mr. Dupuy and it will pass in turn through the hands of Mr. Drapeau and Mr. Johnson to Mr. Pearson who will light a flame that will burn through the six months of Expo.

At 4 p.m. Mr. Michener is to say in French, then English:

"I declare the world exhibition officially open."

Bands will strike up God Save the Queen, then O Canada, and rockets, saluting guns, ships' sirens, swooping jets, a carillon and the pealing of Montreal church bells will tell the world the fair is on.

After the inaugural, the evening will be far less formal. That is when the men who built the fair and their families, a total of 16,000 people, will be guests at the various pavilions before closing fireworks end the day.

One of the most interesting stories at Expo 67 isn't even on the site.

It is Canada's first electronic telephone exchange, located in this new building in downtown Montreal. Its exciting new features are now serving exhibitors at Expo 67.

In 1968, it will serve 15,000 subscribers with such conveniences as an ability to reach frequently called numbers with just the touch of one or two buttons; it will let you transfer a call automatically to another number when you are away from home or office.

And these are just two of the many features which electronic exchanges will eventually bring to more and more of our customers. This, the first such exchange, is tangible evidence of our aim to make your telephone ever more useful and helpful.

You are cordially invited to visit the Telephone Pavilion at Expo 67. It's the Progress Show of the Canadian Telephone Industry where you will be able to see and try the "magic" features of an electronic telephone exchange.

Archbishop Visits Marmora

MARMORA — His Grace, Archbishop J. L. Wilhelm, newly appointed archbishop of Kingston diocese, visited Sacred Heart Parish, Marmora, Thursday, to administer the Sacrament of Confirmation in the evening to 36 children. High Mass was celebrated at 8 p.m. by the Archbishop. Clergy present for the ceremonies were: Monsignor W. J. Lynott, Kingston; Dean C. E. Baker, Tweed; Rev. J. F. McGarvey, Stirling; Rev. F. J. O'Neill, Madoc; Rev. R. J. Keyes, Marmora, and the pastor, Bishop-elect, F. J. Spence. Epistle of the Mass was read by Paul Brady, president of the Holy Name Society.

Bishop-elect Spence, in extending a sincere welcome to the Archbishop, noted that during the time of renewal of the church, parishioners should become acquainted with a spiritual leader of the people of God.

Archbishop Wilhelm reminded the people of the wonderful compliment it is to have their pastor made a bishop of the armed forces. "He has to be a special man with special gifts. I am sure that since his arrival here you will have appreciated his many gifts. With this new responsibility, I know your prayers will accompany him for a long time after his departure." The Archbishop explained that the appointment of a new pastor has to be approved by Rome in a parish where a bishop has been taken, and it will therefore take a longer length of time for this appointment to come through.

He spoke to the children on the graces they receive in becoming confirmed, and asked them at this Mass to pray for their parents, teachers, priests and bishops. "This will be an outstanding event for the boys and girls being confirmed tonight, and we are very few confirmations where a bishop and bishop-elect are present."

After confirmation a reception was held in the Parish Hall, when parishioners had the opportunity to become acquainted with Archbishop Wilhelm, and refreshments were served by the ladies of the parish.

Haile Selassie Arrives in BC

VICTORIA (CP) — Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia had a busy round of receptions and tours today as his two-day visit to British Columbia came to a close.

This morning he was to call on Premier W. A. C. Bennett. The premier welcomed the 74-year-old lion of Judah when he arrived at Victoria airport from Vancouver Wednesday afternoon and dined with him later at Government House.

Following today's meeting with the premier, the emperor was scheduled to meet Victoria Mayor Hugh Stephens and members of city council at city hall.

The only public appearance scheduled during the emperor's Victoria stay was a tour of the Centennial square following his meeting with Mayor Stephen and council.

At noon he was to be guest at a government luncheon then return to Vancouver, where he will board a CNR train bound for Ottawa late this afternoon. He is being accompanied to Edmonton by his great-grandson, Michael Mengasha, who is studying in Calgary.

Emperor Selassie will be the first head of state to be received by Governor-General Michener when he arrives in Ottawa. Tuesday he will visit Expo 67 in Montreal.

Highlight of the emperor's arrival in Canada Wednesday were the antics of his pet dog, Lulu, which looks like a long-haired Chihuahua although the emperor says it isn't.

Te dog stole the show from his imperial majesty at Vancouver International Airport and frolicked between the legs of security men before it was rounded up by RCMP officers.

At Victoria, a crowd of about 200 chuckled when the door of the emperor's RCAF Cosmopolitan aircraft opened and Lulu scampered down the gangway.

A spokesman for the federal agriculture department's health of animals branch said later the dog should have been quarantined upon its arrival in Vancouver.

"By Canadian regulations, any dog from an Africa country has to spend three months in quarantine before setting a paw on Canadian soil," the spokesman said. "Africa is considered as being under quarantine for rabies."

Hundreds lined the streets at the motorcade drove through downtown Victoria to get a glimpse of the emperor, whose full title is "King of kings, king of Zion, invincible lion of the seed of Judah, and implement of the Holy Trinity."

Present among the 40 guests at the Government House dinner Wednesday night were Lt.-Gov. George Pearkes, who also welcomed him at the airport, Premier Bennett, cabinet ministers and their wives.

Javelin Takeover Is Up for Approval

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The Newfoundland government's proposed takeover of Canadian Javelin Ltd., mineral and timber developers, was to come up for approval today at a special shareholders meeting called by Javelin's top executive officers.

President James F. McNamara arrived Wednesday and chairman John C. Doyle, controversial founder of Javelin, was also to attend the session.

Plans for the takeover of a majority of the voting rights in The firm through the issuance of 5,300,000 new preferred voting shares to a government committee were announced several weeks ago by Premier Smallwood.

He has the approval of Mr. Doyle, who also has agreed to let the committee assume voting rights of his 1,920,000 Javelin shares. The committee would retain control of the stock for the life of proposed government guarantees on $25,000,000 worth of Javelin bonds.

The scheme, aimed at creating a $60,000,000 pulp and linerboard operation on Newfoundland's west coast won approval of the legislature during the session which ended Tuesday. The guarantees are the heaviest the government has ever given for a single industrial development. Javelin would hold a 75-per-cent equity in the industry.

Although it appeared to remove the future of Javelin from the control of Mr. Doyle, whose block of shares now is the largest group held by any one party, the planned takeover apparently has done little to comfort a group of dissident Javelin shareholders who want him seated on the company.

The group, which calls itself the Stockholders Protective Committee of Canadian Javelin Ltd., rebelled openly against the sitting directors and Mr. Doyle at last year's annual meeting. But it failed in a bid to have the meeting postponed as it could draft its own material for a proxy fight.

The United States Securities Exchange Commission approved the proxy material a few weeks ago. However, plans to solicit support for the fight were dropped after the announcement of the proposed takeover.

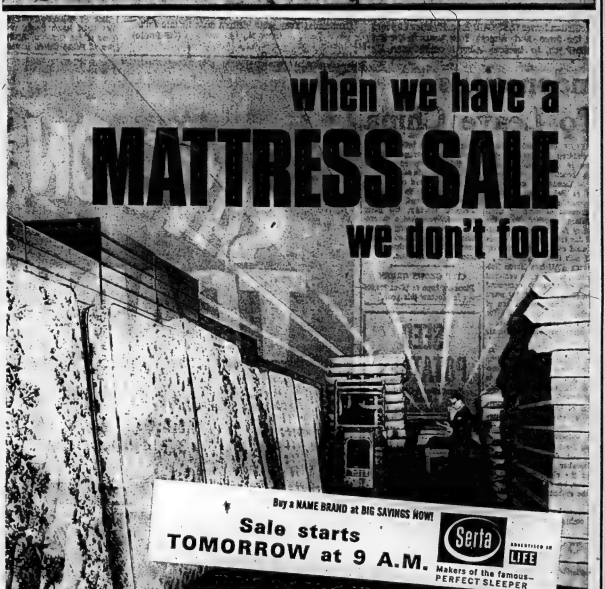
The proxy material was mailed to newspapers here on the eve of today's meeting with an appended statement labelling the government's plan as "nationalization without compensation."

The statement, which apparently was to be mailed to shareholders said: "We are . . . unalterably opposed to the creation of approximately 5,300,000 new shares of voting preferred stock . . . which will be turned over to the government of Newfoundland without one penny in cash being paid to your company."

"There would then be outstanding 11,130,850 shares of voting stock . . . Those of us holding the remaining 4,838,850 automatically become second-class citizens without any voice in the direction of your company's affairs."

The statement concludes with a request that "this threat be defeated once and for all by an appended statement labelling creation of this new preferred stock."

It could not be determined if the committee, which says it represents 71,925 shares, would be represented directly at today's meeting.



Premier Smallwood's announcement said the money was necessary to protect the province and to avert damaging internal squabbles or a takeover by any other group while the guarantees are in effect.

Civil Liberty Groups Deplore Proposals From Police Chiefs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canada's police chiefs and civil liberty groups have collided head-on over police requests for wider powers to fight crime, including the right to search homes without warrants and to arrest suspects without filing charges.

"Outdated . . . medieval . . . outrageous . . . fantastic," were among comments Wednesday from members of Parliament with legal backgrounds.

"It's an example of the police mind run rampant . . . preposterous ideas," said the Canadian Civil Liberties Association.

Ontario's Attorney - General, Arthur Wishart, said some sections are dangerous and unacceptable.

He said the search without warrant proposition is untenable. Preventive detention is "a dangerous thing to suggest," he said.

"And I don't think we are ready for a return of flogging," Mr. Wishart said. "There is great field for rehabilitation." He also opposed the chiefs' request that breath tests be compulsory for impaired driving suspects.

"Drastic and far-reaching," said Alberta Premier E. C. Manning.

But Vancouver Police Chief Ralph Booth, president of the Canadian Association of Police Chiefs, protested that the association's brief, which asked for the new sweeping powers had not been thoroughly read.

He said society must give up some of its liberties so that crime can be fought more effectively and if it were not prepared to do so "then society must suffer the consequences."

At a news conference he criticized MPs and others who decried the police chiefs' proposals, made in a brief to the federal inquiry on the administration of justice, "without having read the brief and the background behind the recommendations."

"MPs probably know very little of what's in the brief," Chief Booth said.

Toronto Police Chief James Mackey complained that the legislators are misinterpreting the brief's suggestions.

He said the recommendations are simply a compilation of answers given by various police chiefs to a questionnaire sent out by the committee on correction.

The executive committee had just "boiled down the answers to avoid duplication and sent them on," he said.

"It's an example of the police mind run rampant," said Professor Mark McGuigan of the Canadian Civil Liberties Association. He said that "as a package, the ideas are preposterous."

The association's board of directors is planning to meet to discuss the proposals.

The police chiefs' brief also suggested that all magistrates undergo periodic psychiatric examinations and that the oath be retained for punishing violent criminals.

J. S. Midanik of Toronto, chairman of the Canadian Bar Association's Ontario subsection on civil liberties, described some of the association's requests as "absolutely not justified."

Mr. Midanik also said he felt that to hold a person without laying a charge against him "smacks of police state-ism."

"In our society there cannot be a police right to detain people on the basis of preventive detention."

"We're all concerned with the problems that face law enforcement officers," said Premier Manning "but we must jealously protect the rights of the citizens."

In Ottawa, Prime Minister Pearson's parliamentary secretary, John R. Matheson, said the police brief "is not distinguished by any insight into the disciplines relating to reform and rehabilitation."

David Lewis, NDP house leader and Toronto lawyer, said the police proposals indicate "a completely thoughtless approach to the problem of crime, detection and the administration of justice."

Gordon Fairweather, Conservative MP and former New Brunswick attorney - general, said he regarded the association's position as "quite outdated and medieval."

Indonesians To Leave China

PEKING (Reuters) — Wives filling the whole buildings with and children of Indonesian diplomats in China will be sent home because of continuing anti - Indonesian demonstrations in Peking, an embassy spokesman said today.

Thousands of chanting demonstrators marched past the embassy for the fourth consecutive day today and Red Guards continued covering the embassy walls with insulting slogans.

Charge d'Affaires Baron Sutadisastra, who has not ventured out of the embassy compound for three days, said today more than 40 wives and children of embassy staff would leave for Jakarta as soon as possible.

A staff of nine diplomats would remain.

Sutadisastra and press attache Soemarno Sosrohardjono —who have been declared persona non grata — intend to leave via Canton and Hong Kong Saturday.

Cars of Indonesian diplomats were covered in paint today and slogans were pasted on walls outside their apartments.

Sutadisastra told correspondents that demonstrations and loudspeaker insults went on round the clock from Monday morning, but nobody tried to enter the embassy or harm diplomats.

Loudspeakers were hung over the embassy courtyard walls,

Lord Thomson Predicts European Super-nation

NEW YORK (CP) — Canadian-born Lord Thomson said Wednesday night a new European super-nation is in the process of formation and it will have a vital balance-of-power role in the world.

Thomson told the Economic Club of New York that the super-nation will be made up of six members of the European Economic Community and six of the seven members of the European Free Trade Association, including Britain.

The chairman of the Thomson Organization Ltd., which owns newspapers, television and radio stations, a variety of publications and printing companies and other interests in many countries, was one of two speakers at an Economic Club dinner. The other was Senator Charles H. Percy, a Republican from Illinois.

Thomson, who has lived in Britain since the early 1950s, traced the history of the EEC—known also as the Common Market — and described it as "the first step toward a new nation, the United States of Europe." Its members are France, Germany, Italy, Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg, all signatories to the Treaty of Rome in 1957.

The EFTA, a looser economic organization, went into operation in 1960, linking Britain with Austria, Denmark, Norway, Portugal, Sweden and Switzerland.

Thomson reviewed the unsuccessful bid of Britain to join the EEC four years ago when France's President de Gaulle closed the door. Britain is renewing her bid.

"Make no mistake about it," said Thomson, "a great majority of members of Parliament of both parties and of the public at large favors Britain's membership in the Common Market."

"As far as progress into a closer political union is concerned, I do not believe British opinion at this time would approve complete submersion of British sovereignty into a new European nation—but I believe this, too, will evolve."

Studies LSD Use

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Drug Addiction and Research Foundation has begun a study to determine the exact frequency and pattern of non-medical use of LSD, it was announced Wednesday. Robert Robinson, the foundation's education director, said a similar study in Frontenac County to locate the alcoholic population took two years and the LSD study will take about the same length of time.

Gregory Had Faith in Atlantic Head But Doubts Crept in Before Crash

TORONTO (CP) — Wilfrid P. Gregory, former president of British Mortgage and Trust Co. of Stratford, Ont., testified Wednesday he did not watch too closely the operations of companies in which he—and the company he headed—had large financial stakes.

Giving evidence for more than five hours, the 55-year-old lawyer said he put great faith in C. Powell Morgan, late president of the now bankrupt Atlantic Acceptance Corp., but that his belief in Morgan's integrity began to wane in 1965—a few months before Atlantic collapsed.

Atlantic, a $130,000,000 finance company, went under in June, 1965, taking with it a group of subsidiary and associated companies.

Mr. Gregory was testifying before the Ontario royal commission investigating the collapse.

British Mortgage ran into financial trouble after Atlantic folded and was taken over by Victoria and Grey Trust Co. of Lindsay, Ont. British Mortgage losses were about $11,000,000 in the Atlantic failure.

Mr. Gregory said two or three deals at the beginning of 1965 caused him to question Mr. Morgan's ability.

One deal, he said, was the purchase of 20 per cent of a company called Mavety Distributors Ltd. Mr. Gregory said Mr. Morgan told him Mavety would earn $40,000 for 1964, but earnings were not that high.

"I told him that I had been charged $5,000 too much, but he didn't say anything. . . . Then I began to have some doubts."

Commission Counsel Albert Shepherd asked: "Were these directed at his integrity?"

"I would think so, yes," replied Mr. Gregory.

He also admitted that while he was a director of Atlantic he did not know that one firm of accountants audited the parent company's financial statements and another firm the accounts of subsidiaries.

Asked whether he was surprised that Atlantic could not meet its financial obligations in 1965, he replied: "I was, especially since I had been assured everything was okay just six days before."

Mr. Gregory said British Mortgage invested $139,000 in Commodore Sales Acceptance and he personally invested $10,500.

Mr. Gregory said he went into the deal because he knew Mr. Morgan was involved and while Morgan was "not quite a magic name, it indicated success."

Eventually, Atlantic Acceptance bought control of Commodore Sales Acceptance, giving British Mortgage a profit of $102,796 and Mr. Gregory a profit of $21,400.

However, Mr. Gregory said he did not make a cash profit. He exchanged Commodore shares for Atlantic shares which he "held until the end." Atlantic shares now are worthless.

Later, Mr. Gregory, and through him British Mortgage, invested in Aurora Leasing—an operation in which "Mr. Morgan was the guiding light."

Combined, Mr. Gregory and British Mortgage owned 35 per cent of Aurora's stock. However, Mr. Gregory said he didn't know that the company was not primarily a leasing company. It was a finance company.

When Atlantic collapsed Aurora owed British Mortgage $1,850,000.

Mr. Gregory said the $1,850,000 in loans was supposed to be secured "but they weren't."

UN Rule Is Requested In South-West Africa

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—An Afro-Asian group introduced a resolution in the United Nations General Assembly Wednesday calling upon the UN to create an administration for South-West Africa and "take all necessary measures" to install it.

It is virtually certain that the Afro-Asian draft resolution, as it stands, will be opposed by Canada, the United States and West European members, diplomatic sources said.

Support of the Soviet bloc also is regarded as doubtful, because of Soviet opposition to direct UN rule of the disputed territory.

The Afro - Asian action came only a day after Canada had appealed for an attempt to negotiate a settlement of the South - West Africa issue with South Africa. And shortly before it was introduced by Chief S. O. Adebo, the Nigerian ambassador, Wednesday afternoon, U.S. Ambassador Arthur Goldberg spoke in support of Canada's appeal.

He rejected the idea that the United Nations should immediately try to force South Africa's white - minority administration to leave South-West Africa. Efforts to 'solve the problem "through diplomatic dialogue" must be made, he told the assembly.

Nobody could say in advance what would happen, "but public opinion in the United States would not understand immediate recourse to coercive measures before an attempt is made at a dialogue."

The motion to install a UN administration in South - West Africa, no matter how it has to be done, is co - sponsored by 49 African and Asian countries and Yugoslavia.

The UN administration would be a temporary one, designed to prepare South - West Africa for independence. The motion fixes June, 1968, as a target date for independence.

South Africa rejected a UN General Assembly resolution of last October which declared that its right to rule South-West Africa, acquired under a League of Nations mandate in 1920, has been forfeited because of its racist policies and its refusal to accept an obligation to report to the UN on its administration.

Promotion of LSD Made an Offence

OTTAWA (CP) — Complaints about television promotion of the drug LSD brought quick Senate action Wednesday to place a ban on such activity.

The upper chamber endorsed the proposal of its banking and commerce committee to make promotion of LSD an offence. A provision was added to legislation aimed at outlawing possession and trafficking in the hallucinatory drug.

The promotion offence, like possession and trafficking, would carry jail sentences ranging between 18 months and 10 years. Jail terms would be mandatory for promotion and trafficking. Fines could be levied for possession.

After approving the committee's proposals, the upper chamber withheld final action on the bill to permit Senator Malcolm Hollett (PC — Newfoundland) to introduce a section to protect persons who innocently possess LSD or who have it for medical purposes.

Satisfaction Is the Reward

Four couples who have become houseparents to some 39 school-aged children at Notre Dame of St. Agatha Children's Village near Kitchener, Ont., find that personal satisfaction in the help they are giving the orphans is their biggest reward. # UN Peace Force Here to Stay Martin Says to U.S. Audience

NEW YORK (CP) — Paul Martin, Canada's external affairs minister, said Wednesday night he believes the United Nations is in the peacekeeping business to stay, despite serious disagreements among member countries about how UN peace forces are to be financed and controlled.

In a lecture at Columbia University on Canada's role in UN peacekeeping operations, Martin said he cannot agree with the Soviet view that the control and detailed supervision of these operations should be exercised exclusively by the Security Council and its military staff committee.

Text of his lecture was given to the press in advance of delivery.

"I believe the present system whereby the secretary - general directs peacekeeping under the guidance of the council is more in keeping with today's blend of political and military realities," he said. "No doubt this system might be improved."

Martin flew into New York Wednesday from Europe, where he attended the funeral of former West German chancellor Konrad Adenauer in Cologne and Anglo - Canadian ministerial talks in London.

Martin told his Columbia audience it is understandable that the permanent council members, the Soviet Union, France, the United States, Britain and Nationalist China, should want to control UN actions that are bound to affect their interests.

But, even if the use of the veto by the permanent members could be avoided, "could we reasonably expect" the council, whose permanent members make up the UN military staff committee, "to run peacekeeping operations without delay, disagreements or deadlock?"

The military staff committee was set up under the UN charter to advise the Security Council on the use of armed forces in maintaining or restoring peace. It has never functioned.

Martin said this committee might be able to do some useful advance planning and perform advisory functions during the actual course of an operation. But "if this were to be done, its membership would need to include the countries actually doing the peacekeeping at any one time."

SEIBERLING

doesn't sell tires to automobile manufacturers.

Which means you can't get Seiberling tires on a new car unless you insist.

And some people do. Some even pay the car dealer extra to make the change-over.

These are the people who know about Seiberling. From experience. Good experience.

Most people do not choose the tire that comes with their new car. They accept it. Some remain satisfied. Some do not. When it comes time for a new tire, they decide to change.

They shop around. They make their own choice — their first choice of their second tire.

Without the advantage of having its tires on new cars as original equipment, Seiberling still maintains its position as one of Canada's leading tire manufacturers by selling top-line quality tires to these people — the trade calls them the replacement market. Which simply means when one tire is chosen to replace another.

And Seiberling sells all its tires in this market. Seiberling depends on the quality of its products meeting the continuing test of personal choice and experience.

Every tire manufacturer says his tire is better. We don't have to. Our customers say it for us. By choosing our tires in place of someone else's.

They can't get them any other way.

We don't sell tires to truck or tractor manufacturers either. But we sell a lot of truck and tractor tires.

Same reasons?

Same reasons.

Will Continue Work on Park

DESERONTO — As there will beneforth be more active work, Centennial Park committee decided last week to meet every two weeks, instead of holding a monthly planning meeting as during the winter.

Last summer saw all the major construction work done. This spring, instead of having to deal with a piece of brush-covered wasteland, the committee has a stretch of grass covered parkland, waiting for the finishing touches to be completed in two months.

Seeding of the second half of the area was reported, the work of Gaynor who again contributed his time and the use of his machinery. The grass is already up.

A sketch plan of the finished park is now on display in the library, together with a sheet of paper where donors can place their names indicating their contributions of money, or their pledges, or offers to furnish labor. Centennial flags will soon outline the exhibit. Smaller plans and similar sheet are on several promotional places about the town, and Mrs. Charles Griffiths and Mrs. Stafford Claus, representing the White Elephant Store committee, volunteered to see that these lists are picked up frequently and that a master list is kept up.

Further donations were reported: $500 from Ideal Vendors; $200 from the Royal Canadian Legion, branch 280; a traveller $2, and $25 in pledges from Layfield's Red and White Store. There were numerous offers of labor.

The planning and construction committees, which has power to act, reported through William Higgins that the contract to construct the washrooms and change houses had been given to Arnold Kimmerly, who began work when weather permits.

George Lyons volunteered to investigate the cost of park benches and will report at the next meeting, May 2. The plaque is already here, and will be installed on the cairn which will soon be erected by Mr. Kimmerly.

The question of trash cans came up, and as corners are being cut to save expenses, it was decided to obtain empty drums, which the women offered to paint.

The trees which have been obtained through the Lions Club, will arrive shortly. Members of the club will be aided by the school children when these are planted.

The meeting was an enthusiastic one, and proved that Centennial Park is a genuine community undertaking.

Contents Of Cash Box Stolen

DESERONTO—Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hubble lost between $200 and $300 last Friday evening to a sneak thief who must either have known their habits, or else have had a phenomenal streak of luck. The house was empty only ten minutes, and yet during that short time he entered the house, opened a desk, removed the money, green metal cash box and all, did not disturb anything else in the house, and made good his escape without being seen.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubble own and operate Deseronto Cleaners next door to their home and Mr. Hubble operates a bowling alley in Napanee. Mrs. Hubble brought the money home when the cleaning establishment closed at six. She left the house at 7.50, with the money still safe, and when her daughter returned home ten minutes later and opened the desk to write a letter, the cash box was gone.

No trace has yet been found of the box or contents, but the police are still carrying on their investigation.

Industries Like Small Centres

TORONTO (CP)—An Ontario Economic Council survey of 42 industries recently established in small Ontario communities showed two - thirds of them would choose the same location again despite recurrent labor and housing shortages.

A report on the survey released Wednesday said the majority of management representatives for the industries "were quite happy with their individual lot."

"They liked the size of their new communities," the report said. "Good roads permitted executives and their families to travel to larger cities for shopping and entertainment, their constructing any problem of 'small town atmosphere.'"

The report said there was no common pattern either in the reasons for picking the rural sites or in experiences encountered after the industries were established.

Frequent reports of lower labor productivity were offset by many instances by lower wage rates, greater stability and less absenteeism.

Kingston Derelict's Future Not Decided

OTTAWA (CP)—A Kingston delegation met Wednesday with a transport department official but reached no definite decisions about the future of the Inch Arran, a derelict former navy frigate moored in Kingston harbor.

Gordon Stead, assistant deputy minister for marine affairs, said the group was advised how to proceed if it wishes to apply for a waterfront lease to keep the engineless vessel on the shore.

There are plans to turn the hulk into a youth centre.

Mr. Stead said the matter is a private one for the community and the vessel's owners. The department's main concern is that the Inch Arran does not interfere in any way with the Rideau Canal channel which enters Lake Ontario at Kingston harbor.

The vessel has been drifting on the moorings, threatening the water supply line to Barriefield military camp near Kingston.

Members of the Kingston delegation were Mayor Robert Fray, Alderman George Webb and John Kele of Kingston Mariners' Inc., owners of the Inch Arran.

Senators Hit Colonel Blimps

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence authorities ranging from U.S. Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara back to Sir John Haig, First World War commander, were quoted in the Senate Wednesday while the upper house debated the government's armed forces unification bill.

Senator David Croll (L—Ontario) said opponents of the new concept of melding the navy, army and air force into a single force are as out-of-date as Field Marshal Haig was in saying he doubted whether the airplane, tank and motor vehicle would ever replace the horse and man on the battlefield.

Senator Harper Prouse (L—Alberta) cited Mr. McNamara's recent direction to send new light-weight, high-powered rifles to U.S. troops in Vietnam over the recommendations of his senior military advisers. This, he said, was an example that senior serving military officers are reluctant to admit there can be new concepts in defence with which they have not had experience.

Debate in the Senate on the unification bill, adjourned after several hours until Friday, was more decorous than the stubborn and sometimes raucous objections against the measure voiced during the lengthy Commons debate.

Farmers' Groups Hold Joint Meet

NAPANEE — The executives of the Lennox and Addington County Ontario Federation of Agriculture, and of the two locals of the county Ontario Farmers' Union held a joint meeting in the County Memorial Building Tuesday evening, April 25. The purpose of the meeting was to plan a farmers' meeting to organize a march on Ottawa in protest the low net income of farmers and the lack of long-term government policy.

The meeting will be held in the County Memorial Building Wednesday, May 24 at 8 p.m.

The provincial executives of both organizations met in Toronto Wednesday, to set a date for the march.

Harton MacLean, president of the County OFA was in the chair. Joseph Murphy of Enterprise, a director of the OFU representing Hastings, Lennox and Addington and Prince Edward was the chief spokesman for that organization. Executive members of several local unions also attended.

The meeting took on a lighter tone when Mr. MacLean was presented with a swivel rocker, in recognition of the fact that he is to be married Saturday to Miss Barbara Van der Vaart of the Ottawa area.

Pearson Says Quebec Bill Within Its Rights

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson says the federal government's exclusive responsibility for the conduct of Canada's external affairs cannot be altered by legislation adopted by a provincial legislature.

He adds in a Commons return filed Wednesday for Jean-Pierre Goyer (L—Montreal Dollard) that the governments of Quebec is aware of the constitutional requirements in the field of external affairs.

"There is no reason to believe that the manner in which the new Quebec department (of inter-governmental affairs) will carry out the functions assigned to it by this bill will not be fully consistent with the constitutional position in Canada."

Harness racing officials and aficionados can chalk one up to the Ontario legislature.

The boys up there in Queen's Park did the Sulky Sams a right good turn when they approved a private bill giving racing associations the authority to hold races and operate pari-mutuel systems.

In February the government announced that racing charters would be granted to agricultural societies incorporated before 1913.

Prior to this it was a struggle on the part of associations like the Quinte Driving and Riding Club to collect dusty old charters. The new procedure of granting racing rights does away with the former hack-deep system of reviving them.

As of new agriculture societies can engage racing associations to conduct meets. It is just a mere formality.

And the Quinte Driving Club welcomes the new edict with open arms.

"This does away with all the worry and fo-do-rol that used to be an annual headache for us," said Driving Club president Cargill Vance. "We mean securing the country for charters. No more hee-hawing to the powers-that-be. Everything now is hunky-dory."

Assisting the president in the operation of the club this year is Leonard Reid vice-president and racing secretary Mrs. Doreen Kemp.

Under the new system the Quinte Driving Club can operate nineteen nights this season if it so desires. Those plus the Black Diamond Cheese Exhibition again will be run during the annual fair in September.

"We have secured 13 of the 14 nights granted the Agricultural Society of Belleville," President Vance said. "Besides these we have secured five nights from the Stirling Agricultural Society with the option of getting two more if we need them."

"This gives us 18 nights plus the Stakes race. If the weather is good we shall exercise them all which will take us to September 23rd."

"It looks like a gala year for the club and harness racing in general horsebooly," said Mr. Vance. "We have increased the purses which will attract more and better horses. In fact the Fair Grounds is literally crawling with horses. The stables have been filled all winter."

He pointed out that anybody who has seven days of racing this year must race under the rules and regulations of the Ontario Racing Commission and the Canadian Trotting Association.

And betters will be able to lose their shirt or pick up the income tax in half the time this year.

A brand new pari-mutuel betting stand is in the process of construction. It is 48 feet long and will have twenty-two betting windows. All the windows will face the track doing away with that behind-the-scenes crowding at the rear of the old stand. Wagering and payments will be speeded up at least 50 per cent.

Race-wise single dashes will be introduced this season instead of the twin dashes. Officials feel this will tend to make the betting higher and bigger with no laying-off betters who usually wait for the results of the first dash before betting on the second.

The programs will be more attractive to race fans this year. They have been improved all through and will carry the past records of all entered horses.

The racing season will open May 20th according to president Vance. The track will be in fine condition with over 200 tons of rock dust mailing a fine racing surface.

All in all it looks like the best season in the history of the Driving Club.

LATER — A wire story from Toronto today says approval of the bill has been delayed. However, Premier Roberts said, "I know of no reason why the betting bill will not be called in due course."

'Not Bad For A DP'

Mikita; 'Share Trophies, Keep Loot'!

TORONTO (CP) — A rookie and two veterans attended the fourth annual National Hockey League awards luncheon Wednesday and walked out with most of the silverware.

Stan Mikita of Chicago Black Hawks perpetrated an unprecedented triple play, picking up the Art Ross, Hart and Lady Byng trophies;

Bobby Orr, 18, of Boston Bruins, won the Calder trophy;

Harry Howell of New York Rangers picked up the James Norris trophy.

Counting semi-final playoff money and bonus awards, Mikita won $9,000. He automatically won the Art Ross cup as league scoring champion by tying the record of 97 points and setting an assists record of 62.

The Hart he won as the player adjudged most valuable to his team; the Lady Byng is for the player best combining sportsmanship and a high standard of playing ability.

The Calder trophy is the rookie-of-the-year award and the Norris trophy is for the outstanding defenceman.

Alluding to the fact that he was born in Czechoslovakia, Mikita said:

"As I told my wife when I walked into this room—not bad for a DP."

He said he was especially grateful to his wingmen on the Black Hawks — Ken Wharram and Doug Mohns.

"I'll let them share in the trophies but they're not going to share in the money."

Howell, with 15 years in the NHL and more than 1,000 big-league games behind him, received in the Norris trophy his first official recognition.

"Anyone who said I had a chance at this before the season began, I'd have said you'd have to have your head read. There are some great burner on this trophy. But I feel in about 10 years they're going to change the name to the Bobby Orr trophy."

Orr, who jumped straight from junior hockey with Oshawa Generals of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A division, was almost tongue-tied.

"This is the thrill of my life. I'd like to congratulate (runners-up) Brian Conacher and Ed Van Impe."

NHL president Clarence Campbell said the league was proud that there were "no commercial attachments to any of the trophies—nor to the awards that go with them."

Hornets Sting Amerks

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — Val Fonteyne scored two unassisted goals, one on his own faceoff, as Pittsburgh Hornets defeated Rochester Americans 7-1 Wednesday night to open the American Hockey League's best-of-seven Calder Cup finals.

Fonteyne gave Pittsburgh a 1-0 lead in the second period by grabbing a loose puck in front of the Rochester nets and shooting it by goalie Bruce Gamble.

Early in the third period, Fonteyne faced off at centre ice, snapped up a rebound from his opposing player's stick and took it down the ice for a score.

The Hornets moved out of reach in the first period on goals by Ted Taylor, Gary Jarrett and Terry Gray within four minutes. Duke Harris and Farmer MacDonald scored in the third period.

Don Cherry ruined Hornet goalie Hank Bassen's shutout with a goal at 4:15 of the final period. Bassen had 29 saves.

The series continues in Rochester Friday night.

Eagles Talon Aces, Enter Finals

DRUMMONDVILLE, Que. (CP) — Drummondville Eagles powered themselves into the Allan Cup finals Wednesday night by outscoring Kingston Aces 3-1 in the fifth game of the Eastern Canada playoffs.

The victory gave the Eagles a decisive 4-1 edge over the Aces in the best-of-seven series and a spot in the Canadian Senior Hockey finals.

The opening game of the best-of-seven final series is scheduled for May 2 at Drummondville between the Eagles and the winner of the Western Canada finals, now being played by the Nelson, B.C., Maple Leafs and Calgary Spurs. The entire final series will be played at Drummondville.

The Kingston club appeared on its way to a stiin victory for most of the night after Wayne Brown scored for the visitors early in the first period.

The one - goal lead lasted throughout a closely - checked second period. But at the 47-second mark of the third period Rollie Leclair poked in the equalizer. Leclair's goal was followed by the clincher from Rejean Richer and an insurance tally from Jacques Begin.

Drummondville allowed the opposition only 30 shots on goal, which goaltender Claude Cyr handled with ease.

Drummondville, meanwhile, blanked Kingston goalkeeper Steve Rexe with 43 shots, 20 of them in the second period. Rexe had handed Drummondville a shutout Monday night in Kingston's only victory of the series, a 1-0 effort.

The first period of Wednesday night's contest was rough and tumble, with four penalties being handed out the offenders, two of whom received majors.

Red Wings Open With 9-2 Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

When the experts picked Rochester Red Wings to successfully defend their International League regular - season title, they could hardly have expected as much outside help as the Wings got Wednesday night.

Flags, bunting, speeches and symbolic first-pitches were all lined up for the four - game league opening, but all the plans fell through when rain and cold forced postponement of games involving Toronto Maple Leafs at Toledo against the Mud Hens, Buffalo Bisons at Columbus Jets and Syracuse Chiefs against Richmond Braves.

In the only game played, Rochester got outstanding hitting from John Scruggs and four-hit pitching over six innings from Ed Barnowski to beat Jacksonville Suns 9-2.

Only 3,600 fans watched as Scruggs slammed the season's first homer, a solo shot, drove in one more run on a fielder's choice and sent in two more with an eighth-inning single.

Yanks' Howard Poison For No-Hitters

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Wet or cold weather may have forced postponement of six major league baseball games Wednesday, but for Gary Peters of Chicago White Sox it couldn't have mattered less.

Peters, who led the American League last year in earned runs, breezed to a four-hit 5-1 victory over New York Yankees with Elston Howard continuing to be the toughest man in the Yankee batting lineup.

Howard, who ruined no-hit bids twice already this year with timely pinch - hits, Wednesday stroked the first hit off Peters who was working on a string of 12 consecutive outs.

"I'm not terribly bothered by the cold," Peters said after the game. "Once you get loose, you don't feel it and you don't get as tired in it."

Besides, he said, hitting the ball may sting the batters' in cold weather, especially inside pitches high on the hands and this is a big help to a pitcher because then batters tend to pull back on inside stuff.

Four American League and two National League games were postponed.

In NL games played, Don Drysdale came up with his first victory of the year for Los Angeles Dodgers a 2-1 victory over Atlanta Braves, and St. Louis Cardinals whipped a Houston Astros 7-2 while Cincinnati Reds were defeating San Francisco Giants 4-3.

The Astros' loss was their 10th straight, but for the Reds it was their sixth road victory in nine games against the Astros, the Giants and the Dodgers—a complete reversal from last year when they lost 13 of 22 games on the road against the same clubs.

The White Sox hopped on Yankee starter Mel Stottlemyre for a run in the first and got four more in the third in a rally started by Peters' single and capped by Tim McCarver's three-run homer.

Deron Johnson smacked his fifth homer in Cincinnati's victory while Don Pavletich stroked a double and a single, and relief specialist Ted Abernathy registered his sixth save in relief of winner Billy McCool.

Big One Tonight!

Coach Stage; Punch Cocky, Toe Wary

TORONTO (CP)—The emphasis in the Stanley Cup hockey final has suddenly shifted to the coaches.

Toronto's Punch Imlach is riding cloud nine and letting everyone know it, while Toe Blake of the favored Montreal Canadiens is speaking cautiously and making his charges work.

Imlach, renowned as a taskmaster with his teams, gave the Maple Leafs a leisurely workout following Tuesday's 3-2 overtime victory. The win coupled with a 2-0 shutout Saturday in Montreal after a 6-2 opening loss gave the Leafs a 2-1 edge in the best-of-seven series going into tonight's crucial game.

Tonight's game, to be televised in its entirety nationally by the CBC and in the United States by CBS starting at 8 p.m. EST.

Must Win Away

Blake said after the Saturday shutout that the eventual champion would have to win on the opponent's ice and tonight may be Montreal's last chance to prove him right.

Blake, after working the Canadiens hard for 60 minutes Wednesday, said Henri Richard, flattened by Toronto defenseman Allan Stanley late in Tuesday's game, would be fit for tonight's game.

Richard was reported still dazed 36 minutes after the game, but Blake said: "Every time someone gives Henri a check like that he wakes up and comes back strong."

Blake who said he would continue to use 21-year-old rookie goalie Rogatien Vachon and refused to fault the youngster on the Tuesday loss.

"If we'd got the goal, he'd have been the hero."

Imlach Elated

Imlach, meanwhile was whooping it up and needling Montreal sports writers he saw in the coffee shop at Maple Leaf Gardens.

"Right, your team now," he yelled across the room. "Ask them if they want to be bumbled and stay more."

Despite warnings from his assistant, King Clancy, to cool down, Imlach continued:

"There's no way we can lose to them if this team (Toronto) plays the way it has.

"The game last night should have tipped you off."

The fifth game of the series, also to be televised in its entirety, will be played Saturday in Montreal starting at 1:30 p.m. EST.

Goalies Are Tops!

Clay Faces Huge Fine, Five Years

HOUSTON (AP)—The government will give Cassius Clay two chances under two names to be inducted into the army Friday.

"We will abide with him whatever name he wants," an induction officer said. "We will call him Muhammad Ali if he refuses to take the step we will ask him under the name Cassius Marcellus Clay Jr.

If he still refuses an officer will quietly take him from the group and into a conference room where the penalty for refusing will be explained to him. He will be returned later and asked if he has reconsidered.

"If he again declines he will be asked for a statement. Regardless of whether he makes a statement or not he will be dismissed."

Failure of Clay to accept induction would make him subject to a possible $10,000 fine, a five-year prison sentence, or both.

Merger Hopes Dashed

TORONTO (CP)—Hopes for a merger of the internationally-sanctioned United Soccer Association and the unsanctioned National Professional Soccer League were dashed Wednesday.

In a telephone interview from Chicago, where the two new professional leagues were meeting, Milton Kent, possible merger, Ken Macker, NPSL commissioner, said further talks are off until September at least.

One NPSL representative said the stumbling block is the merger talks was Jack Kent Cooke, owner of Los Angeles Wolves of the USA because the association has a 10-year agreement with the United States Soccer Football Association.

But in a telephone interview from Los Angeles Cooke denied this.

Royals Snatch Win!

FORT WILLIAM, Ont. (CP)—For a couple of minutes it appeared New Westminster Royals, who ended a 23-year British Columbia drought by reaching the Western Canada Junior hockey final, would be victims of a deluge.

But they scrambled from behind four times — erasing a 2-0 deficit they faced after just 85 seconds of the first period—to sip Port Arthur Marrs 6-5 in overtime Wednesday night for a 1-0 lead in the best-of-seven Memorial Cup semi-final.

The second and third games will be played here tonight and Friday night, with remaining games scheduled for New Westminster.

"I figure this series will go seven games . . . six at least," Royals coach Bob Fenton said in the dressing room. "These clubs are evenly matched."

Canadians Beaten In Preview

BOURNEMOUTH, England (AP) — Jan Erik Lundqvist, Sweden's top - ranking tennis star, crushed Bob Bedard of Sherbrooke, Que., 6-3, 6-3, 6-1 Wednesday and moved into the quarter - finals of the British hard - court championships.

Lundqvist shares top seeding with Bob Hewitt, the Australian-born star now a member of South Africa's Davis Cup squad. Hewitt also made the last eight with an easy 6-4, 6-1, 6-3 victory over Birger Folke of Sweden.

Roger Taylor, British left-hander, overcame former Montreal Mike Belkin 6-4, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3 in what might be considered a preview of next week's Davis Cup match.

Marlies Win Opener

Four In Four Minutes!

THETFORD MINES, Que. (CP)—Four goals within four blistering minutes provided the margin of victory for Toronto Marlboros as they downed Thetford Mines Canadiens 6-2 Wednesday night in the opener of the best-of-five Eastern Canada Memorial Cup finals.

Mike Byers scored two goals within two minutes to spark the Toronto attack. Until then the Quebec Canadiens had led 2-1 on the strength of goals by Pierre Leblanc and Michel Jacques. Toronto's Chris Evans was the only scorer in the first period, a tight-checking 20 - minutes of hockey.

After Byers' two fast ones in the second period, the Marlies never looked back. Steve King and Tom Martin scored right after, followed by a third-period goal by John Wright.

Toronto goaltender Bob Whitestopping 40 Thetford Mines shots.

Michel Dumas stopped 38 of the 44 shots sent his way by the husky Toronto team.

The Marlboros took six of nine penalties, three of them in the final period.

A crowd of 2,800 in the 1,636-seat arena—flocked to watch the youthful hometown club take on the heavier and more experienced Torontonians.

The second game of the series is here Friday, with the last three scheduled for Toronto.

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government has spent $345,130 to buy, improve and furnish a guest house in Ottawa for distinguished foreign visitors during Centennial Year, State Secretary LaMarsh revealed Wednesday in a written Commons reply to Reynold Rapp (PC—

Pulford, Pappin, Stemkowski Best Production Line Says Imlach

TORONTO (CP)—What a difference a season made for Toronto Maple Leafs.

Last year the Leafs had already been eliminated 4-0 by Montreal Canadiens in the best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-finals.

But things have changed—for the better.

The big difference is in the Leafs' production line of centre Peter Stemkowski, right winger Jim Pappin and left winger Bob Pulford.

"Stemkowski is a hitting forward," defenceman Tim Horton said Wednesday. "You can always rely on him to dig the puck out of the corners and it makes the work a whole lot easier for the defence."

Stemmer's play has made his line the top production unit in this year's Stanley Cup finals, which the Leafs lead two games to one.

Pappin leads the playoff point getters with 13 on five goals and eight assists. Stemkowski is second with five goals and five assists. Pulford is fifth with one goal and seven assists.

Pappin, a major surprise during the last half of the regular season and the playoffs, was demoted to the American Hockey League mid - way through the regular National League season.

He returned to the Leafs after six games in the minors and scored 13 goals during the final half of the season. He collected 21 goals during the season.

Pulford, who couldn't seem to get going during the first half of the schedule, has appparently gone through a period of transition.

He had a tough time of it," Stafford Smythe, president of Maple Leaf Gardens, said Wednesday. "He couldn't bring himself to realize he was getting old."

The 11-year veteran was 31 in March.

"That's the hardest thing to cope with in a hockey player—to make him realize he has to play differently as he gets older."

Imlach admits Pulford-Stemkowski - Pappin line made the difference in Leaf victories over Chicago Black Hawks in the semi - finals and in their two wins in the finals.

"They're my best line," Imlach said. "If they can keep going, we can win the Stanley Cup."

No Extra Mortgage or Loan Required On Do-It-Yourself Home Improvement

Save Money for Kitty

household expenses that is. Paint-it-yourself, with ease, with one of the new latex enamels (no messy clean-up, either). The black and white cat watches his mistress repaint the window trim with a latex satin enamel.

Many homeowners are currently boosting inflationary prices by doing most home improvement work themselves. No extra mortgage or bank loan is needed to paint a five-room house or apartment and today's modern do-it-yourself methods and materials make it a fun job for Saturday afternoons.

An economical all-latex system also helps any team of man and wife perform as well as a staff of professionals at the nominal cost of $10 for an average size room. This would be $50 for five rooms.

A leading paint manufacturer recommends the all-latex system which includes a corresponding enamel as a new adjunct to latex wall paint, the most popular house covering in recent years.

A two bedroom home for example, with bath and kitchen running 10 x 10 feet, to 12 x 15 feet for a living-dining room, will use four gallons of latex wall paint and two gallons of enamel. Cost is approximately $45. Add $5 for roller, pan and brush, or save it you have them and a total of $50 completes the marvel of a new and lasting look. The palette of fade-resistant colors at the paint dealer is wide and versatile, to suit any taste or decorating scheme.

One tip, cautions do-it-yourselfers to make sure the surface to be painted is completely clean. Old nobible paints, grease and dirt should be washed off with soapy water and dried. Cracks and nail holes may be repaired with a water -mix patching plaster, and rough surfaces should be sanded.

The home team may alternate assignments; one can do the walls with a short nap roller while the other enamels the trim with a two-inch nylon brush. Wherever feels better in high places may climb the ladder to complete the upper part of a room or ceiling.

Latex enamel enjoys all the benefits of its older sister with a special function of painting wooden trim, furniture and cabinets. Odorless and easy to apply, it covers in one coat and dries in one hour.

Finally, the all-latex system is easy cleanup when the job is done. No mess or sticky substances remain to plague the housewife. All tools can be washed in soapy water and splatters on the floor may be wiped up in a jiffy with a damp cloth.

Use Overhead for Storage

Need more storage space in the home? Put dust-collecting, unattractive overhead areas to work.

Wide-open spaces that can be prettied up and made functional ranges from neglected places such as tops of kitchen cabinets, or high-up areas in closets, to an unfinished attic.

Higher reaches of the kitchen are notorious for space wasty. Often, the wall cabinets have yawning tops.

These areas can be easily built-up to the ceiling by adding a framework and enclosing it with sides and sliding doors of woodgrained hardboard.

The increased cabinet space is practical for storing seldom-used utensils.

Put high-up areas in clothes closets to work by installing perforated panels, now available in woodgrained walnut finishes, over framing. Store boxes and other items on shelves placed on brackets that fit the perforations.

Imaginative Use Of Space Pays Off

Imaginative utilization of small space can pay big dividends in a home modernization program.

The cramped corner, that hard-to-furnish niche, becomes useful floor space and a design focal point with built-in units that mix style and functionality.

A wide, ceiling-high core presented a remodeler with a stiff challenge in a kitchen-family room area. Distant from the kitchen work centre and visible from the well-decorated family-leisure room, the niche had been an unused barren wall area.

With a minimum of basic construction, a dry-wall soffit was lowered from the ceiling and the built-in unit installed, creating a desk-storage-communications centre, featuring a handy extension telephone and house-wide AM-FM radio intercom system.

Designed to withstand the abuse of a growing family as well as provide lasting decorative beauty, the entire unit was surfaced with laminated plastic.

Remodel With Paper

One of the quickest ways to "remodel" a room is with new wallpapers.

Colorful wallpaper can help complete room remodeling projects in decorative fashion, or, where the budget does not permit a structural changeover, skillful use of color and pattern in wallpaper will "remodel" a room's appearance.

For the do-it-yourselfers, innovations in wallpaper serve to make life much easier.

Factory pasted and trimmed papers speed up the job of hanging, and those not pretrimmed need little work to be made ready.

Plastic coated paper is fast becoming a favorite. The coating seals in color, and makes spot cleaning easy.

Yet another innovation is removable wallpaper. Special lining goes between paper and wall. When it's time to repaper, just loosen a corner of the wallpaper and peel it off.

Firm Foundation

With one house already up, mason Roy Summers works on concrete foundations for its next-door neighbor on West Belleville. It's part of stepped-up housing construction pace as spring weather spurts building.

Ceramic Tile Not Limited

Three or four decades ago, ceramic tile was limited in the bathroom.

Not so today. Improvements in size, color, shape and quality have allowed ceramic tile to break the "bathroom barrier," for use in many areas of the home.

Domestic tiles are now manufactured in the entire prismatic spectrum of colors, with more than a thousand shades to choose from.

Sculptured tile, a comparatively new addition to the domestic tile scene, offers infinite decorating possibilities. The sculptured face of the tile adds the play of light and shadow to its beauty.

Sculptured tile comes in conventional square sizes, with pleasing geometric patterns in bas-relief.

These concave-convex tiles are ideal for decorative walls, planters, room dividers, fireplaces, garden walls and facades. They can be used to form an over-all pattern, a single or repeated design, or as random inserts with smooth-surfaced tiles.

Other choices include tiles with smooth, flat surfaces and tiles that are unglazed, brightglazed, matt-glazed and extra-duty glazed, the latter for floors as well as walls.

And there are tiles that are square, rectangular, hexagonal, octagonal, irregular and in special contour designs ranging in size from one-half inch to 12 inches square.

Reasons Why A Rollins Home Is Unquestionably The Best Home You Could Build.

1. ANNUALLY INCREASING VALUE

This aspect is true of all new homes — however to a considerably greater degree with "Rollins Homes". Buying a Rollins home today is similar to putting money in the bank for a "nest egg" so to speak. As the prices of all commodities rise over the years due to normal inflation, so does the resale value of your home . . . particularly with a Rollins home due to the low initial cost of the house when first purchased.

2. VOLUME SELLING - BUYING

The low initial price of a Rollins home mentioned above is possible only through volume selling. Rollins Construction builds more homes than any other builder between Toronto and Montreal. This results in volume buying — therefore lower material costs. This material savings is eventually channeled to the home purchaser — you, the people who buy Rollins homes.

3. PROTECTED AREAS

This is an important consideration for every new home buyer. Rollins Construction takes particular pains to build on sites in areas that are not in danger of becoming devaluated due to commercial construction or homes of a much lesser value. This is an added insurance that your home will continue to increase in its resale value.

4. QUALITY CONTROL

You'll be pleasantly surprised when you visit Rollins Sales Office to learn that the products that make up the construction of your future home are products that you are probably familiar with yourself. In Rollins Homes only famous brand-names well known to everyone, tried and tested in every way, are used. These quality products are included at absolutely no extra cost to the buyer.

5. KNOWLEDGE

It's a fact! All of the people connected with the building of a Rollins home are craftsmen and experts in their fields with a minimum of 10 years experience. From the man who sells you the home to the tradesman who installed the lighting fixtures of your choice, you can depend on the finest of service and workmanship. As insurance of that, every Rollins home buyer receives a one-year written guarantee on all workmanship and materials.

Why Not Buy Now!

Possibly a good 6th reason why you should buy a Rollins home is the tremendous selection available now! No other builder in the area has a working knowledge of so many houses from which a buyer can choose. With more government and bank money now available to the industry, we are building in many Belleville and district areas now. Call Mr. Jim Cathcart to inspect model plans and to discuss your particular housing requirements.

Modern Design in Windows Gives House New Outlook

Modern windows can give your old house a bright, new outlook. Installing new units is not difficult, and the results are so effective that it's worth consideration as a home-remodelling project.

One thing you can do is create a new focal point for your house exterior by installing a stock bow or bay window of ponderosa pine. These graceful units are particularly suited to Colonial architecture, but add elegance to any house style.

They offer a large glass expanse for wide vistas, frame a view beautifully, and allow ventilation through operating panels at the top or bottom of the window.

Bows and bays are especially effective in a living room, but many homeowners are recognizing their possibilities as an intervening window treatment in second-floor suites or offices.

Ponderosa pine units are available with built-in window seats that make such placement particularly appropriate.

If the double-hung windows in your house are old and need replacement, combine beauty and function in the new units you choose.

Stock wood units can be fitted with attractive removable grilles that snap on to give a small-pane look and snap out to reveal a single pane of glass for easy cleaning.

Sliding windows in wood frames, which offer extensive visibility in an operating window, are a good choice for contemporary homes. They can be combined with sliding doors to form a beautiful glass-wall entrance to the patio that opens the house interior to the outdoors.

A bonus feature of the wood frames is that they can be painted a different color on either side to match the exterior and interior decorating scheme.

When building walls of windows it pays to use insulating glass. This consists of two panes of glass hermetically sealed together a trifle apart to form a layer of "dead" air that prevents heat loss. Windows with insulating glass keep a room more comfortable year-round and represent a sizeable saving on heating bills. Insulating glass is now available in all styles of stock wood windows.

To perk up a drab dining room that suffers from too little light and air, consider this unusual window treatment. Stack a series of awning or hopper windows, three across and three high, or four across and four high.

The awnings open out, and the hoppers in, at a 90-degree angle, providing a free air flow and maximum ventilation while the stacking provides wide visibility.

Even an old kitchen deserves a modern and efficient window. Ideal for hard-to-reach over-the-sink location is a wood casement window which opens out with the simple turn of a handle.

What makes remodeling with windows practical today is that all these styles are available at local lumber dealers in stock sizes of ponderosa pine ready for easy installation, paint. They're precision - cut and have a factory - applied chemical preservative that protects them against weather abuse for the life of the house.

New Windows Add Charm

An elegant bay window can create an entirely new focal point for your house exterior. Here a stock unit adds grace and interest to what would otherwise be a flat, side-of-the-house facade.

Varnish And Get Results

Is there a varnishing project on the agenda? For the smooth, bubble-free finish that sometimes seems so difficult to achieve, try this simple procedure:

Use a soft bristle brush of good quality.

Grip the brush by the ferrule, allowing the handle to rest between thumb and forefinger.

Dip the brush in the varnish, to no more than one-third of the length of the bristles.

Don't wipe off excess varnish on the rim of the can. Do tap the brush gently against inside of can. This removes excess, prevents dripping, yet leaves brush "loaded" with enough varnish for smooth application.

Bathroom: $100 or $50,000

Home improvers, attention. There's a revolution in the bathroom. No, it isn't just pot-upon Pops, claiming his right to a shower and a shave. It's a revolutionary trend that's making the bathroom the most glamorous room in the home.

"Bathrooms today are the showplace of the home, in which 24-carat gold is combined with real jewels for plumbing fixtures," declares U.S. designer Sherle Wagner, whose bathrooms grace the homes of the rich and the famous, from film stars to kings.

For this kind of bathroom, better check the bankroll first. It can cost as much as $50,000!

But don't despair. People on a budget can doll up the bathroom for as little as $100, says Mr. Wagner.

Active Boys Have Ideas On Houses

If your home includes an active boy, you would be wise to check with him before starting your home-improvement program. He may not appear to notice how the house looks—but he does. He has strong views and practical ideas.

Boys are very definite in their feelings:

First, about furniture. It should be sturdy, practical, sturdy, simple in design, and sturdy. Especially sturdy. "It's nice to have things they don't tell you to be careful of and keep your feet off", is a typical comment. Washable slipcovers are the best — for obvious reasons. There was even one vote for keeping the old furniture because: "Mom didn't care how rough you were with it".

Next on colors: Boys like panelled walls. Wallpaper is "Okay, I guess, but not too many flowers". Painted walls should be light and bright. But in their own rooms or the playroom, proceed with caution. Apply paint only "room pink", was one disgusted comment. "I didn't ask my friends over for a long time. It wasn't so bad after the walls got a little dirty."

About the rooms themselves: Nearly every youngster wants a room of his own. Naturally, this is often impossible. (Many feel they can find more privacy — and a quiet place to do homework or read — at their Boys' Club.) This is especially true of boys from large families.

Appliances? Lamps that are not easy to tip over, with the pole version much in favor. Rugs you can wipe clean when you spill things. (Even a vote for linoleum throughout the house.) And — you guessed it — a TV set in every room!

Two Kinds Of Waxes For Floors

There are two basic kinds of floor waxes: self-polishing and the polishing type. Self-polishing wax comes in liquid form and has little odor. Spread on floors, it dries to a shiny finish that requires no buffing. Polishing wax, on the other hand, may be either a paste or a liquid. This type of wax requires buffing, but it gives you longer-lasting lustre. Liquid polishing wax cleans as you apply it so no scrubbing or mopping is necessary. If you use self-polishing wax, the floor must be cleaned and rinsed before application.

CAMPER TRAILER

Here's a Camper Trailer with all the features that campers appreciate most . . . built-in bunks for 4 adults, lots of floor space, roomy tents with plenty of head-room and windows on all sides, easy to set-up, easy to tow, and built for years of trouble-free service.

STANDARD EQUIPMENT ON ALL TRAILERS INCLUDES:
- Self Supporting Jack
- Safety Chain
- Recessed Tail Lights
- Licence Bracket

TERMS TO SUIT ANY BUDGET

THE TENT
Made of the finest quality, high thread count army duck (10.28 oz. after treatment) waterproofed with a silicone process that lasts for years, leaves the material odour-free and dry to the touch. All windows and the door are protected with inside zippered storm flaps and nylon screens. The big side window also has a clear plastic panel that zips up to keep out rain and admit daylight. The travel cover zips on to the eave of the tent, over the door, to make a handy canopy.

HEAVY-DUTY TRAILER
A good trailer starts with a good frame. Ours goes all around the outside of the box for solid support. The box is made of heavy gauge sheet steel, and the whole assembly is welded together to keep its shape permanently, and to stay rattle-free. The inside floor is ¾" plywood covered with linoleum . . . easy to keep clean.

NEIDHARDT TORSION BAR SUSPENSION
New independent wheel suspension system eliminates troublesome springs and shock absorbers. The trailer rides closer to the road for better stability, yet has more road clearance than conventional solid axles. The suspension and wheel bearings are sealed and lifetime lubricated, never need service.

SUN VALLEY
Travelling size — 6' wide by 6'6" long. Opens to 12' by 6'6" with over 26 square feet of floor area plus bunk space.

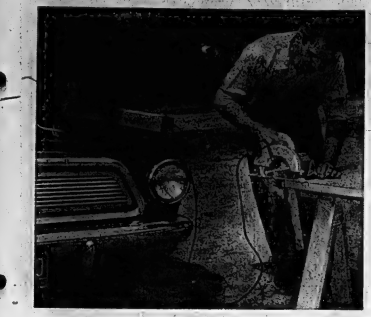
Home Extras Easier to Accomplish With Portable Power

Time was when a "home" was that cute little vice-covered cottage of your dreams. Now home handymen are making it much more, by adding such "extras" as a garage for the second car, a tree house for the children and a charming fence for privacy.

Modern power tools have made it possible for the homeowner to become his own contractor. But, in many instances, the outdoor jobs have made it possible for the homeowner to become his own contractor. But, in many instances, the outdoor jobs have posed special problems because the power tools could go only where there was power—and that means not far from an electrical outlet.

So, unhappy men have been cutting wood in the workshop and lugging the elements out for assembly. Finishing tools like electric sanders and planes have been left behind in favor of hand equipment because the "cord just isn't long enough."



Now the home handyman has a way of taking his power tools with him when his projects take him away from the wall outlet. The restrictions imposed by electric cords have been cut by a power tool converter.

This new unit steps up the power from a common 12-volt car or tractor battery to the 120 volts needed to run a power tool. The converter provides a full thrust of power, avoiding the drawback of the standard battery operated tool — an inability to provide the starting surge necessary to get the tool spinning.

It will power any universal or DC motor, and comes in standard and heavy duty models. The standard model will power any tool rated up to 4.5 amperes, while the heavy duty converter powers tools rated up to 12 amperes, in practice, the standard model will power drills, shears, hedge clippers and other common tools, while the heavy-duty version will run saws and other large tools.

If the capacity of the unit is exceeded or the tool stalls, an automatic circuit breaker shuts off the power. It can be reset by the flip of a toggle.

The converter also offers assistance when the project is finishing in attic or repairing a roof. The battery can be taken from the vehicle, moved to the task and restored when the job is completed.

Power for Tools Anywhere

A converter gives true portability to the plug-in tool. It allows the handyman to use a power saw or other tool far beyond the reach of an extension cord. The converter steps up the current from a common 12-volt battery to the 120 volts needed to run a high torque tool.

Siding Choice Is Vital

Selection of a new siding for the home should include consideration of cost, appearance, protection, durability and home value.

While initial cost is a big factor, the question of future maintenance expense should also be studied.

For attractive appearance, the decision may depend on personal preference, architectural style of the home, type of siding used on neighboring homes.

Protection and durability involve resistance to weather, fire and vermin.

Four Layouts

Good Planning Kitchen Necessity

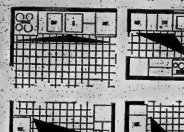
In kitchen remodeling, the chief aim is usually for a combination of more work-saving efficiency with more attractive appearance. No matter how much time and work are saved, the homemaker knows she'll still be spending a lot of time in the kitchen. Naturally, she's interested in the charm and personality of her "Headquarters."

Good planning is the basis on which all else rests. Plan it carefully, organize it thoroughly — and the modernized kitchen will be both a smooth-ly-running workshop and a setting for whatever decorative effect the homemaker prefers.

Four widely - used kitchen layouts are: The one - wall, where appliances, cabinets and countertops are placed along one wall; the corridor, where they are placed along two facing walls, the U-where the work area forms a U; and the L, where two adjoining walls are used. Of these, the U and L shapes are generally considered most efficient.

A well-planned kitchen contains a refrigerator - freezer centre for food storage, a range centre for cooking and a dishwasher-sink centre for clean-up.

In addition to the appropriate appliances, each centre should have sufficient cabinet and countertop space, so supplies can be kept where they are used, and work can be done at that spot.



Since most kitchen walking is done between refrigeration, cooking and clean-up centres, it's best to locate appliances —dishwasher in a triangular pattern: each appliance set at the point of an équidistant triangle. Modern appliances bring new advantages that add to the working efficiency of each kitchen centre.

A large-capacity, no-frost refrigerator-freezer will hold an average family's food supply for a week, saving trips to the market. No-frost feature ends messy defrosting.

New ranges offer greater capacity and cooking efficiency. Many models are available with double ovens and separate temperature controls.

Automatic timers and temperature controls on electric ranges are time-savers, since they eliminate pot - watching and check-ups on cooking progress.

Automatic dishwashers save time by taking over the entire job of dishwashing.

Kitchen Triangle

Modern work-saving appliances, such as a no-frost refrigerator-freezer, electric range and automatic dishwasher, are set at three points of a triangle in basic kitchen designs, as shown. Design choices include the one-wall kitchen and the corridor (top row), the U. kitchen and the L (bottom row).

Gourmet Barbecue at Home or Away

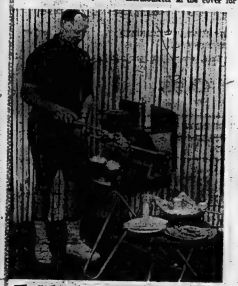
The newest barbecue devices will add extra dimensions of convenience to the family barbecues at home and on the road.

A significant development is enthusiasm for covered kettle barbecue cooking. A trend setter in this area — likely to be the outdoor chef's 1967 status symbol — is a new all-aluminum covered kettle with a thermometer in the cover for accurate temperature control that brings the precision of indoor cooking into the patio barbecue area.



Aluminum's efficiency in radiating heat speeds up cooking time. There's a swing-out, battery-operated cordless motor. A convenient hook inside the cover holds the cover on the rim and acts as a windbreak.

This new model has a standard grid — 21½ inches high. A large bottom vent with a handle control provides visible control of air to fire without bending down.

Equally significant in providing luxury cooking for the family on the move is the new tidalwave rotisserie grill.

The foldaway rotisserie grill creates a new dimension of mobility and convenience for deluxe outdoor cookery.

This model folds and closes just like a suitcase, with a firebox, grid and spit all inside. There's even room inside for briquets, starter and tools in the first truly portable design. Set up in seconds, this model has fold 'n lock aluminum legs. These legs are of rust free aluminum snap-lock construction that form a handle for pushing, pulling or hanging grills for convenient storage when folded.

Folds Like Suitcase

Now barbecue enthusiasts can do rotisserie cooking on the road, wherever fancy leads them.

Hooks or pegboard hardware will put aluminum housewares necessities within easy reach and brighten a kitchen at the same time. Aluminum canisters may be stored on counter-top for fast access to basic ingredients.

Organization Not Cleaning Best Program

Spring cleaning can be a lot more effective when it's turned into spring organizing, particularly in the kitchen. Smart homemakers will give some attention to a utensil inventory, throwing out equipment which has lost its utility either through damage or obsolescence and organizing kitchen storage to keep cookware and small utensils where they're easy to reach. Just a little organization will reap benefits of increased efficiency and lighter kitchen work loads throughout the year.

Utensils which have cracked, or have missing or broken handles should be discarded, for they can be accident and health hazards. Old cookware can now be replaced with modern non-stick aluminum utensils, available in a wide range of attractive colors and finishes with the advantages of even - heating aluminum and easy non-stick cleanup.

Small housewares items should be checked, too. Just an extra set of measuring spoons or cups or range-top salt and pepper shakers can make recipe preparation simpler. Pegboard storage is ideal for small aluminum items like molds, strainers, cups and spoons.

Don't Skimp!

Remember, today's kitchen has to hold from 85 to 110 utensils of all shapes and sizes. Don't skimp on cabinet and counter space!

Ample countertop work space and appropriate cabinet storage should be located near the food preparation, cooking and clean-up centres of the kitchen.

Make sure doors and drawers of cabinets and appliances don't block traffic aisles when they are open.

Color in Screening Allows Harmonizing With House Scheme

Since the introduction of color in aluminum screening less than two years ago, color porch screens has excited a significant jump in the use of color aluminum screening because screened areas encompass as much as 50 per cent of the home's exterior surface, the availability of color in aluminum screening has created new departures in exterior decoration of the home.

"The fresh sparkle and warmth of charcoal or green screening co-ordinated with the color scheme of the house and window trim greatly enhances the eye-appeal," noted George Tsuroka, architectural consultant to the Exterior Decorators Institute of the Aluminum Association, in explanation of the trend.

Homeowner demand for color in aluminum screening in the first half of 1966 was running roughly equal to demand for the conventional satin however, professional exterior decorators generally agree that the screening should be color harmonized to the window and porch trim.

A number of suggested color harmonies in exterior trim and color aluminum screening were sketched by Mr. Tsuroka. The green host complements red brick, redwood siding and dusty-red aluminum riding, and it harmonizes with yellow and blue home exteriors. The charcoal, a comparatively neutral color, blends well with most pastels used on home exteriors and with white.

The recently introduced colors in aluminum screening currently are available throughout the nation at hardware and building materials dealers.

BUILT-IN DESK and "communication centre" makes good use of space in problem corner of a kitchen - family room. The entire unit was surfaced with Formica-brand laminated plastic.

Many hardware and building supply dealers, across the nation have introduced a re-screening service in recent years. Smart homeowners utilize this service or they "bone up" on doing the job themselves.

Bathrooms Always Rank Near Top of List As Important Home Improvement Project

Bathrooms rank high on the list of most wanted — and needed — home improvement projects.

If cost is inhibiting your immediate plans for bathroom modernization, remember the bathroom demands consideration because it can do so much to improve the home and increase the family's comfort.

What's more, a wide variety of new plumbing fixtures, accessories and materials that are both decorative and utilitarian, allow you to choose features that will suit your budget as well as your taste.

The three major disadvantages of older bathrooms are lack of privacy, space and modern convenience features. The tendency toward larger families means that one bathroom per house is simply not enough. Most families require at least an additional powder room.

If you can't manage a second bathroom yet, there are some things you can do to make present quarters more serviceable, comfortable and attractive.

One solution to the daily bathroom traffic tie-up can be achieved by closing off the lavatory area from the rest of the room with a partition, thus permitting two people to use the bathroom at the same time.

The room can also serve double duty if you add a second sink or install a new double-lavatory unit.

Since the bathroom takes hard, daily abuse, it should have facilities, walls and floors that are easy to clean. This is no problem if you select the right materials.

Plastic-coated wall paneling that resists heat and humidity is inexpensive, sponges clean, and gives the room a warm, unusually good-looking decor. Washable wallpaper that comes in a variety of colorful, attractive patterns is another practical way to relieve the cold, antiseptic appearance of old-fashioned bathrooms.

If you decide to paint, use a washable enamel finish and get away from the traditional white, pink or blue shades with interesting new combinations of browns, yellows or greens, in addition to floor tiles, there are now many vinyl flooring materials that offer beauty and low-maintenance.

New fixtures make a big difference in bathroom remodeling. Don't choose them hastily. Take a look at the wide variety available at local building supply dealers, many of whom feature full bathroom displays to give you sound and interesting remodeling ideas.

It pays to get good quality fixtures and facilities that can take daily use. The trend now is towards wall-hung toilets because it's easier to clean under and around them, built-in vanities, and round or oval lavatories with adjacent countertop space. Colored fixtures are popular, and single-handle faucets get the nod because of their convenience.

There are also a host of accessories that will update your bathroom. These range from practical double medicine cabinets, which give you twice the storage space and mirror area, to pretty matched linens holders and waste paper baskets. Where cost is no problem, bathrooms can go exotic with sunken tubs, water-resistant nuguals, and built-in sun lamps.

A Dog's Life

This puppy gets his Saturday night bath in style. One thing that makes it easier, whether you're bathing puppies or children, is the elegant easy-care tub enclosure that folds together for complete access to the tub.

HOME OF THE WEEK

Featured here is an attractive split-level which could be built on a 40 ft. lot. This home offers excellent traffic circulation because of its well divided areas. The ground level includes a large living room with fireplace at one end. There are two banks of picture windows here. Kitchen and dining are combined with a snack bar in the kitchen. The second or upper level holds three bedrooms with large closets each. Bathroom includes a built-in vanitory counter. Basement or lower level features a large recreation room, good sized laundry and a separate heating room, all placed under the bedroom wing. Crawl space beneath the living area could be used for storage.

Standard blueprints for this Design No. 329 cost $20.00 for the first set, and $5.00 for additional sets. Blueprints comply with the National Building Code of Canada, and are obtainable by return mail. (Ontario residents must remit 5 per cent sales tax.) The latest Design Book entitled "101 Selected Suburban and Country Homes designed for Canadians," price $1.00 tax free is available at this Newspaper Office. This edition includes information on the cost of building in Canada, financing, heating, insulation, constructional details, etc, plus many outstanding new ranch, one and half storey, split level, two storey Colonial, and duplex designs. Full details on how to order blueprints are also included in this book.

Flocked Cloths Now Washable

For lovers of the elegant in home decor, there is now a variety of flocked wall cloths which are both easy to apply and are soap-and-water washable.

The patterns of some of the wall cloths are inspired by 18th century ecclesiastical robes, others by Far Eastern designs early American motifs and floral designs. The color range in these cloths flocked with easy-care acrylic fibre is vast and varied, from such brilliant combinations as royal blue flock on an emerald green ground to an elegant and sophisticated white - on-white.

These flocked cloths are prepasted so that they can just be dipped in water and smoothed on the wall. They are washable and will dry looking fresh and beautiful because the flock is of Cresian. Even stain-makers such as hair sprays, catsup, chocolate syrup, and coffee can be wiped off without leaving a ring or matting the flocking.

Sidings Offer A Variety of Choices in Refinishing Your Home

When it comes to exterior remodeling, home improvement is a many-sided story — thanks to the many sidings now available for home renovation.

For just some of the many sides to the siding story, consider wood, asbestos cement, steel, mineral fibre, aluminum and vinyl. Add to these the masonry veneers; then, add the range of textures, finishes, colors to be found in every kind and category of siding. They sided, indeed.

For the homeowner, the important sides to the story are these: improved home appearance, better protection, increased home value, reasonable cost, convenient maintenance.

How to choose the "best" siding? It isn't an easy question, since many modern siding seem to offer the same basic advantages of attractive appearance, minimum maintenance and resistance to weather, fire, other damage.

A homeowner may choose a certain kind of siding because it offers a special feature he particularly wants, or because he knows it has been widely used in his community, with successful results.

His building materials dealer can supply information about the advantages of specific sidings, and he is also in a position to know how various sidings perform in local use.

Some of the many sides of siding are:

WOOD

A practical and economical choice, wood siding is available in several types to create a variety of architectural effects, or carry out a special color scheme. Although wood usually requires painting or other refinishing, new prefinished plywood panels make maintenance easy, and are guaranteed never to crack, blister, fade or peel.

MASONRY VENEERS

Distinctive texture is often the reason for choosing a masonry veneer — brick, stone, simulated stone — as a home siding. The veneers offer a wide range of permanent colors, require no painting and have insulating properties.

ALUMINUM

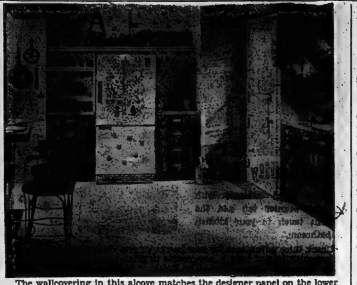
A modern low-maintenance material, aluminum siding offers such advantages as: no warping, rotting, rusting or cracking and no danger from termites. In addition to qualities of strength and durability, it presents an attractive variety of colors and finishes.

ASBESTOS CEMENT

Long-wearing and easy to maintain, asbestos cement siding is a fireproof, weatherproof mixture of asbestos fibres and portland cement. It resists rot, rust, decay, chemical fumes on corrosive salt air, and comes in a variety of shapes, textures and colors.

STEEL

Fire - resistant and vermin-proof, galvanized steel siding is available in a variety of colors. It is strong, dent resistant and now rot need back boards because steel bridges the hollows of any old siding it covers, to create an attractive straight line appearance.



VINYL

In the modern, minimum maintenance category is vinyl siding. It will not chip, wear away, blister or peel; it is vermin-proof, resistant to fungus and mildew; will not support fire or electricity; stands up under unusual atmospheric conditions, says its protagonists.

Durable and easy to install, vinyl siding offers an attractive appearance, with no exposed joints or nailing.

MINERAL FIBRE

Factory-finished mineral siding is color-coated with a durable finish of acrylic plastic. The siding to which the plastic coating is bonded, is fireproof, warp-and rot-proof. It installs directly over old walls, with non-staining nails in colors to match the siding.

The wallcovering in this alcove matches the designer panel on the lower door of the refrigerator freezer combination. Called "Treasure Tree" it is carried out in checks which resemble gingham.

Kitchen Go Togethers Are Fridge and Wallpaper

"Today's kitchen is almost a family room. It needn't, shouldn't look like an operating room. It should be a warm inviting, happy setting for working, eating, entertaining," says Penny Halleck Lehman, in the introduction to her "Beautiful Kitchens Idea Book."

"And," she adds, "it does not have to cost a fortune to bring a kitchen to life with new color and patterns."

Proof of the ease with which the homemaker can be her own kitchen decorator can be found in the new line of refrigerators and harmonizing wall coverings.

These bring a new decorating concept to the kitchen by making the refrigerator a part of the overall room scheme. Unlike other decorator ideas for kitchen appliances, these new refrigerators become a part of the kitchen rather than a piece in the kitchen.

This new look is achieved through the use of special design panels, co-ordinated with matching wall coverings, that snap into the refrigerator door trim.

"The addition of the refrigerator alone can add a new look to any present kitchen," Mrs. Lehman states. "Then, as the homemaker wants and her budget permits, she can add harmonizing wall covering."

These wall coverings are suggested for use as accents—perhaps on wall cabinets, a panel of the range or dishwasher. Or, they may be used to cover a single wall, or all the walls of the kitchen, she explains.

The refrigerator panel features a whimsical "calico-look" chicken against a background of eggs. Harmonizing wall covering uses the egg design, with smaller versions of the chicken repeated on a random basis. This pattern is available in a red, black and yellow traditional color scheme.

A delightful Pennsylvania Dutch pattern called "Treasure Tree" has also been included in the collection. This utilizes a tree covered with birds and flowers with a peasant couple against a subdued color background. Checks which resemble gingham in a red and white combination carry out this theme for wall covering which also repeats the colorful birds pattern.

An Oriental flavor has been captured in "Happy Cooking" which is a copy of an ancient Chinese panel. The words "Happy Cooking" are spelled out in Chinese characters over simple baskets of leaves and flowers. This design uses a rust and green color combination.

A walnut, random planked cherry, and brushed chrome, are also available.

The designer panels are available on 15, 18 and 18 cubic foot models with top or bottom mounted freezers.

Paint Remover

Turpentine or paint thinner can be used for removing freshly spattered paint from clothing or other porous surfaces, but it will not work on oil-base paint which is already dry. A solvent that will work in most cases is a water-rinsable, liquid brush cleaner. Produced by several manufacturers, these re-usable liquid cleaners soften dried oil paint and make it water soluble.

Do It Properly

Replacing Walls Comes With Rules

When it comes to repapering walls, if there are three or less previous layers of paper and the top one is in good condition, just add the new one over the old. Apply paste sparingly, for the moisture from excess paste can soften the old paste, loosening the old wall paper.

It's down to the bare plaster if there are already more than three thicknesses of paper. The easiest way to get there is with the garden sprayer filled with a piping hot mixture of water, three tablespoons of sudless automatic washer detergent and an equal amount of sal soda concentrated.

When sprayed on the wall in a fine mist, the mixture penetrates and loosens paper. Then just peel it off from the top, downwards with an occasional nudge from a wide-bladed putty knife.

Any remaining scraps of paper or dry glue can be scrubbed off, while the wall is still damp, with a stiff-bristled brush sprinkled with dry sal soda. Rinse well and let dry thoroughly before proceeding with the papering.

If you have a run in paper a painted wall, some preliminary action is needed. Wash wall thoroughly with a warm solution of sal soda concentrated ... six tablespoons to the bucket of water. Rinse well; and when dry, coat with a thin glue size. When this is dry, paper.

Repainting a wall also calls for a preliminary wash-down. Play lazy and skip this important step, and fresh paint may chip, peel or blister.

The pores of the surface are already filled with moisture, grease, or soil, so the fresh paint can't penetrate and form a firm bond.

A good cleaner is sal soda concentrated, for it removes the dirt and grease without leaving a soapy film and tends to give the new coat a better grip.

Three tablespoons of the sal to the gallon of warm water cleans, while double the amount of sal dulls the surface. Rinse well, and let dry before you start wielding the paint brush.

Loosen Old Paper

There's nothing like the garden sprayer or insect-killer gun filled with a mixture of hot water and equal amounts of sudless, automatic washer detergent and sal soda concentrated.

Revolving Wardrobe

This whirly wardrobe with wallpaper offers a practical solution to the problem of extra closet space. This do-it-yourself project is easily camouflaged by an attractive wall covering (here a brilliant damask pattern) that quietly blends the unit into the decorating scheme.

Closets at A Premium? Try Whirly Wardrobe

The possibility of an extra wardrobe arising, or for that matter any extra closet, usually is greeted with glee by most homemakers.

A clever idea for the home or apartment is the whirly wardrobe designed to blend into the room decor through the use of an attractive wallcovering.

The closet revolves on a floor-to-ceiling pole and when filled with garments, is easily turned to face the wall showing a rear view of matching wallpaper. The effect is one of brilliant camouflage.

The homemaker might choose a brilliant floral damask in deep wine tones to cloak a wardrobe closet. But almost any pattern in many collections might suffice, depending upon room scheme where closet may be located.

The dimensions of the plan for the whirly wardrobe provide for several bulky coats and there even is a shelf for the pocketbooks or hat storage.

These closets are the answer to storage problems in many rooms, and could be easily adapted to bedrooms, study or home office, bacteat recreation area, and so on.

The costs for making a whirly wardrobe are below $25, as depend on how handy you are.

If you must have one built, there will be a labor charge in addition.

The new wallcoverings offer limitless possibilities for the final decoration of your wardrobe. And most of these wallcoverings are vinyl-coated for wa-hability which makes them especially practical for covering a closet which will be in demand by the whole family.

Glass Blocks Are "In"

People who live in glass block houses don't have to duck stones. Glass blocks are "in" these days.

They still perform their primary job of admitting light where regular window glass won't do. Now, though, glass blocks also come in a wide variety of shapes, sizes and colors that add attractive design touches.

In an entry way, for example, colored glass blocks admit light to this often dark area, and they help make the home inviting, too. If the entry is small, a strip of a few blocks will do. If it's good-sized, an entire panel, in sections as large as three by five feet, is easily made up.

Look at Your House From Buyer's Side

More than 4 million Canadians will move this year, and one of their first considerations will be how to sell their old houses. They'll want the sale to be as quick and painless as possible, and to realize a fair price.

If your home will soon be up for sale, it's a good idea to take an objective look at it with a buyer's eye. Your foundations for the home may stem from its comfort and familiarity and the simple fact that you have lived there for a number of years.

But, what will a prospective buyer see that will make him choose your house over the many others he will view?

Some older homes are in good enough shape to compete on the market. Others require no more than a fresh paint job. But a large number require extensive repairs or remodeling.

In such cases, the trouble and expense of updating is not only worthwhile, but essential. It will make the house salable, and probably bring a better price.

A househunter's first view of your home will be its exterior, and he'll notice the roof at a glance. If it's attractive distinctive and new-looking, it will go far in increasing the sales potential of the house. On the other hand, a worn or dull-looking roof, or one with loose and weather-beaten shingles will make your house harder to sell. It may even discourage a prospective buyer from looking inside.

If the house needs re-roofing, heavyweight asphalt shingles are a good investment. They come in a variety of eye-appealing colors and designs that update and improve the entire exterior appearance of an older home. Even more important is a prospective homeowner in the assurance of long, trouble-free service such as a roof provides. Manufacturers warrant these shingles for 20 years or longer, and a new roof with this low-maintenance, high durability asset will upgrade the home's saleability.

While some of the remodeling projects are sizable, they will help increase the resale value of your home. From that point of view, they are an expense that will pay off in the long run.

Handy Tips to Help That Clear-up Job

A little squirt of liquid bleach, that is.

A cardinal rule for dealing with a dingy house — especially one undergoing a transition from one season to another — is to dig in the dirt, and the sooner the better! Here are some handy tips:

For spot jobs, nothing does a better clean-up than a handy, pint - size plastic squeeze bottle filled with a sudsy solution containing a disinfectant such as liquid chlorine bleach (¼-cup to a gallon of water). Several bottles strategically placed in the laundry, kitchen and bath will encourage you to handle the tasks more quickly. Of course, the squeeze bottles should be correctly labelled — and kept out of reach of small children.

Dishboards are helped immensely with a squirt on top each time you do the dishes. Teapots, thermos jugs smell fresh and remain stainless when a few drops of the solution are left inside for a couple of minutes.

In the shower, swish away unsightly mold with a small, narrow brush dipped in the solution and lightly brushed over the stained mortar between the tiles.

Wall tiles, too, will sparkle when washed with a cloth dampened with the solution. Got a shower curtain that's ashamed to be seen? Take it down, place it in the bath tub and let it soak for five minutes in a mixture of this same chlorine bleach solution. Carefully pretreat the heavily soiled spots, rinse and hang to dry-dry.

There's hardly a home today that doesn't have Venetian blinds in some part of the house. Have you looked at the pull cords and centre tapes lately? Are they supposed to be white or have they discolored from long use? Take the entire shade down, after dusting with a clean cloth and then soak it in the bath tub in the bleach solution.

To make this little household helper, use a pint bottle (it's the most economical size, since the bleach solution strength is effective for about a week), and punch holes in the cap top to facilitate squeezing out the liquid.

Fixtures Set Scheme

Homeowners looking for room remodelling and decorating ideas might do well to consider this approach: Make lighting the starting point.

Fixtures are available to fit lighting and decorating needs in any area of a room, and, conversely, fixtures can inspire decorating ideas.

Types of fixtures needed should be the first determination. For example, in a family room, a pendown - type fixture, which can be raised or lowered as the occasion demands, is ideal for over-table lighting.

Recessed units in the ceiling assure good general room lighting and, attached to a dimmer, can create a variety of lighting moods. Hanging pendants in a cluster furnish a decorating focal point and fill a definite need in a hard-to-decorate corner.

To meet requirements of color and style, lighting units are available in "family" groups, which provide a range of different fixture types in complementary colors. With this "family" similarity, a variety of fixtures can be used in a room, while still maintaining a definite continuity between the various lighting units.

Colors of the fixtures might well inspire an imaginative decorating scheme. For instance, one fixture family presents goldcrowns, recessed units and pendants, in such color combinations as deep blue with light blue, or brown with amber.

To set the color scheme for a room, the deeper tone of the fixture becomes an accent color, while the lighter shade can be used on broader expanses.

Fixtures set the color scheme and theme for a family room. In keeping with the setting, the fixtures are both eye-catching and informal.

Paint Up Dreary Basement

Basements can be pretty dreary looking, particularly in old homes. But a little imagination and time devoted to painting basic pipe a few hours of physical labor can transform the drab quarters into a pleasant, workable laundry area.

That's what one young couple did. There was plenty of space in the basement but it was dark and dull. They didn't want to spend very much to refurbish this part of the house, so they started first with paint. They chose a soft lime green and painted the pipes, wall, beams in the ceiling. They bought a brand new washer and dryer in a decorative color.

Next, came the selection of a fabric. They found just what they wanted in a vinyl coated material with a lime and turquoise pattern. This they used to cover a screen to shield the water tank, for curtains at the window and for the lower part of the wall. Next they picked up the turquoise tone in floor tiles, added a shelf for accessories and they had a cheerful, gay laundry area for less

Pipe Cleaners Versatile

In November 1821, when pipe cleaners first were introduced, they were available at the local tobacconists only.

However, because of many innovations by women, pipe cleaners can now be bought in most novelty and gift stores in a variety of sizes and colors.

Because of their flexibility and versatility, pipe cleaners have become an important staple for most shopping lists.

Any scissors will cut a pipe cleaner and by halving a package the housewife will have many handy freezer bag ties for storing or freezing leftovers or tying the families' luncheon sandwich bags.

When airing the bedrooms or other rooms, pipe cleaners can hold curtain and drapes in place, preventing them from blowing.

Did you ever pour from a bottle and get the sticky drippings down the side of the bottle or onto a clean tablecloth? Try wrapping a couple of pipe cleaners around the neck. They catch and absorb any slips.

Next time you want to hammer a small nail or thumbtack into the wall, wrap a pipe cleaner around it.

For Want of a Nail...

. . . the thumb was smashed. To get that nail to "stay put," wrap a pipe cleaner around the nail under the head and hit it straight, every time.

Be Modern

Fixtures Add to Decor

Not so very long ago, the bathroom was strictly utilitarian. It had three basic fixtures, a couple of towel bars and a medicine cabinet. When it came to decor, there was little or none.

Now all this has changed.

Bathrooms have come into their own.

They're bigger, and they have real style. And, they can be decorated to fit the general decor of the rest of the house, thanks to a new and greater variety of fixtures and accessories.

Among recent trends that are catching on fast are decorated bathroom fixtures, with authentic classic as well as modern designs. Less than a half-dozen years ago, such fixtures were available only as hand-painted custom items. Today, they are widely available from many manufacturers, in many designs.

Design names indicate style variety — for instance, "Tanger," "Provincial," "Wheatland," "Early American," "Victorian Garden." The designs are fired into the fixture and do not wear off.

Decorated fixtures include lavratory bowls, water closet seat tops and tanks. To complete bathroom decor, there are matching patterns in tissue holders, faucet handles, and even towels and wallpaper.

In keeping with this trend to elaborate, opulent bathrooms, many manufacturers of faucets and other bath accessories are making luxury items. There are gold-plated faucets, soap dishes, tissue holders, plus faucets shaped like fishes, mermaids, dolphins and a host of other figures.

Decorated fixtures are somewhat higher priced than those in white or plain colors, but their growing army of fans think they're worth it.

Carpets Pull Room Together

When home improvement is on one's mind, the carpet looms as the outstanding device to pull a room together in scheme. A good-looking, well-chosen rug can do wonders to perk up a woodscrupt room and give it a feeling of unity.

Carpets today are available in an array of colors, prices, weaves, designs, yarn content (wool, cotton and man-made fibers) and sizes to fit into any type of room or decorating scheme.

Even kitchens today are getting the rug treatment. Wall-to-wall carpeting is a new trend for bathrooms. Area rugs; room-size rugs; wall-to-wall carpeting that sometimes climbs the walls to wainscoting height; all these are to be had and the choice is wide.

Almost all carpets and rugs require some sort of cushioning for protection and comfort. The role of the underlay is purely functional but none the less important even if it isn't part of the decorating scheme and doesn't show.

Latest and most practical of these "carpet cushions" is latex foam rubber in a waffle-type formation that keeps the floor, stays in place and keeps the rug from slipping.

The "hidden assets" of this underlay are multifold: if the carpet is not a thickpile construction (and therefore not the most expensive kind) the latex foam rubber underlay gives it a luxury spring and deep-pile feeling of opulence; household chores seem less onerous when one's step is light.

Another boon to the housewife is the noise stifling quality of latex foam rubber; it performs admirably as an acoustical device, absorbing sound where it starts.

Least but not least in the "hidden assets" of latex foam rubber is the preservation of the life of the carpet itself . . . a very important consideration indeed where so much expense and expanse are involved.

Stop Leaks

To repair shower leaks, apply a clear epoxy coating to the shower floor and six inches up the walls. The epoxy should be the type used for waterproofing basements.

Paint Tip

To remove paint or varnish from furniture legs, pour remover into a coffee can and set the leg inside the can. Brush remover onto leg.

Be Smart and Enjoy Your Vacation Home

The early spring "fitting out time" is becoming as much a tradition with vacation homeowners as it long has been with boat-owners.

Where boatmen have to spend long weekends at back-breaking work to get ready for launching, second homeowners are able to complete their spring fitting-out chores quickly if their houses contain easy maintenance materials. Then they are ready for "smooth sailing" all through the vacation season.

If you are among the thousands who will buy or build a vacation home this year, your smartest move would be to include as many of the new easy - maintenance products and materials as possible. Or if you already own a second house, you can modernize it with these same materials during the early spring weekends.

Once this summer rolls around you won't have to search the beaches or woods for volunteers to paint, wash the walls, repair the screens or do the numerous other chores. Your vacation hideaway can be a retreat where mother and the children enjoy summers of relaxation and play, and where father can unwind from his business worries on weekends and vacation.

Since you bought a second home to get away from everyday cares why not use the early spring weekends to make it as work-free as possible. A simple project to do yourself, which can save hours of housekeeping chores this summer, is the installation of hardboard walls.

You can choose from a wide range of wood-grained hardboard panelings, textures and colors for each room of your summer house. Plastic-coated hardboard requires the least amount of care. One swipe of a damp sponge and all stains — from cooking grease to crayon drawings — are removed.

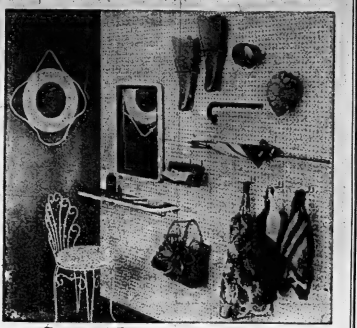
The moisture resistance of hardboard is especially useful in preserving the appearance of the walls in the moist seashore areas.

Different wood-grain effects can be achieved, from the rugged grooved panel cabin informality to the luxury of country estate decor. Kitchens and bathrooms can be made more attractive and simple to keep clean with plastic-coated hardboard with the look of marble.

You can help the children keep their bedrooms and play room neat by installing perforated hardboard where they can hang the treasures they collect all summer.

And if there is space in the basement or attic, perforated hardboard can be used for an equipment corner to store water skis, fishing gear, tennis rackets and other equipment.

Weatherproof hardboard sidings and panels also can be used on the exterior of the house and as a fence to protect your pool, keep you children from wandering or to let you sunbathe in privacy.



Installing hardboard directly over your present interior walls is an easy weekend do-it-yourself project. It comes in lightweight four-by-eight-foot sheets that can be nailed or cemented directly to old walls or to furring strips. They can be cut, hammered, or drilled without risk of splintering, cracking or denting. And since they are pre-finished there is no need for painting or staining.

Other work-saving projects for your care - free vacation house can include the following:

Cultivating a fine grass lawn is almost impossible if you aren't around all spring and fall to water, mow and weed it. You can create an attractive pebble or sand lawn if you are near the beach — or plant an inexpensive green ground cover that thrives on neglect.

Paint as infrequently as possible, by using one of the expensive, but long lasting paints now on the market. The labor you save by painting every six or seven years, instead of every two or three years, will more than make up the difference in cost.

Tile floors are more practical for the rough treatment and the dirt or sand often tracked into vacation homes. Rugs should only be used if they are small enough to be carried outside and shaken clean.

Stow 'Em on the Wall

Because they're smaller and more casual than regular houses, vacation homes often get cluttered. A handy storage wall for sports equipment built of sturdy, easy to install perforated hardboard will solve the problem.

Sound Proof Attic And Get Extra Room

Visitors to scores of newhome and new - product displays frequently ask, "What can be done to quiet my present home? Is this feature restricted to new homes?"

The answer is "No". There is a lot you can do to significantly quiet the home you now live in. Here are the steps to take offered by the Insulation Board Institute:

ACOUSTICAL CEILINGS

Insulation board acoustical ceilings in all rooms where the noise level is high will sharply reduce annoying din. Up to 70 percent of the noise striking the surface of an acoustical ceiling is absorbed, making the room quieter and creating a more relaxed environment. The product you install can be either the familiar 12 x 12 inch and 12 x 24 inch tile or large 2 x 2 or 2 x 4 foot panels for a suspended ceiling.

QUIET WALLS

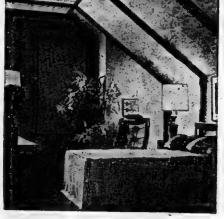
If a wall partition between two rooms permits noise to pass through easily, it must be modified. IBI suggests that homeowners install an auxiliary wall directly in front of the present wall on one side only. The IBI system uses 2 x 3 inch wood studs placed 24 inches apart on 2 x 3 inch wood floor and ceiling plates. There is a 3 inch space left between the new and existing wall partition. This same auxiliary wall can also be constructed on metal studs.



The new studs are then covered with round deadening insulation board with the nails dimpled. Finally 4 inch gypsum wallboard is applied vertically with the joints, offset 12 inches with respect to the sound deadening insulation board.

The gypsum wallboard is installed with drywall laminating compound, not nails. Edges of the gypsum wallboard are temporarily blocked with wood strips, while the adhesive sets and hooks. The wallboard joints are then taped and finished. Finally, the entire perimeter of the new wall is caulked to prevent noise leaks. Your lumber and building-materials retailer can supply complete details of this new wall system. If you now hear loud conversation through your present wall, this auxiliary wall installation will reduce the same conversation to a murmur!

Replace hollow - core doors with solid doors with vinyl gasketing and a rug - up threshold closer. If you are installing new floor coverings, take a look at the products with cushion backing which reduces noise.

Mount appliances on rubber mats to absorb vibration. Line the underside of kitchen cabinets with insulation board acoustical products to reduce countertop clatter. This same technique works well on the inside of cabinets housing dish washers and garbage disposal units.

Corrective measures will greatly reduce plumbing noises. Quieter hardware can be installed in the water closet. Air chambers, well - known to your plumber, can soften hammer in the pipes. Quiet Living for your present home is simply a matter of isolating each noise and then taking appropriate corrective measures.

Easily Installed

Attic rooms with personality erected from wasted space, can be effectively sound-conditioned by installing acoustical insulation board ceilings during the modernization.

Liberace To Star At O'Keefes

Liberace, "Mr. Showmanship" himself, flaunts piano, candelabra and all, will take centre stage at O'Keefe Centre for the third time for one week only, commencing Monday, May 1. Sharing the bill with him will be Bach Yen, the pretty young singer from Viet Nam, and Brian Fisher, harmonica virtuoso.

Liberace, who is now celebrating his 25th year in show business, made his concert debut at 11 and performed with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra at 16. He hopes to return to television soon, but it is unlikely that such a return would ever keep him away from the concert stage in the past three years away from the medium which first brought him to the attention of a decade of devoted fans he has travelled extensively 11 months of each year, always extending the boundaries of his popularity. In England, where his success matches that on the continent, he was honored by a Royal Command Performance before Queen Elizabeth. With fellow Polish pianist Paderewski he shares the distinction of being the only concert artist to fill Madison Square Garden.

Liberace promises an entirely new program this time around. Sure to be included in his repertoire, however, will be certain romantic melodies from his latest album, "New Sounds".

The Liberace Show will be presented each evening, May 1 through May 6, at 8:30 p.m., with matinees on Wednesday and Saturday at 2 p.m.

Viewers Hardly Had Chance To Know Main Characters

NEW YORK (AP)—Fascinating bits of history frequently remind television viewers that into acceptable dramatic fare, and Wednesday night's Soldier in Love on NBC was a prime example of this statesmanship.

The 90-minute teleplay was an attempt to dramatize the relationship of England's Queen Anne with John Churchill, whom she made Duke of Marlborough, and his wife Sarah.

The problem was the necessity of sequencing the viewer with the 17th century backgrounds and characters.

The three principals were first introduced when they were young: Princess Anne, who was to be the last of the Stuarts, self-conscious, shy and dependent upon her friendship with pretty Sarah Jennings and her handsome, dashing admirer, John Churchill.

Since the first part of the show was devoted to a happy three-cornered friendship, one presumed that the show would move in this direction.

However, the princess was appointment for Churchill—and the show immediately skipped 28 years.

Then it became the story of the ambitions of Sarah.

Then Sarah, overcome with grief at the death of her son, shrilled at the childless queen, now a glutton addicted to speech slurring "medicine." The result was Marlborough's downfall and exile and the queen's refusal to forgive Sarah.

Romantics probably would have preferred to sympathize with these ancestors of Sir Winston Churchill, but in the play, as enacted by Keith Mitchell and Jean Simmons, both emerged as aggressive, ambitious opportunists trying to wheedle their way back into queen's favor. Claire Bloom's Queen Anne, despite physical ugliness and what seemed a perpetually drunken speech, came through as the sympathetic character.

None of this was satisfying to the viewer. We rarely had a chance to get to know the main characters.

Commons Ends Longest Session

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons adjourned at 2:20 a.m. today—the longest sitting of Parliament's longest session—and prepared to attend today's opening of Expo 67.

A 16-hour drive to clean up the session work almost collapsed at the last moment, but agreement finally was reached to break off for 11 days before formally ending the one session and beginning a new one May 8.

The kitch came when Charles Arthur Gruiber (Creditiste-Roberval) refused unanimous consent needed to pass a $1,000,000,000 supply measure to cover government bills until the end of June.

He demanded a government commitment to raise the subsidy on manufactured milk as the price of consent, but finally gave in shortly after 3 a.m.

Government House Leader McIlraith assured him the dairy issue could be brought up again early in the new session during the throne speech debate.

The Senate is to continue allitings while MPs take their spring break, completing work on several bills passed by the House.

Wednesday's sitting was the 243th of the session, breaking the 248-day record of the 1964-65 session.

And while it ended in procedural hassling, several major items were dealt with during the day:

—Final approval was given the federal adult training scheme which provides living allowances of between $35 and $70 a week to persons attending provincially - operated courses to improve their skills.

—MPs gave final reading to a bill terminating collection of the five - per - cent individual tax on business profits, effective March 31, 1967.

—Agreement was reached to extend the provisional Commons rules, with minor changes, into the next session of Parliament when a special committee will continue its work on revamping House procedures.

—The money supply bill, which prompted the debate on dairy policy, was approved.

The training bill prompted several sharp exchanges before it gained approval.

David Lewis (NDP — York South) accused Manpower Minister Marchand of a "doctrinaire approach" to the legislation because of the minister's refusal to amend a section of the bill.

The section stipulates that to qualify for the allowances a person must have been in the labor force for three years. Mr. Lewis wanted this changed to one year.

An NDP amendment to this effect was defeated 40 to 28.

The training bill calls for the federal government to foot the cost of approved training plans, which will be operated by provincial governments.

Mr. McIlraith, his head down on his desk, appeared to be fast asleep while Gilles Gregoire (Ind—Lapointe) made a spirited appeal to the government to stop buying bombs and give the money instead to the farmers.

Agriculture Minister Greene took a sharp buffeting on dairy policy. Opposition MPs said the recent increase in support price for manufacturing milk of $4.75 a hundredweight was insufficient.

Harold Danforth (PC—Kent, Ont.) urged the government to reconsider and prevent a threatened protest march on Parliament Hill by thousands of farmers. Dairy farmers seek a support price of $5.10.

He said the $4.75 price did not represent what the farmers actually receive. They lost 10 to 11 cents a hundredweight on milk shipped for export and faced steadily - climbing taxes and production costs.

Mr. Greene answered question after question on manufacturing milk quotas and the division of manufacturing milk and fluid milk supports between the federal and provincial governments, backing up replies with mountains of statistics.

The Senate began study of the armed forces unification bill with a plea from Senator George S. White (PC—Ontario) to proceed with caution to avoid doing irreparable damage to the services.

He said Defence Minister Hellyer had taken an inflexible stand on the bill.

Ontario to Expand Car Testing and Driver Training Program

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government Wednesday announced plans to step up its crackdown on highway accidents by expanding its program of motor vehicle inspection and driver training and re-examination.

Transport Minister Irwin Hasbet said in the legislature the program of compulsory vehicle checks, in co-operation with the provincial police, was expanded substantially in the last year.

"Police concentrated as much as possible on cars whose mechanical condition was suspect. They stripped the licences from 3,541 vehicles and removed them from the road as unsafe," Mr. Hasbet said. The number of safety lanes had been increased by 30 per cent, Mr. Haskett, in introducing his spending estimates for the 1968 fiscal year, said 215 high schools are offering driver instruction as extra - curricular courses and the total will be increased next fall.

Mr. Haskett said re-examination of drivers was being extended to all drivers who accumulate nine points under the demerit point system. That would raise the number of persons re-examined by about 20,000 to more than 100,000.

The department now re-examines drivers who have lost their licences and elderly persons.

"Ontario has been one of the leaders on this continent in achieving an improved level of vehicle safety," Mr. Haskett said.

Hercules Wreckage as Revealed by Morning Light in Sidney Township Field

Six On Training Flight Die As Hercules Crashes

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

A board of inquiry is seeking clues in the first fatal crash of an airforce Hercules transport near its Trenton home base last night.

Today, wreckage of the giant four-engine carrier was still cordoned off in a Sidney township farmer's field where its fatal plunge carried six airmen to death — 1¼ miles northeast of the end of the main runway at the Canadian Forces Base.

Two of the victims were Trenton - district dwellers, acting as instructors to the other four crew members — on a six-week training course from other air bases across Canada.

Cause of the crash — marked by a stark ball of flame that lighted a mild night sky for miles — has yet come to be learned.

The Hercules' crew had been circling the area, making night landing approaches, when it swept to the ground, trailing wreckage along a half-mile skid before it disintegrated.

It was the first fatal crash for Air Transport Command since its organization in 1946.

The dead were:

Flight Lieut. Donald Jack Buchner, of Carrying Place.

Flight Sgt. Adrian Voogt, Mobile Village, R.R. 7, Trenton.

Flight Sgt. Harold Jones, Greenwood, N.S.

Sgt. Loliver Fotier, Kingston Village, N.S.

Flight Lieut. Richard Garber, Winnipeg.

Flight Lieut. Charles Matthews, Ottawa.

The airforce named a four-man team of specialists late last night to probe the crash.

They are Wing Cmdr. H. R. Graham, Sqdn. Ldr. J. R. Howsey, and flight lieutenants G. Meering and J. A. McClure.

In addition two officers from the Canadian Forces headquarters' department of flight safety in Ottawa, arrived at the Trenton base this morning. Surveying the situation are squadron leaders G. W. Ovans and F. S. Harvey-Smith.

Buchner was captaining the aircraft with Garber as co-pilot. He and Voogt were instructing the others in transport flight procedures when the big aircraft went into its final, fatal sweep.

Losing height, the Hercules brushed over high-tension lines carrying Ontario Hydro power supplies between Belleville and Sidney township, damaging power conductors on the 115,000-volt grid, but causing no interruptions.

It slammed to the ground in the field of farmer Clayton Stickle, on the township's second concession, trailing wreckage before the explosion that blew it apart, indiscriminately scattering its dead and debris over the area.

Nearest dwellers to the scene were the family of Cosmo DeCleyo, who said at first he thought his barn had blown up.

Then he saw the orange ball of flame go up less than a quarter mile away.

As he dashed to the scene he shouted to his family to call police and firemen.

The flash was seen by a provincial police officer as far east as Shannonville.

Another officer, closer to the crash, sped to the scene to investigate the explosion.

What the flash fire signified was soon evident as more and more nearby residents began making emergency phone calls.

Ambulances and fire reels were despatched from the Trenton base, less than two miles away.

One of the first reports of the crash reaching Trenton was to the effect that the plane had smashed into the Green Acres Nursing Home.

A call was put through to Trenton Memorial Hospital alerting hospital officials for receiving possible emergency victims.

In Belleville all available provincial police were diverted to the area and senior OPP officials began assembling extra details from off-duty officers hastily recalled.

Belleville coroner Dr. T. J. Russell Scott arrived little more than 30 minutes after the crash and immediately assumed on-the-spot authority.

He ordered the entire area cleared and requisitioned snow-fencing from the township's public works department to seal

Two Dead Instructors Were Quinte Residents

The two Trenton-district airmen acting as instructors aboard the Air Transport Command Hercules on its last, lethal flight, had at least two things in common—youth and family.

Flight Lieut. Donald Jack Buchner, of Carrying Place, and pilot of the aircraft, was 33.

He and his wife Jean had three children, Daniel 11, David 10 and Suzan, who marks her second birthday in August.

Buchner was born in Leamington and had been stationed with Air Transport Command at Canadian Forces Base Trenton for the past year.

Flight Sgt. Adrian (Art) Voogt was born in Holland and was 34.

He had been stationed at Trenton two years and was a flight engineer. He also was acting as instructor in transport flight procedures when the crash occurred.

He and his wife, Winnifred, have a three-year-old son, James Adrian.

Yemen Says Americans Fired At Munitions

CAIRO (Reuters) — Yemen Thursday night accused two members of a U.S. aid mission there of trying to blow up Taiz, the republic's joint capital, by firing bazooka rockets at the town's ammunition dump, the official Egyptian Middle East news agency reported.

The agency said two members of the aid mission would be tried by a state security court, and the rest of the mission would be expelled.

A state department spokesman in Washington said the Yemini charges were "totally unfounded."

Bombs Explode

BANGKOK, Thailand (Reuters)—A United States Air Force F-4C fighter-bomber caught fire early today in the northeastern town of Ubol, 300 miles from here, and its bombload exploded causing damage to 10 other aircraft parked nearby.

An American spokesman said an engine malfunction set the aircraft on fire as it was preparing to take off and caused the explosion of its 750 - pound bombs.

"You should quit smoking, son, it's bad for your health!"

Miss Body Chemistry Loses Paper Bikini

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — A shapely blonde plunged into a heated swimming pool to demonstrate a new paper bikini for the press and the worst happened — or the best, according to one's point of view.

The top part of the suit — guaranteed not to shrink, burn or disintegrate — floated away Thursday from 23-year-old Noel Steever.

While she sought to fix it, a public relations man explained to gaping reporters:

"It's not really a piece of athletic wear It's no a thing to go swimming in, really."

Most of the reporters hardly heard him. They were watching Miss Body Chemistry of 1967.

Miss Steever later said the $4 swimsuit "could use some design changes."

Whole Field Was Set on Fire, Flames Carrying Quarter Mile

By HARRY GRILLS
Staff Reporter

"I saw a ball of fire" said Harold Brown of R.R. 2, Sidney. "It was one helluva mess".

"The whole house shook and there was a terrific bang like a loud thunder crash," Mrs. Brown added.

The Browns own a farm overlooking the scene of the Hercules crash which carried the six airmen aboard to death in a field about a mile and a half from Trenton airfield at approximately 8.30 p.m. last night.

Mr. Brown and his family were just about to go to bed when the crash came.

Mrs. Brown called the air force, the police and the fire department. They all arrived just after her call.

"It hit a powerline in the field," Mr. Brown said. "The lines were just a dancin'. There must be a lot of hydro."

Mr. Brown ran to the scene of the crash. "I thought I might be able to get near enough to help any possible survivors, but it was no use."

Mrs. Clayton Sickle, whose husband owns the land on which the plane crashed, was awakened by the crash. "I saw the terrible fire. I was stunned."

Mrs. Sickle's son, Ross Sickle, saw the blaze and thought it was a barn fire. "Actually," he said, "the whole field was on fire. There was a stream of flame for a quarter mile or more."

Mr. Sickle told of the collision between the powerlines and the aircraft. "It hit the underside of the wires."

An unidentified airman said the plane was being flown by a student pilot who was practising his landings.

"The pilot was still strapped to his seat after the crash," he said.

Edward Strome of Frankford, Ontario said he was driving near the scene when he heard the crash and saw a flash. When he arrived at the crash scene the bodies of crew members were "all cut up and lying there like dolls."

Search Dog Back

Butch's Bite Worse Than Bark

NADOC — Butch was back in business again today.

Almost a year ago, Butch, provincial police tracking dog stationed at Campbellford, helped Quinte district investigators in the hunt for gunmen who robbed a bank at Frankford.

His big moment came when he sniffed out $18,000 in loot April 3 — hidden days earlier after the robbery.

Yesterday, provincial police here and in Bancroft called in Butch and his escort — Constable Gary Walker — to help track two suspects in dense bushland about 25 miles north of here.

The search began after two Toronto policemen, fishing in the Steenburg Lake area, spotted a collection of cameras, fishing tackle, electrical appliances and guns near a car parked on a backroad.

Two men carrying rifles ran into the bush.

Police say the car was stolen and sought after in connection with looting of more than a dozen area cottages.

No trace of the men had turned up by late this morning, and police were requested calling off the bush-combing while keeping the whole area under surveillance.

IN MEMORIAM

STAPLEY — In loving memory of our mother and dearest sister Sarah Stapley who passed away April 28, 1966.
We do not need a special day
To call to mind your name
For the days we do not think of you
Are very hard to find.
If all the flowers that grow in love
Were placed upon your grave
To see the face of mother dear,
Our tears would overflow.
—Lovingly remembered by the family.

REID — In loving memory of a dear husband and father Burton Reid who passed away April 28 1964.
I have only memories dear father,
To remember my whole life through
But the sadness will linger forever
As I treasure the image of you.
—Sadly missed and always remembered by daughter Marie, son-in-law Arnie and sons Richie and Bertom.

Only Flicker on Lights Caused by Plane Crash

Last night's crash of the big Trenton based Hercules aircraft came within an ace of causing a serious power disruption in the Belleville - Trenton district, according to Ontario Hydro officials.

The big plane brushed the wires of a 113,000 volt high tension line about 2 seconds before it crashed causing a short circuit which burned the aluminum insulation off the wires for a distance of 500 feet.

Hydro officials said the steel core of the hydro wires held otherwise power would have been cut off in Trenton and Belleville until alternate switching could be accomplished.

As it was the close brush with the hydro wires by the falling plane caused only a momentary flicker of lights.

Earlier in the evening there was a five minute interruption of power at Belleville, but this interruption had nothing to do with the plane crash.

Hydro officials at Belleville said the trouble was caused by the blowing of an oil insulating breaker on a 44,000 volt line at the Adams Street transformer station.

This resulted in a five minute interruption of power in Belleville, but in the out-of in Prince Edward county was possible survivors said he was afraid to go near the hydro line for fear of live wires which might be lying on the ground.

Two Ships Aground At Halifax

HALIFAX (CP) — Two ships ran aground today in high winds near the entrance to Halifax harbor, but one was pulled free about an hour later by a harbor tug.

The 4,000 - ton Liberian freighter Costa Rican Trader was still stuck on a ledge at Halibut Bay, near Herring Cove on the western side of the harbor approach.

The 200-foot coastal freighter Rowan went aground near Chebucto Head, about five miles south of the Trader, but a harbor tug pulled it free.

Southeast gales running up to 45 miles an hour apparently drove the ships toward the rocky shore. Two tugs were trying to free the Trader and two navy helicopters were circling overhead.

Kingston Youth Committed

Ivan Lee McKellar, 18, of Kingston, was committed for trial by a judge yesterday afternoon in Belleville county court by Magistrate P. E. D. Baker of Kingston.

McKellar is charged with participating in the last October armed robbery of William Hodges of R. R. 1 Stouffville while he was asleep in his car on Highway 401.

Three youths and a girl are claimed to have used a knife in the holdup. The others will be sentenced some time ago. A transistor radio and $30 cash were taken from Mr. Hodges.

Crash First Since Re-organization In Which Airmen Lost Lives

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Thursday night's crash on the big Trenton based Hercules transport plane north-east of the Trenton Air Station was the first time since Air Transport Command re-organized in 1946, that crew members, passengers or cargo have been lost in a crash.

It was also the first air fatality in the Trenton area for a number of years.

However, air crashes are not new to the Trenton district as when Air Training Command was based at Trenton there were a number of serious crashes involving both single and multiple engined aircraft.

The most serious mishaps in view of lives lost saw two twin-engined bombers crash in Prince Edward county, one at Allisonville, and the other in Ameliasburg township in a wooded area just south of the Bay of Quinte. Both crashes killed all crewmen aboard.

Also in the same period there were a number of crashes involving Harvard and Texan training planes.

The Stockdale-Wooler area, at one time used for low-level flying practice as part of pilot's training was the scene of several crashes which killed student pilots.

On one occasion since the transfer of Air Training Command to Western Canada, a jet trainer flying from Winnipeg missed the Trenton station and disappeared over Lake Ontario.

HYDRO OUTPUT UP

Ontario Hydro said Thursday it provided 4,320,000,000 kilowatt hours of primary energy in March, an increase of 16.3 per cent from March, 1966. The first-quarter total of 13,400,000,000 kilowatt hours was up 4.4 per cent from the corresponding figure last year.

But the safety record of Air Transport Command since it came to Trenton in 1950, has been exceptional with the night's crash being the first.

Air Transport Command with its big Yukons and Hercules makes regular flights to almost all parts of the world and to the Canadian Arctic.

No Delay Opening Pool

TRENTON — A suggestion that the scheduled opening date for the United Service Clubs' swimming pool of May 24 might be postponed, was denied by school board member Douglas Whittley today.

Wednesday, health board members indicated they would not give final approval to the pool until a separate room for housing chlorine supplies was constructed, and hinted this might delay the opening of the pool.

Today, Mr. Whitley said the chlorine would be granular, and would present no storage problems, as 44 could be stored in another part of the school's maintenance area and brought to the pool-side as needed for treatment of the water.

DOCTORS ALERTED

The majority of Trenton doctors, gathered at last night's annual hospital meeting, immediately readied themselves for action when word was received of the plane crash north of the airport.

All stretchers and other emergency equipment were brought to the emergency section of the hospital.

YOUTH BURNED

Dean Perry, 16, of 16 Roscoe Ave. was treated in Trenton hospital last night for burns to his hands and arms suffered when he tried to carry a deep fryer which burst into fire from the kitchen of his home outside.

CAME AWAY SINGING

Those who attended the performances of "Red Fife" at the Capitol theatre this week, raved away singing . . . and singing the praises of the musical pageant.

The Centennial project of Trenton's public school students (with special emphasis on bands and choirs) was an almost professional presentation, according to local music and drama critics.

Viet Cong Orders Truce

SAIGON (CP)—The Viet Cong today ordered their guerrillas to observe a two-day ceasefire beginning May 22 to mark the birth of Buddha.

A statement by the Viet Cong news agency said the truce would be observed in response to an appeal by Buddhist leaders in Saigon, who called for a ceasefire to allow for religious festivals.

South Vietnamese officials said they were studying the Viet Cong proposal, but declined to make any immediate comment on the Communist offer, which doubled a 24-hour ceasefire proposed by South Vietnam and its allies.

Police Brief

The controversial brief publicly presented by Canada's police chiefs holds some "fantastic" proposals, one Belleville lawyer said today.

Another city barrister felt giving police wider powers as suggested in the brief, would cause deterioration of public support for law enforcement agencies.

The brief presented the Canadian committee on corrections, ignited warm reaction with a number of proposals that included empowering police to search residences without a warrant and control troublemakers with preventive detention.

"To me it seems so fantastic that anybody would suggest this in our society," was the reaction of defence lawyer Robert Temple.

Mr. Temple has been an outspoken champion of civil liberties in his legal career and during a term as a Liberal MP.

While he complimented local law enforcement agencies Mr. Temple added:

"Nonetheless, I know of measures where too much power given to officials has been abused.

Police already had little difficulty in searching premises whenever they wished, he said.

All they have to do is go to a judge and they get a search warrant. They're not going to be refused."

Picking up loiterers suspected of criminal record doing also "could conceivably" lead to undesirable situations, he said.

"Supposing if our system of government changed and there was a dictatorship. With those powers you could pick up any political opponents.

"I know that sounds farfetched," admitted Mr. Temple, "but it has happen-

Local Lawyers Express Fears

ed in our time — in supposedly civilized countries."

E. Ormonde Butler, director of legal aid in Hastings County, Prince Edward county, also viewed the police proposals with reluctance.

"I think that, straight off one could sympathize with the police," he said.

"But part of the respect that police now have is that they have never carried on their duties like a police state."

However, that respect could be seriously affected if such powers were granted law enforcement agencies "Some things would be much worse than they are now."

The principle of civil liberty "didn't grow up in the past few years," said the legal aid director.

"If we start retrograding it we might be back — as someone said — in the Middle Ages."

TORONTO (CP)—People who complain of police state laws are really advocating a "criminal state," Metropolitan Toronto's police chief, James Mackey, said Thursday.

He was commenting on criticism of a brief presented Wednesday to the Canadian committee on corrections by the Canadian Association of Police Chiefs.

The police are well aware of the rights of the individual and their only desire is to protect those rights," he said in an interview. "We are a long closer to a criminal state than we have ever been in our history, and it is time the citizens gave this serious consideration."

MONTREAL (CP) — Leslie Hobbs, assistant director of the Montreal police department, has threatened to resign from the Canadian Association of Police Chiefs over the association's brief, presented at a federal inquiry, proposing wider police powers to fight crime.

"I intend to resign from this association if the brief is in the spirit of published newspaper reports," Mr. Hobbs said Thursday in a statement.

Moira Students Exhibit Talent at Fashion, Science and Art Display Night

At Moira Secondary School's Display Night the students exhibit their knowledge in fashion, science and art. Some of Moira's girls modelled the fashions of 1967 and 1867. The most costumes illustrate the fashion trends of today. The more scientifically-minded students dissected snakes and other animals to exhibit their biological know-how. In the art room, artists displayed their talent for abstract sculpting with simple materials. Students turned hosts for the occasion which drew several hundred adults to view working exhibits in classrooms.

Faraday Uranium Mine May Again Be Opened

Exploratory work at the Faraday Uranium Mine at Bancroft to determine whether the mine property can be re-opened, is expected to be commenced within the next two months.

An official of Metal Mines Ltd. of Toronto, which firm has approved a merger of their company with Canadian Faraday Corporation and Augustus Explorations Ltd. said today that dewatering of the Faraday mine property at Bancroft would commence about June 1.

If explorations show the property can be re-opened, it is expected this could take place in about two or three years.

The Metal Mines official said that all the buildings at Faraday Mines are still in place as is much of the machinery.

He said it was quite possible that if the mine was re-opened, new machinery might be installed as new processing methods have been developed since the mine closed some years ago.

The new company formed by the merger of Metal Mines with Canadian Faraday and Augustus Explorations, will be called Consolidated Canadian Faraday Ltd.

Shareholders of Canadian Faraday and Augustus meet May 3 in Toronto to consider the merger.

Metal Mines, Canadian Faraday and Augustus, which are now interlocked to some degree through share ownership, hold the remaining uranium properties at Bancroft about 75 miles of Belleville.

Mines has reached so at with Federal Resources Corp. of Salt Lake City, Utah, to see when the Bancroft property can be re-opened.

Bancroft Reeve Jack N. Brown said today he was quite confident that the Faraday mines would re-open.

"We will more than welcome the mine personnel back" he said.

He said that when the mines first opened in the Bancroft area there were a few misgivings about the calibre of people which might be attracted to the area.

"But the miners turned out to be the finest people you could meet," he said.

He said that while the economic loss to the community was great when the mines closed, what bothered residents most was the loss of mining people from the community.

Memorial Hospital Board Plans Million Dollar Expansion Program

TRENTON — The Trenton Memorial Hospital board of directors announced a million dollar expansion program at last night's annual meeting.

A new wing, two stories high, will be built northwards from the east end of the present building. This will provide 35 beds for chronic patients and restorative and preventive care, and also 15 active beds.

This will house a new physiotherapy department, new administration quarters, a nurses' lounge, an additional power plant, a new nursery and pediatrics section.

Later, a third storey will be added and when the fourth storey is added, it will extend along the entire width of the hospital.

"This will provide 400 beds in the institution, which should be sufficient for the next ten to 15 years," Mr Graham said.

Mr. Graham said the town would be responsible for only $300,000 of the cost, with the remainder covered by federal and provincial governments and grants.

Workmen are already engaged in digging an excavation and Mr. Graham said he hoped the board would have entirely completed plans for the new addition by the time this work is done.

One innovation which will be considered is a chapel or room for prayer and meditation, suggested by Canon K. F. Blackford at last night's meeting.

Canon Blackford said a sanctuary was needed in the hospital for those in the stress of trouble. The special haven would also serve as a perpetual memorial to the dead of two world wars in whose memory the original hospital was built, Mr. Blachford said.

Hospital Moves Rapidly Toward Accreditation

TRENTON — Hospital administrator Miss Hazel Naudett said at the annual hospital meeting last night that the hospital was moving rapidly towards accreditation, which, she said, was "the criterion" of excellence, and meant medical and hospital care on the highest possible level.

Trenton hospital is connected with the Belleville School of Nursing which will see its first nurses graduate in 1970. Third year students will spend this year in Trenton gaining practical experience.

Last year, 4,856 adults and children were cared for and there were 552 births. The birth rate was the lowest since 1962, Miss Naudett said. Gross expenditure was $1,347,671; gross income, $1,240,427; (plus other income); deficit; $3,880.50.

Reports were also submitted by Mrs. Douglas Adams, president of the women's auxiliary; Mrs. Wm. Briggs for the RCAF Auxiliary; Wesley Saylor( financial report) and Dr. H. E. S. De Groot for the medical staff.

Dr. De Groot said every effort was being made to attract general practitioners to town. The medical staff also plans to conduct lectures for the nursing staff to keep them abreast of changes in nursing techniques.

S. O. Graham, O. M. Newton and Mrs. Nellie Bain were re-elected to the board of directors. The only other nominee for the three vacancies on the board was Eben James.

Trenton Driver Given 31 Days In Jail

Gerald Francis Minifie of 71 Dolaney St., Trenton, was sentenced to a total of 31 days in jail for careless driving and driving a car while his licence was under suspension.

Magistrate T. Y. Wills was told that Minifie turned onto the 401 from the St. Hillier Side Road on April 3, stopped, backed up, and then turned in front of a car driven by Gordon Victor Thompson Jr., of West Moira St., Belleville.

Mrs. Thompson suffered scalp wounds and their four-year-old son received cuts to his mouth when the crash occurred.

Minifie had his license suspended for two years for impaired driving last May.

Serviceman Injured, Car Hits Pole

TRENTON — Richard Patterson, "28-year-old serviceman with the Canadian Forces Base at Trenton, is in Trenton Memorial Hospital suffering from shock and cuts to his head and back as result of an early morning single car accident.

Police said that Mr. Patterson was northbound on North Front Street, when he lost control at O'Malley's Corners. His car struck a utility pole and then dropped into a creek near the junction of the Wooler Road.

Japan's Resurgence

Recently a British-owned cargo vessel arrived in Vancouver and loaded 73,000 tons of wheat for India.

Nothing unusual about that perhaps, except that the 820-foot long cargo carrier was the largest commercial vessel ever to enter Vancouver harbor.

And although British-owned, the ship was built in Japan and had been delivered from the shipyard only three weeks previous.

These facts are symbolic of Japan's amazing resurgence as the leading industrial power of the Orient, of a people rooted in tradition who manage to preserve old world courtesies and culture while at the same time matching — and often exceeding — western nations in commercial output and ingenuity.

As a shipbuilder Japan now holds the number one spot. There is irony indeed in the fact that the giant vessel that picked up the wheat cargo at Vancouver's Alberta wheat pool should be owned by a British concern.

That is, the Britain which Japan has supplanted as the world's leading shipbuilder — in output and ability to deliver on schedule at least — and isn't it strange too, in a sense, that the cargo should be destined for that former stronghold of British imperialism, India, still struggling with awesome problems of poverty, famine and human suffering?

There is something noble too about such a paradox. Once Britain and Japan were at war, but when it all started, with the Japanese attack on the United States base at Pearl Harbor in 1941, it was a harbinger of doom for the Japs, yet one which displayed ultimately a silver lining.

Japan went down to defeat, but rose swiftly from the ashes. To the United States (and General MacArthur), so maligned for its commitment to the cause of freedom in the world today, must go much of the credit for the restoration of the nation and for its strong and stable position in the world today.

For those who have not visited this country of the Orient, its island system running roughly parallel to the massive land mass of Asia, the magazine Japan Illustrated, available at the Carnegie library in Belleville, provides an excellent start to any course of reading on contemporary life in this interesting land.

Production Needs

Leisure—Just What Should We Do With It?

The following is the first of two articles on "Free Time and Leisure" written for UNESCO Courier by JOFFRE DUMAZEDIER, senior research officer at the National Scientific Research Centre in Paris.

Mr. Dumazedier sees a paradox in the attainment of more leisure time.

Should the time gained be used for traditional activities, pure and simple, or for increasing productivity and hence individual and national wealth — still further.

He makes the point that certain leisure activities require costly consumer appurtenances — television sets, sailing boats, cars — and these must be paid for by extra work.

"This factor, in industrial societies, whether capitalist or socialist, has the effect of limiting free time," says Mr. Dumazedier.

* * *

Over the last ten years, the theoretical and applied sociology of leisure has made considerable advances. After being concerned originally with the problems caused by the economic prosperity of North American, then European societies of the capitalist type, leisure sociologists turn their attention to socialist societies, and today are studying "developing" societies.

This interest is essential in the subject has helped to create the illusion that the most economically developed societies are heading towards a rapid increase in leisure, so inevitable a consequence of higher productivity and social pressure. In actual fact, the situation is more complex, and the possibilities open to different societies far more numerous.

For any society, the first choice, whether conscious or unconscious, is between an increase in production and an increase in free time. Of course one essential condition of the creation of leisure is fulfilled once the growth of productivity allows an increase in production while at the same time reducing the working hours of the producers. But a society could decide to devote the entire time to raising production still further. This extra time could then be used to increase individual or collective consumption; or is speed up public works programs — hospitals, roads, schools, sport facilities, libraries, theatres, etc.; or it could be invested for the benefit of countries whose work forces is underdeveloped and thus take the forms of a loan or a gift of essential products to societies who do not yet have the means to produce them themselves.

So much for free time in the context of production. But consumption is also an important factor, for industrial civilization stimulates the need to consume as a way of the search for leisure, so that the more one earns, the more one needs to earn. Thus in French-speaking Canada in 1963 more than half of all workers were buying on the hire-purchase system and a survey in a town near Montreal showed that a "leisure" civilization was still very far from people's thoughts: their first priority was to earn as much as possible. In addition, certain leisure activities require costly consumer appurtenances — television sets, sailing boats, motor cars for holiday and week-end use, and these must be paid for by extra work. This factor, in industrial societies whether capitalist or socialist, has the effect of limiting free time. In France, the waiting time for new cars is three years, and the price is around two years' salary for an engineer; how else to pay for it except by working to much overtime or on shifts?

Another problem remains to be considered before we reach the stage of shortening working time: is it better in fact to shorten working time, or rather improve our way of working? More and more, work study and organization are rationalizing work: wasted time is hunted down, processes speeded up, conveyor belt production developed, and the possibilities of automation broadened. The time saved in this way might be used to slacken the pace of work, to allow more breaks during work, to include in working time various activities of a social, recreational or instructive nature, even participation in management, organized by the firm, trade union or a joint committee of management and workers — but

American Motors Sells Money Maker, Stays in Automobiles

DETROIT (AP) — American Motors has taken a giant step towards solving its financial problems by selling its financing subsidiary, Rediseo, Inc., to Chrysler Corp.

The sale was confirmed today by unidentifiable sources. They told The Associated Press that formal announcement of the deal is scheduled next Tuesday.

American Motor's board of directors meets Monday and is expected to announce a $30,-600,000 loss for the first six months of its current fiscal year.

There was no official confirmation from either American Motors or Chrysler regarding the sale.

Chrysler Board Chairman Lynn Townsend told reporters April 18, "we are continuing to look at Rediseo but no decision has been made yet."

Rediseo, whose annual profit was estimated at between $3,-000,000 and $4,000,000, carried a price tag of more than $30,000,-000.

The decision to sell the profitable Rediseo division was made by American's Board Chairman Roy Chapin Jr., and President William Luneburg, who took over the firm's top two places Jan. 8.

It apparently is based on two big factors:

—American Motors has $25,-000,000 in short - term bank loans due May 31 and needed cash to make payments on time and pave the way to renegotiation of further loans.

—The Chapin-Luneburg strategy appears to be to get rid of Rediseo and the Kelvinator appliance division, and devote all time, money and energy towards gaining a substantial foothold in the auto market. Both Rediseo and Kelvinator are money makers while the auto division is in the red, observers said.

Only a small mount of Rediseo's financing is in the automotive field. The bulk of its $313,000,000 business last year was in making time - payment loans to purchasers of appliances, home furnishings and musical instruments.

One informed source said the 24 banks which underwrote American Motors' $95,000,000 in loans insisted the first $25,000,-000 realized from the Rediseo sale should be used towards paying off some of the balance of that loan.

The Chapin-Luneburg combination has made several dramatic moves since it moved into the scene less than three months ago.

They slashed American Motors's lowest prices between $154 and $234 on Feb. 21. Sales of the American line picked up since then and the firm nearly doubled production schedules on the lowest price line.

Chrysler's decision to buy Rediseo was reported to be based on its desire to acquire a diversified financing subsidiary and to a lesser degree to lend a helping hand to American Motors which lost $8,400,000 in the first quarter of its fiscal year.

Chrysler already owns Chrysler Credit Corp., but its financing is restricted to automobiles and trucks.

General Motors and Ford also are giving American Motors a hand by permitting the smallest of the four major U.S. auto firms to use their test facilities. It would cost American Motors millions of dollars to develop its own test laboratories.

Key men in the auto industry have said they want to see American Motors stay in the auto business.

Censure Of Senator Planned

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate leaders indicated today the resolution to censure Senator Thomas J. Dodd will be taken up in about 10 days. Dodd vowed to fight it and, whatever the outcome, to run for a third term in 1970.

The Senate ethics committee unanimously recommended Thursday after a 10-month investigation that the white-haired Connecticut Democrat be censured for financial misconduct.

None of Dodd's colleagues spoke out immediately in his defence, but he was quick to reassert he had done nothing wrong and said he would make a detailed reply to the committee's findings.

In its report to the Senate the committee said Dodd diverted to "his personal purposes" at least $116,023 in politically raised campaign and testimonial funds in the years 1961-65.

Patience and Training Through The Years Is Well Worth Effort

Dear Doris: I bought my girl her first lipstick (pale) in grade seven, showed her the mirror and told her to practise (including blotting). The agreement was not to wear it to school. Then we agreed that it was alright to wear it any other time as long as it was her decision and not her girl friends'.

The biggest blow was not being able to wear it to school and now that she is in senior high it is her own decision that she wears it to school on special occasions only. Now that is the way we will teach our next girl in the very near future. All she's looking forward to is having her own tube of lipstick and learning how to use it properly.

My third girl is only four, but when she plays house she wears lipstick put on by me very lightly, not like her little friend who puts it on by herself all over her face.

So Doris, it all starts at a very early age and once a girl gets a taste of lipstick the desire is there. Patience and training all through the years of all those little extras is well worth it. — Mother of Three Nice Girls.

Dear Mother: It is the love of doling up or the yen to grow up that starts the urge so early? Your technique sounds well nigh perfect.

Dear Doris: A boy 18 wrote to you that his father was always criticizing him about not contributing much to the family budget. The boy has a part - time job which gives him just enough to pay for his lunches, the odd show and his clothes.

What on earth does this father expect of a boy? He's still going to school and should continue on if he is going to make his way in this life? The boy is clothing himself. That is a big item right there, plus his lunches.

This father had better count his blessings that he has a son who will do so much to help. The boy signed himself "Undecided"; but you can sign me — Decided.

Dear Decided: Agreed. And my suggestion that the boy and his father make it all a matter for discussion between them was with the hope that Pappy would come down off his high horse and quit nagging.

Dear Doris: Is there any special trick to a deep breathing exercise? — Fresh Air Hound.

Dear Fresh Air: I asked a physiotherapist your question and she gave me a deep breathing routine. Here it is:

"To start deep breathing exercises assume an erect posture. First, blow out gently and steadily through the lips To. Inhale, concentrate on pushing out the chest wall. Do not try to inhale all the air you can possibly hold.

"When you do it right, it is more like taking a deep sigh, in which the chest moves out and the tummy appears to fill up. This will give you a lovely and natural deep breath. It is enough to take two or three deep breaths. If you take too many you may get a headache."

Please make letters as brief as possible — not more than two pages. And remember that stamped envelope.

Variations of Marmalade Cookies

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: A wonderful recipe for cookies given by you years back, has been lost in my house. It is the one with the orange marmalade, the best I ever made. Thank you. — M. S. J.

ANSWER: I had to smile for I have just made marmalade cookies again with four variations. You are right — they are good.

FRIDAY

Dinner Menu

Chilled Fruit Juice; Broiled Salmon Steaks; Lemon Butter; Parsley Potatoes; Spinach Armandine; Canned Canadian Peaches; Sour Cream Coffee Cake; Tea.

MARMALADE COOKIES
(four variations — 48)
(These Freeze Well)

1-3 cup butter
2/3 cup granulated sugar
1 egg
1/4 cup good quality orange marmalade
2 cups sifted all - purpose flour
2 tsps. baking powder
1/4 tsp. salt.

Ingredients for Four Variations

1/4 cup desiccated coconut
1/4 cup light sultana raisins
1/4 cup chopped walnuts or pecans or almonds

Variation No. 1: Cream butter and sugar and beat again. Sift together sifted flour, baking powder and salt. (NOTE: If desired at this stage, bake this batter as is. See method below for dropping and baking.)

Divide batter into four parts. Put the quarters into three smaller bowls — leaving last quarter in original mixing bowl.

Varation No. 1: Leave batter as it and spoon onto buttered cookie sheets one inch apart in 1/4" mounds — 12 of them.

Variation No. 2: To 1/4 of dough add 1/4 cup desiccated coconut and spoon onto buttered cookie sheet 1" apart in 1/4" mounds — 12 of them.

Variation No. 3: To 1/4 of dough add 1/4 cup chopped nuts and spoon onto buttered cookie sheets 1" apart in 1/4" mounds — 12 of them.

Variation No. 4: To last 1/4 of dough add 1/4 cup chopped nuts and spoon onto buttered cookie sheets 1" apart in 1/4" mounds — 12 of them.

Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. about 13 to 15 min. NOTE: Plain marmalade cookies take about 13 min. to bake. Variations require about 15 min. Do not overbake. If desired freezer-wrap and freeze the surplus.

Ann Landers

Seethes Over Type Of Thank-you Notes

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I decided a few weeks ago that if I received one more ridiculous thank-you note I would write to you. Today is the day. It arrived in this morning's mail. Here it is:

"I am just a teeny weeny baby so of course I can't write yet but my mommie is writing for me. She says the little dress you sent is the prettiest one in my wardrobe. I think it is, too. I just love pink. I hope you will come and see how nice I look in my pretty pink dress. But please call before you come because I sleep quite a lot and I want to be up from my nap when you come to see me. Love, — Linda Sue."

Isn't that nauseating? Why do mothers think they have to be so cute? Would you call this bad taste, stupidity or what? Please comment. — HASTEN JASON BRING THE BASIN.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR JASON: Personally, I don't care for cutesey, precious thank-you notes but at least you received an expression of appreciation. Every week I get dozens of letters from people who wonder why their wedding gifts, graduation gifts, baby gifts, Christmas, Easter and birthday gifts are not even acknowledged.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Frequently I read in your columns complaints from pseudo-masculine husbands who think housework is for sissies.

I boil when I think of the bums whose wives hold down jobs, run homes and raise families, while they put in an eight-hour day and then hide behind the newspaper or TV.

I am proud to say I share the household duties with my wife and do everything I can to help, including ironing. I have not developed any mammary glands or other feminine characteristics. Nobody has ever called me a pantywaist, at least not to my face.

Fathers should not worry about their sons being sissies if they do housework. They should be concerned with raising young men who can help their wives without feeling that their masculinity is being threatened. — CAMPAIGN, ILL.

DEAR CHAMP.: Every working wife in the U.S.A. will love you for your stand. Thanks for writing.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I almost croaked when I read the letter from the 13-year-old girl who said she had been in love three times. She signed herself: "This Time It's Real."

I am 15 and I know the difference between a crush and infatuation. Any girl who is in love with her English teacher one week and the paper boy the next has got to be wingy. Then she talks about feeling dizzy and not being able to eat. Maybe the poor kid has the flu.

I hope the girl clipped out that silly column and that she will read it again when she is 18. She'll have a good laugh. Sign me — I CAN WAIT.

DEAR ICW: You have a smart head on those 15-year-old shoulders. Young kids who think they are in love, then try to live the part as they see it portrayed in the movies, end up sad and sorry. Congratulations on your good sense.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Oh dear, Tommy is awake and crying already. I hoped he would sleep an other hour before he would get me up."

Father: "Don't there any way to keep him quiet at least until 6 o'clock?"

If your toddler wakes at dawn's first light, he will learn to play quietly in his crib if you provide a little pleasant incentive.

Hang a shoebag on the foot of the crib after baby is asleep. Tuck a toy in each pocket and perhaps a cooky to keep him busy and happy for a half an hour or so in the morning.

Centennial Fashions Shown at Stirling

STIRLING—Stirling citizens presented a Centennial Fashion Show and program in the theatre Wednesday and Thursday nights to aid improvements to the dining building at the fair grounds.

The stage resembled an old-fashioned parlor of 1867. Mrs. Mervin Howard was master of ceremonies and Mrs. Russell Hatton acted as commentator. Mrs. Howard wore a navy crepe skirt with gold sequins and Mrs. Hatton was gowned in a regal dress of cornflower blue with matching picture hat. Stirling centennial queen, Miss Barbara Chambers, and her two princesses, Miss Lily Hum and Miss Gwenda Detlor, wearing white wedding gowns and tiaras and carrying bouquets of roses, led the processional.

Mrs. Maurice Clancy, president of the Ladies' Aid Board and 11 members, were introduced. Most of the women wore homemade dresses in 1867 styles, but one black dress was over 100 years old and had been borrowed for the occasion.

The first 15 models included mothers, children and several teenagers in old-fashioned styles, but one black dress was over 100 years old and had been borrowed for the occasion.

The third section featured models wearing clothes as much as 150 years old and others had been made most of centennial prints in 1867 styles. The last group included a beautiful cut velvet gown of 1860, a black satin brocade over 100 years old and a black lace dress over 75 years old.

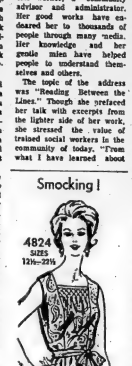
Doris Clark Addresses Sorority Groups At 36th Annual Founder's Day Banquet

Miss Doris Clark, author of "Successful Living," brought jewels of wisdom to add to the "Jewels of Phi" at the 36th annual Founder's Day Banquet of the Sorority Sigma of Belleville on Thursday evening. The dinner meeting was held in Holloway Street United Church with a large representation of all the Chapters on hand. Gamma Mu was the host chapter.

After a social hour in the church parlors, guests enjoyed a delightful dinner served by the ladies of the church. The tables were beautifully appointed. Centre flower arrangements created by members of the chapters. Place cards were enclosed with matchbooks covered in black serif faced with a golden jewelled Phi. Pledges Kathleen Thomas with pink rosebuds and black lettering, and favors for everyone.



After Shirley Boyce of Xi Beta Zeta asked the Beta Sigma Phi Toastmaster Marylea Burtt, president of Gamma Mu took charge of the program. Mrs. Burtt extended a welcome to all present, with a special mention of Miss Pearl Clark, sister of the guest speaker.

"In every community," she said, "there is a needy group of young women, poised and sure, who actively show their concern for the less fortunate. They are members of Beta Sigma Phi, an international organization for women, in Belleville Chapters, in harmony, have completed many projects. They have a float for the Centennial Parade; have presented Belleville with an all Canadian summer concert featuring tenor Wallace Williamson and Belleville's Tommy Williamson, playing with "Meals on Wheels"; sponsor the annual Black and Gold ball; given emergency baby-sitting course; help the Children's Aid with knitting; dress dolls for needy children and furnish annual scholarships."

Guests at the head table were honorary member Gamma Mu, Sheila White, president Xi Beta Zeta Shirley Boyce; president Alpha Lambda Joan Brown; Director Gamma Mu Allaeen Murray; Miss Doris Clark; director Alpha Lambda Eva Ketcheson; president Xi Alpha Mu Jean Lennox; president Phi Phi Delta Marilyn Mew; honorary member Gamma Mu Dorothy McKinnon and the speaker, Gamma Mu Marylea Burtt.

Mr. Walter W. Ross founded the address of welcome ago. His yearly message is always inspiring. This year he detailed the answer to the question "What is a Beta Sigma Phi?" "She is many things," he said, "and they are fine. In the Beta plaee she is listed upon becoming a new person. She knows that the good life is not just negative good in being clean from complaint, but positively good in self realization. She sets herself the great question, "Who am I?"

"A Beta Sigma Phi accepts herself and who accepts herself actually comes to like herself and finds great pleasure in being herself. Self-esteem is at its respect of self preservation. To be the self one truly is, is the deepest responsibility of life. Becoming yourself is opening the door to a treasure house. The person who opens this door is a Beta Sigma Phi."

A chorus of girls from all chapters, with Faith Smith at the piano, sang the theme song of the year, "The Jewels of Phi."

Allaneen Murray introduced the guest speaker, Miss Doris Clark, B.A., M.S.W., an outstanding Canadian writer. She has devoted her life to the service of others as a social worker, a community advisor and administrator. Her good works have endeared her to thousands of people through many media. Her knowledge and her gentle mien have helped people to understand themselves and others.

The topic of the address was "Reading Between the Lines". Though she prefaced her talk with excerpts from the lighter side of her work, she stressed the value of trained social workers in the community of today. "From what I have learned about you," she said, "Beta Sigma Phi members are certainly striving to meet life's many different points, with attention to things cultural, social, benevolent and philosophical. This is what keeps us young and keeps us greeting every day with the eager-eyed wonder of a child."

"With all of us there are times when life seems very humdrum as we go through the necessary routines associated with being homemakers or career girls. Beta Sigma Phi girls are doing something about it. We touch life together at many points. In order to discover the why of things we must all do a great deal of reading between the lines. Reading between the lines is social work style."

"We now have a science of human behavior and a person who is a graduate of social work has done a good deal of studying about what makes people function the way they do. She has learned something about the principles which are constructive and destructive in human relationships. She has learned what a good family life can mean to the young person who is beginning to function on his own.

The student of social work gets training and practice in actually discussing these things with her client. She learns how to help the client to enter into a counseling interview and begin to do his own thinking. But she is not all added up and multiplied and extended over an intuitive two-year period. She has produced is a new kind of professional analytical approach to problems of living, combined with a counseling technique which becomes a sophisticated and powerful treatment. This is a far cry from the "common sense" approach which some of the unenlightened still think is all you need to handle human problems. Believe me, this isn't enough. Communities should consider this before cutting a little off from public welfare funds. Money saved by leaving handicapped children without relief and forcing mothers to have to work to take care of their children is money saved at the cost of human misery."

Advice cannot be handed out "off the top of the head," in order to be effective, skilled research and inquiry must be made into deep-seated emotional problems and practical conditions which are present relationships within families. This kind of counselling must be done by people who are trained to do it and know how to get the "message across."

"With the positive approach, "Successful Living" and Beta Sigma Phi join forces. We can either choose to let the everlasting round of daily obligations become drudgery, or we can give the daily, workaday world of drab reality a lift by doing something positive to change things, to give ourselves a new outlook, a new way of looking at things; a broader horizon, some way of touching life at a new point. An important part of this is to begin to look at ourselves with a view to reading between the lines."

Appreciation to the speaker was expressed by Donna Masters. Following the meeting a reception was tendered in Miss Clark's honor, at the home of Chris Bodley, with Allaneen Murray as co-hostess.

While in the city Miss Clark called at the office of The Intelligencer, this being the first newspaper to carry her column "Successful Living", and this morning left for Kingston where she will address a women's group there.

Children Attend Art Classes With Mothers

EDMONTON (CP) — "I'm making a green pussycat," said Janet.

"A green pussycat!" said Victoria. "I never heard of such a thing as that!"

And she returned to her own painting of a yellow sun, a tree with pink trunk and blue and green leaves, and a pink cow with round red ears and a green face.

Janet, 6, and Victoria, 5, attend the Edmonton Art Gallery's preschool art class. Every Wednesday, 18 mothers come for their own classes in art history and appreciation, while their children sit on the floor of a paint-daubed room and fill sheets of paper with fantasy.

Downstairs, you can paint the sun on one side of the sky and the moon on the other, and have both day and night in your picture. You can paint an Air Canada plane, wait until the people get on, and paint the door closed.

You can make a bumblebee as big as it deserves to be—three times the size of the red flowers around it.

The first rule is this: Every picture must have a story.

"This is a truck and he ran into a tree," said Susan Carol Morgan, 4. "And this is rain raining down."

The second rule is: Any'thing can be inside a picture.

Clifford Black pointed to a tangle of color and explained, "It's a big machinery and this is where the people walk in who work. And there's a big round saw in there that cuts wood."

"But where are the people?"

"They're working."

"And where is the saw?"

"It's upstairs. He pointed to the blackest part of the composition. "There.

The third rule is: Pictures grow as you paint them.

Alian Barclay, 5, narrated as he worked, saying: "This is a plane. This is the wings and that's the tail. It started from the restroom and it spreaded over here and it caught on fire —somebody was smoking—and it's going to crash.

But the grown-up passion for realism creeps up on the young artists. You begin to paint fingers and toes on people. And you expect questions about your paintings to be reasonable.

Victoria had finished a lavender house under a pink moon.

"It's a house where people live, she said.

"Is anything happening in the house?

"Of course not, she said. "They're all in bed.

THE TRUCK HIT A TREE — Susan Carol Morgan thinks her painting is obvious — the truck hit a tree and "the rain is raining down." The painting was Susan's effort at the Edmonton art gallery's pre-school class. She turned it out while her mother was upstairs taking an art appreciation course. (CP Photo)

WESLEYAN METHODIST WMS

The April meeting of the Wesleyan Methodist Women's Missionary Society was held in the home of Mrs. H. Babcock, Linton Park Road. Mrs. George Ellis led in the devotional, which was centred on the Ascension and the great commission which preceded it.

In the absence of the president, Mrs. Eldon LeRoy, the vice-president, was in charge. Reports were given by Mrs. Vivian Trotter, Mrs. Helen Spearman and Mrs. H. Lockin. A committee of three was elected to purchase an article for the chapel of Hastings Manor. It was announced that Mr. and Mrs. Roger Rawlings will be leaving Belleville to serve at the Evangelical Deaf Mission in Puerto Rico for one year, beginning in August.

The field study for the meeting was India with its teeming 440,000,000 population. Its Christian influence was traced back to a traditional visit from the apostle St. Thomas. Christianity remained active throughout Moslem domination. Moravian missionary enterprises and Roman Catholic influences through commercial traders, as well as British chaplains sent with East Indian traders extended the church. At this time there are 300 fewer Christian missionaries in India than there were four years ago. Wesleyan Methodist institutions there include an orphanage, a leprosarium, a hospital, as well as churches. All schools have been expropriated by the government. Mass Scripture distribution is being carried on and the Wesleyan World Missions department also co-operates with 16 other denominations in operating the Yeotmal Junior Bible Seminary. Thousands of Indian villages are still without a Christian witness and this need along with others was mentioned in prayer by Mrs. L. Elliott and Mrs. G. Ellis.

Mr., Mrs. Thomas Mikel Wed for 50 Years

TRENTON — A family dinner at Maple Inn, Bloomfield and a reception in the rectory old Mikel homestead at R.R. 2, Consecon were the highlights of last weekend when Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Mikel marked their golden wedding anniversary. More than 200 relatives and friends called Sunday to congratulate the popular couple.

Among the many congratulatory messages received were telegrams from Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson and Ontario Prime Minister John P. Robarts.

Mr. and Mrs. Mikel each have their own Centennial project. Mrs. Mikel has made a quilt, "Not a Centennial pattern" and Mr. Mikel has completed a giant scrapbook, in which, over the years, he has pasted colored pictures of antique cars, scenic views and current events.

Mr. and Mrs. Mikel were married at the Brigden Methodist parsonage on April 25, 1917 by Rev. Kilfoil. Mrs. Mikel was the former Sybil McGillis of Brighton. Mr. Mikel was born in Murray Township.

Moving to Prince Edward County 55 years ago, Mr. Mikel settled on the family homestead where he farmed until his retirement 15 years ago. His son, Beecher, now runs the farm.

"My grandmother, Mrs. John Mikel, who was Sarah Harrington, was born in this house in 1815," Mr. Mikel says proudly.

On Sunday, Mr. Mikel's sister, Elda, (Mrs. Kenneth Sickle of Trenton), who was bridesmaid at the wedding in 1917, was on hand to assist the "bride and groom" to greet their many guests, some of whom came from points in the United States. The best man at the wedding was the late Earl Taylor formerly of Consecon.

The Mikels have five children, Marion, (Mrs. Clifford Calnan) and Evelyn, (Mrs. Malcolm Hubbs), both of Carrying Place; Barbara, (Mrs. Everett Minaker) of Ameliasburg; Shirley, Mrs. Noxon Foster) of Hillier Twp. and Beecher. Eighteen youngsters call them "Grandma and Grandpa."

Bay of Quinte UCW Meets in Peterborough

Mrs. F. J. Smith, Newburgh, Mrs. Clayton Thompson, Campbellford and Mrs. L. F. Richardson, Whitby, will act as a team in assisting Presbyterial United Church Women in interpreting the new policy of giving to the Unified Budget Fund of the church. Called self-determination, it will begin in 1968. The announcement was made at the executive meeting this week at Knox United Church, Peterborough. After a brief training period with the Board of Women, a wide area in seven presbyteries will be covered.

Mrs. J. D. Macintosh, Kingston announced completion of plans for the Training School weekend at Elim Lodge Sept. 15-17 where Rev. Ro.K. N. MacLean of Kingston will speak.

A display of church antiques of several denominations, sponsored by Cobourg Presbyterial UCW, was attended by 240 reported Mrs. Harold Morgan, Hilton, president. They plan a retreat at the House of Four Seasons with Rev. George Young of Five Oaks Christian Training Centre as speaker.

Mrs. Earl Wellbanks, Picton, conducted five program workshops in Belleville Presbyterial UCW according to Mrs. K. E. Weaver, president.

Questioning, do we really dig the message of Easter? Mrs. N. B. Allan, audio-visual counsellor, presented the film-strip, Seven Factors That Confront Us.

Mrs. L. F. Richardson of Whitby acted as chairman in the absence of Mrs. R. C. Ellis, president, who is a patient in Belleville General Hospital.

You'll find a little extra something inside

Most conventional mortgage loans have been limited to 75% of the appraised value or selling price of the property. And, as far as we're concerned, that's conventional. At the Bank of Nova Scotia, you can arrange a conventional residential mortgage loan for up to 87½% of the value, and a maximum loan of $50,000. So? So our higher ratio could very well eliminate the need to get into costly secondary financing.

Our conventional mortgages are available for building a new home, or for an existing property. But if you're in the market for an NHA mortgage or a new home, we're ready for that, too.

One other point: our basic interest rate on conventional mortgage loans will be exactly the same anywhere in Canada. Before you make a move—anywhere—better see your local Bank of Nova Scotia manager.

General Caught In Middle

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. William Westmoreland is caught in a political crossfire that threatens to overshadow his report to Congress today on the Vietnam war.

Westmoreland prepared an account of military progress and prospects for a joint session of Congress, where members have been arguing for days over the propriety of his appearance.

The army general is the first U.S. commander in history to address Congress while running a war.

After his speech, Westmoreland was due to drive to the White House for a luncheon to brief governors, key congressional leaders and cabinet officers.

In advance of the joint session, sources said the general would not renew his criticism of anti-war protests.

Westmoreland charged in a speech at an Associated Press meeting in New York Monday that "unpatriotic acts" of protesters at home are giving comfort to Hanoi.

Westmoreland's appearance before Congress comes at a time when the United States is escalating the war against North Vietnam and the administration appears bent on increasing the military pressure on the Communists.

In talk with Johnson, state and defence department officials and members of the joint chiefs of staff Thursday, Westmoreland was believed to have presented his case for more troops beyond the 470,000-man level now planned for the end of this year.

Aides said Westmoreland would return to Vietnam either today or Saturday.

Eels Creek Trapper Dies

APSLEY, Ont. (CP) — The Mad Trapper of Eels Creek, who wasn't mad at all, is dead at 62, of a heart attack.

Gilbert Gilliland, who trapped mice grade-school days at Baltinore, near Gooorgs Ont., was found dead Wednesday night in his cabin on the creek nine miles north of here.

He had trapped a 35-square-mile line south of Eels Lake since he moved into the old road-camp cabin 25 years ago.

He made a living mainly on beaver pelts and latterly did a bit of off-season lumbering.

Nearly 10 years ago he caught in Eels Lake a lake trout of 18 pounds, 14 ounces, far the largest the lake has produced. He enshrined it in a deep freeze to be viewed by visitors, called Ti Old Gru and spent nine summers trolling in vain for a bigger one

Head of Elks In Canada Visits City

Elks can play an important role in the future growth of their community in this centennial year, Grand Exalted Ruler of the B.P.O. Elks of Canada, Robert Coulling told the Belleville Lodge and other visiting Lodges at a meeting held to receive him on an official visit held April 25.

He said Elks should be especially proud of their order because it was a truly Canadian Organization and was dedicated to charitable activities. He said the order would continue to grow and take an important part in community activities through the special efforts of the Elks National Charity, the Elks Purple Cross Fund. This fund has been established for the purpose of giving assistance to all those children up to the age of eighteen years who are in need of financial help towards their welfare, for any cause whatsoever if not covered under any other fund if their parents are not financially able to fully cover the cost.

Mr. Coulling told the gathering that the Elks and their auxiliary The Order of the Royal Purple have formed a joint committee for the purpose of extending benefits under the fund; the objective will be the establishment of Treatment Centres that will carry out a Deaf Detection and Preventive Program that will result in the elimination of deafness in at least fifty per cent of the cases detected. This detection must be carried out in the very early months after the child is born.

Exalted Ruler Allan Whitney was congratulated on the special donation of two hundred dollars made by the Belleville lodge towards this worthwhile cause. He was also congratulated on the activities carried out by the Belleville Elks in the charitable efforts in their own community.

Other dignitaries present were Raymond Smith District Deputy Grand Exalted Ruler from Picton and Doug Rushnell Exalted Ruler from Trenton B.P.O. Elks and Kenneth Ostrander of Picton. A large contingent of the membership from Picton and Trenton lodge were also present.

Illustrated Talk Given Naturalists

A rapidly growing population coupled with a great mobility on the part of the people had emphasized the need for a capability inventory of land in Canada to indicate its best use economically and for recreation.

This was dealt with in an illustrated talk given by G. B. McKeating, assistant director of the Federation of Ontario Naturalists as he spoke at the April meeting of the Quinte Field Naturalists.

Mr. McKeating is engaged in bird banding and has also staged field naturalists exhibits at the CNE and at the Toronto Sportsman's Shows.

Held at the Research Institute the meeting was chaired by the president, Mrs. W. A. Watson. Hedley Jones, scientist at the Institute, introduced the guest speaker

From his broad experience Mr. McKeating gave many examples of things he said should be done to preserve Canada's natural heritage. Dealing with forests, he pointed out that Ontario still has a limited stand of virgin "pristine timber," in eastern white pine. Unless protected, this too, will fall under the woodsman's axe. He mentioned also water pollution.

Mr. McKeating said wealth has made us an "affluent" society, with detergents taking their toll. Ever alert to the possibility of certain wild life becoming extinct, the Federation is currently watching two or three varieties of birds which are becoming disturbingly rare.

The speaker said the counties of Hastings and Prince Edward are wonderfully endowed by nature, not only with many lakes and rivers as well as birds, fish and game, but also with minerals.

Later in the season, Dr. Peter Peach, under the F.O.N. will hold a "Geology Weekend" at Actinolite which should be of great interest to local "rock bounds" and others interested in rocks and minerals.

The speaker was thanked by Irwin Knight.

Greece Planning Mass Trials For 5,000 Communist Suspects

ATHENS (CP) — Five thousand prisoners suspected of being "dangerous Communists" face mass trials overseen by Greece's military dictatorship.

This was revealed Thursday night by one of the three army officers who planned and led last Friday's coup d'etat.

Col. George Papadopoulos, made minister to the premier in the new regime, told a press conference that the 5,000 had been arrested at the start of the coup and had been removed from Athens under guard.

He said they would be tried by a "committee of security" headed by regular judges. "Those persons found not dangerous will be released," he said.

Two days ago, army-backed Premier Constantine Kollias told King Constantine, whom Papadopoulos said had not been informed of the coup until after it started, that authorities had discovered a blueprint for a bloody revolution.

Papadopoulos was asked if there was documentary evidence of a conspiracy.

"We have moved documents headquarters that fill 70 three-ton army trucks," he replied, adding that the material might be released in a few days.

The political party leaders arrested Friday included anti-Communist Andreas Papandreou and his 79-year-old father, former premier George Papandreou.

While Papadopoulos revealed the mass trials to deal with the allegedly "dangerous" opposition at home, plans were announced abroad for a Greek government in exile.

The announcement was made in Copenhagen by Anastasias Papadopoulos, who claimed to be the only Parliament deputy of George Papandreou's Centre Union outside Greece and therefore "the only free Greek voice."

The deputy, who had gone to Copenhagen on a political visit, said the party is forming foreign branches in Western Europe which would summon a congress "very soon."

At the press conference in Athens, minister Papadopoulos said relations between the 26-year-old monarch and the new regime now are normal.

Papadopoulos, 48-year-old artillery commander whom many identify as the strong man of the new regime, said the coup was carried out without the king's knowledge and "for a short period our relations with the king were disturbed."

Coppolino Convicted Of Murder

NAPLES, Fla. (AP) — Dr. Carl Coppolino was convicted of second-degree murder by an all-male jury today in the drug-murder of his wife Carmela and was sentenced to life in prison.

Conviction of second - degree murder carries a penalty of 30 years to life in prison.

Coppolino sat expressionless with his head in his hands as the verdict was delivered at 8.25 a.m. after less than four hours of jury deliberation.

Mary Coppolino, the wealthy divorcee he married after Carmela's death, also sat expressionless in a front row seat just behind her husband at the defence table.

Defence lawyer F. Lee Bailey moved immediately for a new trial and said if the motion was denied the case would be appealed to the Florida Supreme Court.

'Scouting With Handicapped' Centennial Conference Theme

On the weekend of April 22nd, Belleville was host to a group of people interested in Scouting and Guiding with handicapped persons. These came from Manitoba, Quebec, Ontario and New York State to attend the Centennial Conference on "Scouting with the Handicapped". The meeting was held at the Ontario School for the Deaf, the home of the 10th Belleville Scout Group.

Under the very capable leadership of Father Pat Bearne, Scout Executive for Handicapped Scouting from Provincial staff, and Don Deacon, the Deputy Provincial Commissioner for Ontario. The conference was an outstanding success for the ninety-three people in attendance.

The morning session, under the direction of Mr. Gordon Lochlin, Assistant Superintendent, included a demonstration of group work by the Cubs of A and B Packs (16th Belleville). These boys with Akela Mrs. H. Craig and her assistants Mrs. G. Hulbert, Mrs. B. Lynch and Mrs. H. Forster received a thunderous ovation for their work on Canada's flags, past and present.

A tour of the campus and school buildings was an eye opener to the delegates who were amazed at the opportunities and facilities provided by the government for the pupils of this school.

Luncheon in the main school dining-room provided by Miss Grace McKenzie and her staff brought the morning session to a close.

Dr. B. A. Hoddinott, Chief Psychologist, Thistledown Hospital, addressed the delegates on "Emotional Problems of Physically Handicapped Children". His talk included the mentally retarded child and the question period that followed attested to the interest and appreciation of his address.

The afternoon workshops were provocative and the lively discussions which continued through coffee breaks will provide the Provincial Executive with many ideas for the betterment of the handicapped child in Scouting.

The Belleville District Ladies' Auxiliaries, with Mrs. Edith Thompson as convener provided the evening meal at Christ Church.

The high light of the conference was the address given Lionel Hope, Cornwell Scout, a Rover from Peterborough. Lionel spoke from a wheelchair. He was there when he became a Cub and he received the highest award in Scouting from His Excellency, the late George Vanier, Chief Scout of Canada.

Lionel, confined to a wheel chair for life, spoke with conviction when he spoke of Scouting and what Scouting had done for him.

"Scouting only provided the atmosphere," he said, "the Scouts and Scoutmaster were the real workers who gave me the confidence I needed. They helped me face my disability and to discover abilities I didn't know I had.

"Scouting is not the cure all, but if Scouting can give a handicapped boy one ounce of confidence in himself, it it can help him adjust one bit to his handicap then Scouting has done a lot for that boy."

Lionel closed his address with a very thoughtful remark, "there is no such thing as a handicapped person: there are only people with different degrees of ability."

In thanking the speaker, Major Joel Crair, Montreal, expressed the sentiment of every one present when he said that Lionel Hope was surely a ray of hope for every handicapped boy or girl in Canada.

Scout Parley

Attending the centennial conference here on "Scouting With the Handicapped" are, left, Don Deacon of Toronto, Deputy Provincial Commissioner for Ontario, and Gerd Lochlin of Belleville, assistant superintendent of the Ontario School for the Deaf.

Transfer of Work Will Not Add to Plant Force

The recent transfer by Northern Electric of manufacturing facilities for PBX telephone switching equipment from its Bramalea plant to Belleville will not result in an added work force here.

Rather, the transfer of the manufacturing contract to Belleville was made to keep present employees working at full capacity.

A company official said today that such a contract transfers are nothing new for the company and are done frequently to stabilize work forces in their various plants.

"There will be no over-all increase in the labor force," personnel Rod Caverley stated. "It merely means that some of our regular workers will be doing a slightly different type of work.

The work force at Northern is currently about 850 persons.

YOUTHS REMANDED

BRANTFORD (CP) — Godfrey Brown and Richard Health, both 16 and from Paris, Ont., Thursday were remanded to May 2 on charges of criminal assault involving a 15-year-old girl. Bail was set at $2,000 cash for Health and $5,000 for Brown.

Legion Will Sponsor Centennial Fishing Derby

TRENTON — An event which may be termed "local", "national" and "international" will take place in Trenton, May 6, 6 and 7.

It's the Centennial Fishing Derby, sponsored by Trenton Branch 110 of the Royal Canadian Legion.

A booklet, sporting the picture of Trenton's Centennial Queen, Susan Brown, on the cover, has been distributed to fishermen across Canada and in U.S. points. The UK "News of the World" has been alerted, as well as TV and radio stations here and in the U.S.

Seventy-two merchants and industries bought ads for the booklet, which includes a brief history of the town and an outline of its facilities as well as an area map.

The contest will start at one minute past midnight on May 5 and will end at 4 p.m. May 7. Headquarters for registration and weigh in is the Chamber of Commerce office . . . "just follow the fish."

More than $1,000 in merchandise is offered as prizes. Grand prize for the largest pike or walleye pickerel by weight, a 12-foot canopper, the twin to the rescue boat recently acquired by the Trenton fire department) and a Johnson Fisherman motor; $250 worth of tent equipment for the largest walleye pickerel and $150 in Shakespeare fishing equipment for the largest pike.

As a bonus to the Grand Prize winner, Stirling taxidermist Stan Olsansky will mount the fish free.

Entry blanks may be obtained at the Legion Hall, the Chamber of Commerce office; Gilbert Hotel, Don Bell's Sports' and Hobby Shop, MacDonald Hardware, House and House Hardware, Mark Tripp's Cigar Store and Fred Harris' Barbershop on the east side of town.

A fish fry at the Legion Hall will be the highlight of the event. That's scheduled for May 6 at 8 p.m. Prizes will be awarded Sunday night at 6 p.m. at the Legion Hall.

And if you aren't too fond of fishing . . . you can still win a $25 prize. Just go down to the Chamber of Commerce office and make a guess at the weight of the hardboard fish displayed over the door. (Confidentially, the eight foot fish is one-eighth of an inch thick). Weight guesses will be recorded at the places where the contest forms are available.

DIES BENEATH WALL

SUDBURY (CP) — Almer Bresault, 39, of nearby Chelmsford, died in hospital Thursday from injuries suffered Tuesday when the wall of a house fell on him. He was working with a crew demolishing the house.

Mine-Mill to Merge With Steel Saturday

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Province says the United Steelworkers of America and the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers will sign a merger agreement in Toronto Saturday.

Mine-Mill and the Steelworkers—bitter rivals in years gone by — have 10,000 and 130,000 members respectively.

Vancouver's morning newspaper says it has learned from "sources outside" British Columbia that the agreement will be signed by senior officials of both unions at the weekend meeting in Toronto.

The report says the Mine-Mill union plans to call a special convention late June or early July to ratify the agreement.

The Steelworkers approved ratification terms at a recent convention. The two unions approved merging in the U.S. several months ago.

Bell School Supervisor Is Speaker

"The urge to communicate is one of the strongest human motivations without our modern civilization could not exist," Doug Hinton, Supervisor of Engineering Training, Bell Telephone Engineering School said Tuesday. He was speaking to the dinner meeting of the Industrial Management Clubs of Canada Quinte District Chapter.

Mr. Hinton traced the development of communications from the simple market place to today's sales promotion methods.

He stressed that changes in education must be implemented because of the eight-fold increase in knowledge which occurs with each generation, and forecasted greater importance of communication in our everyday lives in the future.

In 1966, the two provinces had 3,323 highway deaths, more than half the 5,258 total. There were 4,979 traffic deaths in Canada in 1965, with 3,152 of them in Ontario and Quebec. (CP Newsmap)

Son Is Born To Princess

UTRECHT (CP)—A jubilant Netherlands today celebrated the birth to Crown Princess Beatrix of "a well-made son". The first male heir to the Dutch throne to be born in 116 years.

School children and civil servants were given a day off to celebrate the birth Thursday night of the prince, who will be next in line to his mother for the throne of Queen Juliana.

Doctors called the unnamed prince "a robust and healthy boy" who weighed just under 8½ pounds.

Buildings throughout the country flew the Orange pennant of the Dutch Royal House and windmills — which have their own sign language here—set their sails in the traditional festive position, about 2½ yards off vertical.

Several hundred persons had gathered around the Academic Hospital in Utrecht to await the birth. When it was announced, others poured into the streets, chanting "Oranje Boven"—Orange Up.

Beatrix was reported in satisfactory condition after the birth by Caesarean section.

The birth was believed to be about two weeks overdue. Sources at the hospital indicated the delivery took about 30 minutes.

Beatrix was married March 10, 1966, to von Amberg, who was made a prince of The Netherlands. The marriage was unpopular with some Dutchmen because he had served in the German Army during the Second World War, when Holland was occupied by the Nazis.

Millhaven Prison 'Illogical'

TORONTO (CP)—J. R. Mooney, president of the John Howard Society of Ontario said, in a telegram Thursday to Prime Minister Pearson, that the decision to build Millhaven prison was unreasonable.

Mr. Mooney said the decision to build the institution, near Kingston, was "illogical and inconsistent." He said the number of inmates in Kingston penitentiary would be relieved by the opening of Warkworth institution and the reclassification of inmates

Municipalities May Get Bus Gas Tax Refund

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government is taking a good look at a suggestion which would give back municipalities the taxes they pay on gasoline for transportation systems, Transport Minister Irwin Haskett said in the Legislature Thursday.

Bernard Newman (L—Windsor-Walkerville) suggested such a rebate would enable the municipalities to improve the service they provide. This would result in an increase in passengers and a decrease in the number of motorists cramming municipal streets.

The transport minister said his department has given consideration to joining federal and municipal governments in providing fast transit free to city dwellers — a suggestion made by Mr. Newman.

In other business in the legislature:

1. The Ontario Water Resources Commission reported that nine pulp and paper mills had installed satisfactory waste treatment or control and 23 others had submitted proposals involving an estimated cost of $30,000,000 in combatting water pollution.

2. Health Minister Matthew Dymond agreed to withdraw proposed legislation giving Ontario wide controls over air pollution after objections were raised. Dr. Dymond said he would withdraw the bill for two weeks to see whether some of the problems could be resolved.

3. The legislature's health committee gave clause - by - clause approval to two government bills providing provincial controls over waste disposal and the use of pesticides.

Mr. Haskett said during the night sitting he was in favor of a suggestion by a number of members that cars be equipped with green running lights, red brake lights and orange directional lights.

The house approved the transport department's spending estimates of $11,147,000 for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1968, after two days of debate.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

TORONTO — John Prigione, the stout-ish and suspended president of the Guelph Regals, will make a second stab at what is called creating more fan interest in the Ontario Hockey Association senior "A" League.

He will ask loop representatives at a category meeting here tomorrow morning to adopt a league rule which will force all senior teams to carry a specified number of young players.

This was brought up last year by Ted Power of the Woodstock Athletics and was promptly given the heave-ho by the OHA sub committee. This time it should last as long.

A near-record number of delegates are here at the Royal York for the OHA annual convention.

Prigione will recommend in the representatives of the senior loop in private session that all clubs be required to carry five players under 23 years of age. He will likely introduce the measure by proxy since he stands suspended as a result of a brawl with a referee.

A Kingston writer points out "The aged and creaky bones of the game's veteran players aren't creating massive traffic jams at the box offices."

That might apply to Kingston and other playing centres but in Belleville as average of over 2,000 greeted the first senior club to play there since 1961. The best in the league.

And I note the Kingston Aces grabbed off a couple of "aged and creaky-boned" veterans to bolster the club in the Allan Cup playdowns.

The writer also states that Junior "B" clubs operating in senior centres are "soaring to new heights" attendance-wise.

If an average of 250 fans is "soaring to new heights" then I'm the Dutchman's proverbial uncle. That was approximately the count at every Eastern Ontario Junior "B" game in all participating centres with the exception of Cobourg.

The move to include five under 23 players in the senior rosters won't go unchallenged. The Belleville Mo-Hawks will definitely vote against it.

General manager Bob Temple told me, "I don't agree that such a move will strengthen the clubs or result in any great increase at the box office. And I doubt if any of the clubs will cut five experienced players for those over junior age and not good enough for junior "A". It will lower the calibre of senior play."

With the new draft coming into effect with the expansion of the National Hockey League not too many young players of say senior calibre will be around. Some of the senior players may be picked up as they were under close scrutiny of major league scouts during the playing season. But you'll count them on your fingers.

And it will be interesting to note what senior players will be cut by the clubs powers-that-be to be replaced with under-23-year-olds with little or no senior experience.

I agree with Manager Temple that the move will tend to weaken the senior calibre of play. And heavens knows if the teams of last year's loop were a heluva long way below the old Whitby Dunlops and Belleville McFarlands.

True it would be a fine experience for the youngsters to get into senior hockey, but in my opinion that's about all the good the move would produce.

Coach Floyd Crawford of the Mo-Hawks said "We'll go along with the 1966-67 edition of the club with an addition or so, with perhaps the exception of young Steve Rexe, who, I believe, will be signed to a professional contract."

The move will be strictly a league affair and I understand must be ratified by the OHA sub-committee. That, I believe, is as far as it went.

I mentioned it to a top-ranking OHA official here. He did not commit himself verbally — merely shook his head.

VANCOUVER (CP) — John Tolos, known in wrestling circles as the Golden Greek, maintained his unbeaten record in and out of the ring Thursday.

He was given the decision by Magistrate Lorne Jackson in a closely contested case.

Magistrate Jackson dismissed the charge against the 245-pound crew-cut grappler after ruling there was no evidence of intent to commit a criminal act the night Tolos was thrown from the ring and allegedly struck a woman fan.

Vachon Hikes Habs; Whip Leafs 6-2

TORONTO (CP) — Thursday holds a new significance for Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens, currently locked at two games each in their struggle for the Stanley Cup.

To Canadiens, the goaltender, Rogatien Vachon, the day must hold pleasant memories. To the Leafs, and netminder Terry Sawchuk the recollections must be bitter.

For it was Thursday night last year that Canadiens drubbed the Leafs by a 6-2 score and for the second time Sawchuk was the victim and Vachon the hero.

To add further bitterness to Sawchuk's memories of the day is the fact he lost two Thursday contests to Chicago Black Hawks in the National Hockey League's semi-final round—the only two games the Hawks could win.

Centres Ralph Backstrom and Jean Beliveau each scored twice for the Canadiens Thursday night and Henri Richard and Jim Roberts added the others. Mike Walton and Tim Horton scored for Toronto.

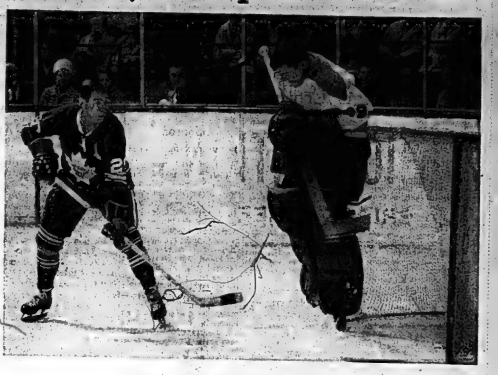
Veteran Johnny Bower, who had held Montreal to a 3-2 overtime loss Tuesday night and a 3-0 shutout last Saturday at Montreal, had been scheduled to start in the Toronto net.

However, he pulled up lame in the pre-game warmup due to an injured thigh muscle in his left leg and Sawchuk got the call.

Ironically, Sawchuk had been sensational in Toronto's four wins against Chicago—but they were all played on Tuesdays and Saturdays.

Joe Blake, the Montreal coach, saw it as an omen when he was advised just before game time that Bower was unable to start.

"We heard in the dressing room that he had been injured and I thought this is the break," Blake said. "He's been murder to us in the last two games. "But then it could work two ways. Sometimes when you have a key player injured like this the substitute comes on strong to beat you."



For a while it appeared the Leafs were going to do just that.

They peppered Vachon with eight shots in the first two minutes of play. But twenty seconds into the period and were never to threaten.

Backstrom gave the Canadiens a 1-0 lead when he backhanded the puck past Sawchuk, after the Toronto netminder moved to block a shot by Claude Larose and the rebound squirted loose. Forty - three seconds later Beliveau scored when his shot bounced off Sawchuk's leg into the net.

Walton narrowed the gap to 2-1 after Beliveau went off for boarding at 1:46 of the second period. The Toronto player's shot ran along the goal line and bounced in off Montreal defenceman Jacques Laperriere's skate.

Richard scored 17 seconds later after he got a partial breakaway near centre ice.

Goalies Swung The Tide

Doug Barkley, the former all - star defenceman with Detroit Red Wings who lost an eye in a game against Chicago Black Hawks two years ago, watched Thursday night's fourth game of the Stanley Cup playoffs which Montreal Canadiens won 6-2 from Toronto Maple Leafs. Here are his impressions of the game.

Written for The Canadian Press By DOUG BARKLEY

TORONTO (CP) — Tonight I thought Toronto played a weak game defensively and the big difference in the two clubs was the goaltending.

It's hard to tell who the Leafs will go with for the next game Saturday. Do you use Bower who may not be 100 per cent, or go again with Terry Sawchuk or do you try Al Smith the replacement?

That's the question Toronto must solve.

Every game of the series has been different from the one before.

Montreal caught the Leafs off balance and tired in the first game then Toronto played terrific second and third games.

The way Canadiens were skating tonight it's hard to say if the Leafs could have won even with Bower in goal.

I was impressed with Rogatien Vachon and I think tonight was Jean Beliveau's best game of the series.

Vachon broke the Leafs' back in the first two minutes with all those saves and then the forwards — led by Beliveau—took over and played well and got him those goals.

The Leafs have always been a tough playoff team and they're not out yet. But the Canadiens have so many young legs on them.

Sometimes the best players with old legs can't handle the beat, with young legs and it could make the difference in the series.

Montreal has Beliveau and depth to carry it along and when he's going well he seems to give the others a lift and the necessary momentum.

Memorial Cup

Ports, Royals Even!

FORT WILLIAM, Ont. (CP)—Port Arthur Marrs, employing a scoring punch thought up by coach Ab Cava before the third period, Thursday night made sure their history would not be repeated.

Cava's decision to place pickup Chuck Kobes alongside veterans Tim McCormack and Ray Addonno was the spark for a three-goal outburst that was good for a 5-2 victory over New Westminster Royals and deadlock the Memorial Cup Western final at a game each.

The triumph erased a possibility that the series might resemble a 1964 clash between Trail Smoke eaters and Port Arthur Flyers in the Western Canada junior hockey final.

Trail pulled off a big upset, rebounding from a 2-0 deficit after 19½ minutes of the first period to capture the first game in overtime and eventually swept the best-of-five affair in straight games.

Wednesday night, in the first game of the current series, Royals scrambled back from a 2-0 deficit after 85 seconds of the first period to win 6-5 in overtime.

Games Trials

Haswell Meets Crothers

EDMONTON (CP) — At the age of 21, Ray Haswell is attempting an unorthodox comeback. His problem is wiping out the memory of a race he won last summer.

Haswell, a University of Alberta engineering student, defeated Canadian champion Dave Ellis of Toronto and Ron Wallingford of Chicago in a three - mile event at the British Empires Games track and field trials here last July. Ellis, B.C., a member of the Canadian team at Kingston, and Emmett Smith of Edmonton, who holds the Canadian native broad-jump record.

RELIGIONS UNITE

The Indonesian congress, mostly Moslem, includes members of Protestant, Catholic and Hindu faiths.

American Games in Winnipeg. This time his major opponent is Bill Crothers, the Markham, Ont., pharmacist who has been among the world's best half-milers for the last five years.

Despite the lateness of the indoor season, the meet is expected to attract close to 300 athletes, about 125 of them from out of town. Among them are pole-vaulter Bob Yard of Trail, B.C., a member of the Canadian team at Kingston, and Emmett Smith of Edmonton, who holds the Canadian native broad-jump record.

Reds Take Over Top

Astros Break 10-Game Loss String!

By MIKE ERCIT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Mel Queen was about to pace Kitzer as an outfielder he turned to pitching, and now he is pausing on his meager batting average to others.

The right - handed Cincinnati Reds hurler has taken particular interest in San Francisco Giants with his gift-giving treatment that has turned the slugging Giants into hitless pygmies.

Queen stumped the Giants on three hits and one run for seven innings Thursday as the Reds won 3-3 and regained first place in the National League from the St. Louis Cardinals.

The Cardinals fell back when Houston Astros scored five runs in the seventh inning and held on for a 6-4 triumph, breaking a 10-game losing streak.

Elsewhere in the National League, Claude Osteen pitched Los Angeles Dodgers past Atlanta Braves 6-0, Pergame Jenkins, the Chatham, Ont., hurler, pitched Chicago Cubs to a 3-0 shutout over batted New York Mets, and Pittsburgh Pirates nudged Philadelphia Phillies 5-4.

Cleveland Indians dropped Minnesota Twins 5-4 in the American League as pinch-hitter Willie Smith doubled home the winning run in the eighth inning. The Twins had rallied from a 4-4 deficit against Sam McDowell in the 8th on Allison's three-run homer and an RBI double by Rich Rollins.

California Angels were rained out at Baltimore Orioles.

Queen left after walking the first man in the eighth, leading 3-1 on Deron Johnson's sixth homer with a man on old loser Gaylord Perry and Vada Pinson's run - scoring hit. Reliever Ted Abernathy finished the issue.

Queen, a relief pitcher who only got into the starting rotation because Jim Maloney suffered shoulder trouble, came into the major leagues as an outfielder with a strong throwing arm three years ago.

His batting average with everage did not set the Reds afire. So, he returned to the mound for the first time since high school.

Bob Gibson was lowering Houston averages for six innings before Joe Morgan cracked a three - run triple off reliever Hal Woodeshick after Gibson loaded the bases with none out in the seventh.

The Astros added two more runs in the inning for a 5-2 lead.

Osteen, 3-1, allowed only two Braves past first base as he tossed a four - hitter supported by Ron Hunt's run - scoring single and three - run double.

But the Dodgers lost Lou Johnson when he fractured an ankle sliding home in the first inning.

Jenkins levelled the Mets with a three - hitter and 10 strike outs for his third victory without a defeat.

Jesse Gonder broke a 4-4 tie with a run-scoring single in the eighth inning for Pittsburgh. The pirates tied the game in the seventh by scoring two runs on a wild pitch and a wild throw. Donn Clendenon homered for the Pirates.

Lawyers Insist

Clay Will Never Go To Prison!

HOUSTON (AP) — Lawyers, preparing to continue the legal battle for Cassius Clay against the United States government's military draft, are insisting the heavyweight champion will never go to jail.

"We plan to refile our suit immediately after Clay received induction," said Quinnan Hodges of Houston, one of Cassius' two attorneys. "It may be a long, drawn-out procedure, but it's one we're confident we'll win."

"We're sure of a final victory," added Hayden Covington of New York. "Muhammad will never be put behind Bars."

The heavyweight champion, known as Muhammad Ali to his Black Muslim brothers, was scheduled to report at Houston Coliseum to be inducted into military service.

He contended that he would go through the physical and mental tests but would balk when asked to take one step forward, the symbol of entering into military service today at 9 a.m.

"I will go to jail first—I will die for my religion," Clay said. The champion lost a final effort Thursday to avoid criminal action resulting from his refusal to serve in action punishable by a $10,000 fine, five years in prison, or both. Prison terms are the normal procedure.

Clay's attorneys sought a temporary restraining order in U.S. District Court but Judge Allen B. Hannay held he had no reason to tie the government's hands.

The champion's 1-A draft status has been upheld previously by Louisville and Houston draft boards.

The U.S. Supreme Court twice refused to review the case.

Attorneys for the champion have filed a 67-page lawsuit challenging the structure of the entire selective service system.

They contend Cassius was discriminated against because of the unpopularity of the Black Muslim religion and that he was not given a fair deal by Texas officials when without Negro representation.

Elks Honor Midget Hockey Team

Elks Black Hawks of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association's midget league, were guests of honor at a presentation banquet provided by their sponsors last weekend.

Teamwork and sportsmanship were stressed while players, coaches and other team officials were thanked for their efforts with the team.

Team captain Reid Mallory was presented with a trophy as the most outstanding player and also accepted the Whitney Trophy on behalf of his team. Parents of the players were also thanked for their support.

Ethier Heads Umpire Body

Al Kelleher confirmed Thursday that Harold Bawden has resigned as president of the Belleville and District Umpires' Association because of a position he holds with the Belleville and District Softball League.

Bawden is vice-president of the B. and D. softball league and this week was also named as an executive of the new Quinte and Kingston Softball Association.

Kelleher announced that Gerald "Shad" Ethier had moved up from vice-president to president of the umpires and that executive member Don "Wedge" Adams is the new vice-president. "We will elect a new executive member at our next meeting, on Wednesday".

Mets' Ron Taylor

May Need Surgery

NEW YORK (CP)—New York Mets' Ron Taylor, one of the few Canadians to break into major league baseball, is lying in a hospital bed today, hoping he won't have to have an operation that might put him out of action for the rest of the season.

Taylor, the 29-year-old Toronto native now living in Oakville, Ont., is suffering from a herniated disc.

He suffered the injury last year while a member of Houston Astros but before an exhibition game when he bent over to pick up a bunt, felt a sharp pain and wound up in a hospital for six weeks.

Taylor, who broke into the majors in 1963 with St. Louis Cardinals, figured he had gotten a new lease on his pitching career when he was traded to the Mets.

A right-hander, Taylor started the season as a short reliever. He appeared in three games, saving two of them.

Last weekend, the back injury bit him again and he entered hospital for observation.

First Five-Pin Bounced Through A Toronto Window To Pavement!

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Sports Editor

TORONTO (CP) — There was something besides snow in the air on that quiet winter day in 1907 as the lady of fashion turned toward the doorway of an exclusive jewelry store at Temperance and Yonge streets.

Through the startled matron's levelled lorgnette it's recorded an obese Indian club as it ricocheted smartly from the sidewalk.

Tommy Ryan had just invented five-pin bowling.

Oh, there were a few bugs in the game. First of all, Tommy had to put screens over the windows of his up stairs bowling alley. Then he had to find—he 1907—some old inner tubes, cut them into strips and wrap these around the fat part of the pin to cut down on that wild splatter effect.

Finally, he had to develop some sort of screening device to reduce the casualty rate among the boys.

But he did it and, before he died recently, Ryan saw the game he professional become the largest participant sport in Canada and spread to Pakistan and Venezuela, Italy and Switzerland, West Germany, Singapore, Tripoli, Honolulu and the United States.

Tommy's game probably had its origins in ancient Egypt. Sir Flinders Petrie, British Egyptologist, found implements similar to those used today when he opened a 5,300-year-old grave.

Certainly nineping was the modern ancestor.

Ninepins came to America with the Pilgrims and lasted until it was outlawed by the Pennsylvania Dutch in 1895—they suspected people were gambling on the game. Somebody got around that by adding one more pin and tenpins was born.

Doug Miller of Toronto, executive-director of the Bowling Proprietors' Association of Canada, says Tommy brought the game to Canada in 1904.

"He rented premises upstairs over an exclusive jewelry store. Then he didn't exactly know what he wanted them for but they found out when the first strike reverberated through the building."

It was a gentleman's game —no women were allowed. Executives from surrounding offices came over during their lunch-hour to roll a couple of games.

"Tommy found they were going back to work tired and late, which was bad for business."

Ryan reasoned that it would be faster to set up five pins than 10, and with a lighter ball the bowlers could get in more games with less effort.

He trimmed down tenpins on a lathe and cut down some old balls.

There were problems, however. The lighter pins flew wildly and since Tommy's alleys ended up on the window side of the room those screens became a necessity to ward off lawsuits.

Pin boys would set up, then run like mad for the other end of the building to escape the splatter of flying wood.

By 1909 leagues were springing up and Charles R. Gibson opened a string of five-pin houses which stretched from Toronto to the Lakehead and east to Winnipeg, Calgary and Victoria.

Today, the game is played in every province and territory with nearly 2,000,000 registered league bowlers—Miller says "26 per cent of the population of Canada bowls at least once a year."

The parent game of tenpins is bowled in British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Ontario, Quebec and Nova Scotia.

In Quebec the big game is duckpins—10 short, squat pins the target for a five-pin ball.

The Maritimes generally goes for candlepins—10 tall, slim pins knocked down with a ball smaller than that used for five-pins.

"It's a wild game," says Miller.

"Bowlers leave the deadwood (pins already knocked down) on the alley and aim for this for greater splatter effect. In 60 years there has never been a perfect game recorded. It's so tough, even a strike is rare."

Miller claims the game of five-pins has come full-circle in image. From its beginnings as an exclusive gentleman's game to a tough atmosphere developed with the 1930s bowling proprietor depicted as a man with the rolling form on one hip and a mickey on the other. Women seldom went near the place and discouraged their husbands from going.

Today there are women's leagues and baby-sitting service; coffee shops and carpets on the floors.

Any liquor is either smuggled into the washrooms or consumed after bowling at the neighborhood pub.

"This is something else we're trying to combat," Miller says.

"We want our better bowling houses to be able to install dining lounges and possibly a cocktail bar."

Full circle, indeed, for a sport born on Temperance Street.

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toledo Mud Hens, Columbus Jets and Richmond Braves started the 1967 International League season on the right track by winning their home openers Thursday while Jacksonville Suns split with Rochester Red Wings in a doubleheader.

Pat Dobson gave up five hits and struck out nine as Toledo edged Toronto Maple Leafs 1-0. Columbus leftfielder Coiton Clayton made a dramatic eighth-inning catch to save the Jets' 6-2 win over Buffalo Bisons.

Richmond staged a five-run uprising in the sixth inning to beat Syracuse Chiefs 8-5, capped by Dave Nicholson's three-run homer.

Jacksonville won the first game of the doubleheader 3-2, but Rochester came back in the second game to win 5-2 with Steve Demeter hitting a 13th-inning homer.

Two 68s Grab Lead

Traffic Jam Nudges Leaders

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—Two pros without a tournament victory this year share the lead in the windswept $100,000 Texas Open.

Diminutive Puerto Rican Chi Chi Rodriguez and cigar-chewing Joe Campbell shot 68s to grab the first-round lead Thursday.

But a swarm of other pros were on the heels of the leaders with 69s including Bert Yancey, Bert Weaver, Richard Crawford, Jay Hebert and Charles Coody. Nine pros shot one-under par 70s and 14 were even par.

Campbell, the 1966 Texas Open winner, said a stiff wind just reversed the course from the way it was played during warmup rounds. He said players were forced to use woods where irons were enough on Wednesday.

But the wind didn't affect Campbell's putting. He dropped birdie putts of 20, 18, eight and five feet and just missed a 35-foot eagle putt when he left it inches short.

Rodriguez, one of the smallest men on the tour at 125 pounds, was a big man with short irons around the greens. He chipped in to within two feet on the 12th hole and dropped it for a birdie. Two other birdies came after he chipped to within three feet. He also sank putts of 10 and 8 feet for two more one-par scores.

Yancey, who moved to sixth in the Professional Golfers Association tour earnings after winning the $20,000 first place check at the Dallas Open, shot a blistering 33 on the back nine.

Pros with sub-par rounds included Tournament of Champions winner Frank Beard, who shot a 70.

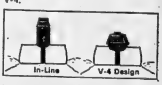
Henry Ford perfected the V-block engine

Evinrude perfected it for outboards*

HERE'S WHY: When Ford perfected the V-block, his objective was to combine high performance with low cost in a more compact engine. How successful was he? Your car probably has a V engine in it.

When Evinrude decided to make high power outboards, they had the same objective in mind. High performance in a compact, low cost outboard.

The solution: Evinrude's V-4 engine design.



In-Line • V-4 Design

The low friction, low profile V-4 design is inherently balanced. It runs smoother. Its short, rigid crank shaft has less "torsional whip" than tall in-line designs and provides greater fuel economy.

To add power, do you have to stack up cylinders in a row, and end up with a tall "skyscraper" engine?

No. Evinrude's high-torque, short stroke V-4 design delivers higher thrust over a wider speed range. Propellering is less critical, its versatile power is more efficient under varying load and speed conditions.

Since when did cylinders, pistons and crankshafts have anything to do with stability? Since Evinrude perfected the V-4.

In-Line V-4 Design

The illustration shows an in-line "skyscraper" and Evinrude's V-4 design. The lower a motor is, and the closer its mass is to the water line, the greater will be your boat's stability.

The owner of the boat that set the world's speed record for outboards gave the Evinrude V-4's low centre of gravity, as one of the main reasons for his success.

Forget the claims. Look at the facts and make this your year for Evinrude.

See all 18 models for '67 including the V-4 60, 80 and world record setting 100-S—plus 5 OMC Fastback Stern Drive engines, at your Evinrude dealer's now. He's listed in the yellow pages.

Expo Erupts as World Fair Opens

MONTREAL (CP)—The public took over Expo 67 today after Canada's world fair was launched in a crash of sound and a blaze of color.

Before midnight the turnstiles are expected to have counted 130,000 ticket-holders, replacing the diplomats and distinguished Canadians who attended Thursday's inaugural.

Promptly at the scheduled time of 9:30 a.m. EST, about 17 hours after the fair was inaugurated with pomp and ceremony, the first wave of visitors came through the turnstiles, manned by nervous-looking attendants at la Place d'Accueil.

This is one of the four main entrances to the Expo site on the St. Lawrence River.

Rockets burst in the air and the sun beat down from clear skies but there were chilly winds as a makeshift countdown took place over a public address system near the turnstiles.

An Expo official counted out the minutes prior to the 9:30 a.m. opening time, marking every second for the last 30 before 9:30.

As he tolled out the minutes a drummer of the Expo band boomed an accompaniment, and the crowd, finding it hard to control its excitement counted along laughingly.

On the dot of opening time the turnstiles at Place d'Accueil went into operation and the first of the waiting crowd dashed joyously through.

But gate-keepers at the subway station on St. Helen's Island had to jump the gun on the opening. They opened the gates at 2:45 a.m., 45 minutes ahead of time, because of the crowd pressure.

In the art centre on an early morning tour was Governor General Roland Michener. He was accompanied on his visit to the sleek brown and white building by Commissioner - General Pierre Dupuy of Expo 67.

Outside the fair grounds fountains danced and the beginnings of a first-day crowd estimated at 119,700 milled around gawking at the exhibits and, in the case of some mod-costumed girls, screaming with anticipation of the sights that lay ahead.

Late Thursday night operations control estimated that more than 60,000 had entered Expo during opening day. An exact figure was impossible because turnstile counters were not to be turned on until today.

59, 60, 61, Britain--Help! Help!

MONTREAL (CP)—A distress signal went out Thursday at the official opening ceremonies of Expo 67.

All seemed progressing smoothly as Pierre Dupuy, fair commissioner general, called the roll of participating countries and the corresponding flag was unfurled.

Sixty - one flags waved proudly, an explosion of color against a fierce blue sky.

Then, out rang the name "Britain" and the Union Jack was unfurled—upside down, the signal of a ship in trouble.

In a flurry, attendants hoisted it again right side up.

200 STARVE TO DEATH

GAYA, India (Reuters) — More than 200 persons have starved to death in the famine-stricken Gaya district of Bihar state, the Press Trust of India reported Thursday. It said a local assembly delegate, Jagadeo Singh, made this announcement at a meeting of the district's relief committee here Wednesday. He was protesting against alleged suppression of information by local officials.

What's Going On?

MONTREAL (CP)—W. R. MacLean, chief of Expo's information services, Thursday issued a memo to his staff banning "beards, Beatle hair and mini-skirts" during working hours.

Mr. MacLean based the order on the close contact between his largely mini-skirted staff and the visiting journalists.

He said that because the visiting press ranges from "very liberal individuals to very narrow ones, we strongly urge our staff to take the conservative road.

"Therefore, beards, Beatle hair and mini-skirts are unacceptable during working hours in the administration building and on the site."

The memo adds: "We like beards, Beatle hair and mini - skirts" but circumstances forced the ruling.

Change in Strategy Expected to Swing No Hanging Vote

OTTAWA (CP) — A bill to abolish capital punishment generally is expected to win approval in the Commons later this year, but Senate passage is far less certain.

While MPs have debated the issue three times since 1965, the upper house has not debated the death penalty for 11 years and only a handful of senators have put their views on record.

Opinion surveys and Commons "free votes" have shown that older people tend to favor capital punishment for murder. This factor could be significant in the Senate. Out of 97 members at present, 40 are over 70 and eight others over 65.

Senators generally adopt a tough attitude toward law enforcement. This was demonstrated again this week, when the upper house added a rider to the anti-LSD bill that would make it a crime merely to "promote" the drug in TV programs.

The Commons' next "hanging debate" promises to be different from the one a year ago because the government has changed its parliamentary strategy.

Next session, the vehicle for the debate will be a formal Criminal Code amendment drafted and introduced by the government. There has been no indication when the vote will come.

The bill will have the open backing of Prime Minister Pearson and most of his cabinet colleagues.

In the 1966 free vote, the House defeated 143 to 112 a resolution sponsored by four backbenchers and asking the government to abolish hangings. The motion would have carried if 18 retentionists had switched to the abolition side.

What particularly doomed the 1966 resolution was that 31 Liberals, mostly from Quebec, voted no. Many of these Liberals personally supported abolition but felt they should reflect the pro - hanging sentiment in their ridings.

This year they may argue that public opinion is swinging toward abolition and that voting for a government bill is the right thing for a Liberal MP to do.

In the Senate, party ties are looser and the appointed members don't have to worry about angry constituents.

When the Society for the Abolition of Capital Punishment organized a panel discussion for MPs and senators two years ago, it managed to find only two sponsors in the upper house. They were Senators Wallace McCutcheon and Paul Yuzyk, both in the opposition.

Senate Speaker Sydney Smith, one of the most influential senators, has endorsed the death penalty on the ground that the Bible sanctions it.

While politicians prepare to make up their collective mind, 18 convicted murderers face execution. All cases are dragging through appeals courts and the cabinet is expected to continue its practice of commuting all death sentences to life imprisonment.

To Your Good Health

Blow Air to Clear Fallopian Tubes

Dear Dr. Molner: Would you explain what is meant by "blowing air into your tubes"? My family doctor said I might have to have that done. I have been trying to become pregnant. — Mrs. C. H.

Dear Doctor: What happens in the air blown into the body? It caused a lot of pain. — M. L. T.

The Fallopian tubes are the ducts through which an ovum has to pass to become fertilized and then start a pregnancy.

If the tubes are obstructed (usually due to some past infection) an ovum cannot get through. The tubes are very small, and sometimes a mild infection, perhaps not noticed at the time, can result in enough swelling and scar tissue to close them.

Hence when other conditions appear normal yet conception does not occur, it is wise to check whether the tubes are open.

This is done by forcing air through — called tubal insufflation. This may in itself open up clogged tubes, or in any event will indicate whether or some obstruction exists.

This procedure is not harmful. The air rises in the abdominal cavity and can be painful, especially if trapped under the diaphragm. The air is soon absorbed, however. Then the pain is ended and there are no after-effects.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: We have a child who has been diagnosed as hyperkinetic by the school and by our own doctor who has been giving him a drug which had, very little effect. He then tried another that made him even more active. What medications were you referring to in your article? Perhaps our doctor could prescribe them. — C. L.

At least three types of drugs are in use for this, and there may be others.

Tranquilizers (some) in one type, sometimes another) help in some cases, and in other cases they do not.

Tranquilizers would seem to be a thoroughly logical means of controlling this over-activity of the child — yet strangely enough, in some cases which have a quite opposite action sometimes prove to be superior. . . .

In some instances carefully controlled doses of amphetamines are successful. These are the drugs used in "pep pills," yet for some reason they do not increase such a child's activeness, but instead they help him channel his energy into useful activity. . . .

Finally, one of the psychic energizers, suite some patients excellently. This, as with the other drugs, must be used with discretion and suitable tests to be sure adverse reaction does not occur. But this warning, of course, applies to any powerful medication.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: I had a Pap smear test this winter. The report came back but I have been asked to wait for six months for a repeat test. Why must I wait? I called and wanted a test right away but the doctor told me I must wait. This worried me. — C.H.

I don't understand what is worrying you. Didn't the doctor tell you the result of the test? If it showed any serious trouble, you would have been called back at once.

If the test indicated something mildly out of line but not dangerous, it would bear watching six months later but a repeat test immediately would not add anything.

Finally, a routine Pap test every six months is a good policy for women over 30, and is recommended by many physicians. You have obviously yourself unnecessarily.

Crash Left Tragedy in Its Wake

Last Night . . .

Darkness emphasizes stark grimness of crash scene here observed by firemen, nearby residents as wreckage still smoulders less than an hour after aircraft's fatal plunge in farmer's field.

. . . This Morning

Daylight and calmness of dawn, rural scene, lends deceptive tranquility to crash site. Hours before it was a landscape of violence, sudden death as giant aircraft went into fatal plunge.

Crash Kills Six Airmen

off the scene from outsiders.

Dr. Scott said he was concerned that nothing be disturbed until the experts moved in to seek clues on the cause of the crash.

"There are little pieces all over the ground," he said. "I don't know what they mean, but someone will."

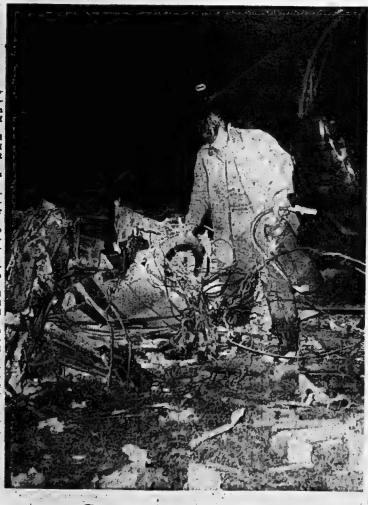
Reporters and photographers were banned from the area.

A helicopter from the nearby base touched down with disaster kits and blankets to cover the bodies.

Airmen were formed into search squads to comb the surrounding fields, tracing the pattern of the tragedy.

Finally, airforce chaplains arrived with senior air officers in view the scene.

Dr. Scott ordered the dead men taken to Belleville General Hospital for a post mortem and formal identification.



After the snow fence was in place, provincial police and airforce security officers ringed the area through the night.

The Hercules has been in service with the airforce's Transport Command for about five years, sharing the bulk - carrier workload with the Yukon. The four - engined turbo - prop aircraft costing $2,600,000, is noted for its ability to make short takeoff and landings.

About three months ago, a Hercules crashed in Saskatchewan, but its crew escaped serious injury. It was the first such mishap for the model.

Last night's incident involved a Hercules E — a newer plane with longer range.

It was also the first serious mishap in many years for any type of aircraft using the Trenton terminal.

Caution the Key Word

Airforce firemen stand guard after using hand-extinguisher to put down pocket of fire in Hercules wreckage.

Tense Faces Tell of Tragedy

First senior police officers on scene — OPP's Detective Sgt. Lloyd Lyle and Inspector Earl Wellesley (centre) — show common reaction as they get rundown from air force guards.

First-day Crowd Floods Into Expo

Man and His World

Montreal police officers stop Bill Stout, 22, of New York city, bearing a black flag and leading a group of demonstrators at the entrance to Jacques Cartier bridge, which provides access to one of the Expo entrances. The marchers carried a black coffin-shaped box which the group planned to present to Expo 67 as a Vietnam pavilion. (CP Photo).

MONTREAL (CP)—Expo 67 today breezed for a mammoth surge of weekend visitors after first-day crowds at the big fair exceeded officials' widest expectations.

The happy crowds that streamed through the turnstiles from Friday's 9:30 a.m. opening kept coming until well after dark. When the last available count had been made, it totalled 310,000 visitors. The original estimate of first-day visitors was 119,700.

Brilliant sunshine and 55-degree weather with light wind played a part in the large week-day crowd. With continued good weather the original estimate of 220,000 for today is likely to be also exceeded.

Even the figure given out Friday night by fair public relations officials probably was low because the electronic mechanism for keeping track of visitors broke down and the fair had to rely largely on head-counting.

The fair, formally opened by Governor-General Roland Michener Thursday, began its first public day in a blaze of rockets and bombs.

But the day had its hitches.

First, seven United States anti-war demonstrators, their shirts emblazoned with slogans, entered the geodesic dome of the U.S. pavilion and promptly sat down. Watched by police, they made no overt move that would cause them to be ejected.

Pavilion officials offered them chairs and soft drinks as three more demonstrators joined the original group. They remained in the pavilion foyer until it closed at 9:30 p.m. and then left peacefully.

The other hitch caused far more worry. The Gyrotron, a $2,000,000 ride at La Ronde, broke down in mid - operation and auxiliary power had to be used to take out trapped passengers.

The spectacular 215-foot Gyrotron, one of the favorites of amusement riders because it carries them through simulated outer space and into the maw of a simulated volcano, will be out of action until at least noon Sunday.

Last word Friday night was that an engineer was being flown from London to get the machine back on the rails.

The fair put on a big show for first-day visitors. Troubadours and marching bands met them in the streets. A pied-piper with multiple musical instruments was gaily followed by children. Jets of the RCAF's Golden Centennaires swooped and rolled overhead, tossing purple smoke from their tailpipes.

Biggest attraction among national exhibits for the visitors seemed to be the U.S. pavilion whose 20-storey dome towers above other buildings.

Lineups also formed outside the Russian pavilion, a three-minute walk away from the U.S. display. The $15,000,000 Soviet structure, four storeys high and encased in glass, was an eye-catching from the outside as the space exhibits inside.

Germany, with its stretched-skin roof and its priceless display of scientific exhibits, seemed to be next.

The British pavilion, a 200-foot white tower topped by a three-dimensional Union Jack, had lineups too.

(For other Expo stories see first page, second section.)

Unified Forces Approved

OTTAWA (CP)—The Senate gave third and final reading to the armed forces unification bill Friday but only after Conservative senators tore verbal strips off the bill and Defence Minister Hellyer.

Third reading was carried without a vote.

Senator Alfred Brooks, Conservative leader, attacked Mr. Hellyer for maintaining an attitude that was arrogant and stubborn during the Commons study of the bill.

"I don't see Paul Hellyer wearing a green suit!"

Daylight Time Starts Sunday

Bellevillo citizens, in common with many, but not all, other Canadians, soon will their clocks one hour ahead at 2 a.m. Sunday. Daylight Saving Time starts then and lasts until October 29.

Dunlap Retiring

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's top officer in the North American Air Defence Command, Air Marshal C. R. (Larry) Dunlap, 59, will retire from the RCAF Aug. 25, Defence Minister Hellyer announced Friday.

He will be succeeded at NORAD by Air Marshal William Ross MacBrien, 53, who has been assistant chief of staff at Supreme Headquarters, Allied Powers Europe (SHAPE) since 1962.

China Calls Offer of Aid Dirty Trick

TOKYO (AP) — Calling it a dirty trick, Communist China today rejected a move by the Johnson-administration to allow sales of American drugs to fight epidemics reported on the Chinese mainland.

An article in the official Peking People's Daily under the headline, "God of plague peddles vaccine" accuses the United States of trying to spread rumors about epidemics in order to harm China's relations with its neighbors.

It says the United States was making "extremely vicious anti-Chinese propaganda" intended to discredit the Chinese people "and pressed heinous U.S. imperialism as a god of mercy to deceive the people of the world."

"Bless us! These U.S. imperialist panjandrums have suddenly taken pity on us Chinese people and shown concern for our health!" it says. "Should we not weep tears of gratitude? Unfortunately . . . people can see at once that it is a dirty trick and nothing less."

Police Certain Girl Abducted

BURLINGTON (CP) — The search for 16-year-old Marianne Schnett switched Friday from near the girl's home in the Kilbridge area of north Burlington to the Speyside area north of Milton after a shoe belonging to the girl was found on a highway.

The shoe was identified by the missing girl's mother, Mrs. Milton Schnett.

Marianne was last seen Thursday afternoon talking to a stranger in a dark, late model Renault station wagon after school.

Sergeant-Major Carl Wildfang of the provincial police, leader of the search in the Speyside area, said there is no doubt the girl was abducted.

Springtime in Rockies Brings 29-inch Snowfall

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP)—Farms isolated, scores of people stranded in snowdrifts, an expectant mother nearing, livestock without food—this is the picture today as springtime stayed away from the foothills of the Rockies.

Storm-lashed southern Alberta was still reeling under a wet snowfall early today, adding to 29 inches that had fallen between Thursday afternoon and midnight Friday.

Except for rescue vehicles, virtually nothing moved. A rescue train early today picked up about 20 motorists who had been stranded near Stirling, 19 miles south of here, since 9 a.m. Friday.

Snowmobiles battled drifts to reach another 25 persons stranded north of the city.

An expected mother was believed stranded with her husband somewhere in a 30-mile stretch between their farm and a hospital at Taber, 40 miles east of Lethbridge.

Friday's storm battered an area still recovered from a 27-inch snowfall last week.

Cars were stranded, planes grounded, buses halted, farms and ranches isolated and livestock without food.

The snow began falling at 3 p.m. Thursday and was still falling today with a forecast of more snow and wind.

The storm, driven by 50-mile-an-hour winds, struck an area from the Crowsnest Pass in the rockies to Swift Current, Sask. About 80 per cent of farms and ranches in southern Alberta were isolated.

The rescue train carried six RCMP officers, six St. John Ambulance men and a doctor. The condition of those it was trying to reach was not known.

The heaviest snowfall Friday hit the Lethbridge area where the temperature has hovered around the freezing mark.

As many as 20 persons were stranded at the Lethbridge airport and spent the night there.

A group of snowmobile owners banded together to offer emergency transportation, but most of the group were sent to the rescue mission north of the city.

Coroner Turns Over Probe Of Crash to RCAF Board

Coroner Dr. J. Russell Scott of Belleville said yesterday that he had turned over to a Royal Canadian Air Force Board of Inquiry the investigation into Thursday night's crash of the C-130 Treston based Hercules which killed six crew members.

The big four engined turboprop aircraft crashed and exploded shortly after 8:30 Thursday night, strewing wreckage along a quarter of a mile long path of the farm of Clayton Sickle 1½ miles northeast of the air station. The crash took place during landing practice.

So far no explanation for the crash has been given.

The town of the air base received no communication from CORONER

Fishing Vessels Missing

HALIFAX (CP)—Five persons were missing at sea today in the wake of a bitter wind and snow storm along the Atlantic coast.

The air-sea rescue centre said four persons were missing in the 35-foot Cape Island fishing vessel Lena G., which left Lorneyville, N.B., Friday to sail across the Bay of Fundy to Digby, N.S. Seas were running heavy in the bay today but the centre said a search for the missing craft was under way.

Albert Hook, 26, was missing in a canoe in nearby St. Margaret's Bay.

Several other ships were reported in trouble after the storm.

Little hope was held for the 4,000-ton Liberian freighter Costarican Trader, which grounded stern-first on rocks near the approaches to Halifax harbor Friday.

General's Talks Likely Prelude to Escalation

WASHINGTON (AP)—Critics predicted today further escalation of the Vietnam fighting while supporters foresaw a stiff fening of home-front resolve as the result of Gen. William C. Westmoreland's Washington rounds.

Addressing Congress, briefing governors and conferring personally with key legislators Friday, the U.S. commander in Vietnam won praise from both opponents and supporters of President Johnson's policies for his direction of the military effort.

But it was apparent Westmoreland had failed to turn the tide of crwelling congressional criticism directed at Johnson's intensification of the war and at his action in bringing the general home to report at a crucial time in the battle for public opinion.

Westmoreland won a standing ovation when he told Congress: "Backed at home by resolve, confidence, patience, determination and continued support, we will prevail in Vietnam over Communist aggression."

Such influential members as Speaker John W. McCormack of the House of Representatives and Democratic Chairman Richard B. Russell of the Senate armed services committee thought this appeal would "increase the spirit of resolve" at home to see the war through to victory.

House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford applauded Westmoreland's call for unity at home.

Mike Mansfield Senate Democratic leader who has opposed escalation of the war, told reporters he thinks that on the basis of Westmoreland's report more men and money will be poured into the war. He said he will not be surprised if more than 500,000 U.S. troops are required, compared with the 470,000-man level now scheduled by year's end.

Democratic Senator Joseph S. Clark of Pennsylvania, a war-policy critic, complained Westmoreland said nothing about the possible reaction of China and the Soviet Union to the expected escalation in the fighting.

The general made only fleeting reference in his speech to criticism in the U.S. of the war, saying the Communists believe "our Achilles heel is our resolve."

Half the Fun Is In Getting There!

Belleville high school students take a leaf from the travel agents' book as they have a ball preparing the big gymnasium at Centennial Secondary School for last night's Centennial dance with decorative schemes including a make-believe river boat and other period accoutrements. ## 'Portraits' Profit $781

All of the many special Centennial events held in Belleville so far, have received enthusiastic response from Belleville and Quinte district residents, special programs have played to sell-out audiences each time.

Portraits of the Past, a pageant of early Canadian costumes presented on March 6 was no exception. Proceeds of the event, amounting to $781.63, have been turned over to Belleville's centennial celebrations committee by Mrs. Eloisy Burr, chairman of the committee charged with staging the show.

Portraits of the Past, a program, designed mostly for the women, was prepared by the provincial centennial committee and made available to communities throughout the province. However, local committees undertook all the details and costs of presenting the program in the community.

"In all our centennial special events, we try to break even", said centennial chairman Mayor J. R. Ellis, "and to receive a cheque of this amount is wonderful. Mrs. Burr and her whole committee did an outstanding job.

Armory Details Coming

PICTON — Town council is waiting to hear officially all details on the resale of Picton armory bought from the federal government less than a year ago for $7,500.

The deal has been closed with Standard Trust Co., Toronto, but the sum is undisclosed.

Last week council met in caucus and authorized Mayor Harvey McFarland to negotiate the sale, Councillor Andrew Jarvis confirmed.

He said the move would be fully explained to council next month.

Last year the town purchased the Main Street building — vacated by the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment — to use for administrative offices and recreation.

However, because of the lack of activity there during the winter, this scheme was abandoned.

the aircraft prior to the crash trouble. During its training mission the plane carried out a normal stop and go on No. 6 runway.

Air force officials said the craft had climbed normally and commenced to make a left turn to begin its descent. From this control tower thos on duty saw a ball of fire which disappeared almost immediately.

The flight was part of a C 130 E pilot initial conversion course which began March 30 and was to end May 18. The course was designed to train pilots - craft crews in the handling of turbo-prop planes.

The first session of the air force board of enquiry headed by Wing Commander H. R. Graham will be held today. Other members of the inquiry board are S-L J. R. Bowey, F-L G. Meerbig and F-L J. A. McLure.

Squadron Leaders D. W. Owens and F. S. Smith of the Canadian Forces department of flight safety arrived in Trenton Friday to survey the crash scene.

In turning over the investigation of the fatal air crash Dr. Frost said he will sit on the inquiry and will not make a decision on whether an inquest will be held until the RCAF inquiry is completed.

The big $2,500,000 Hercules, noted for its ability to make short take-offs and landings, apparently brushed a high voltage power line as it went down. The explosion and fire were seen by Quinte residents for up to 50 miles.

Two Trenton-based instructors — F/L. Lt. D. Jack Buchner, 36, and F/L. Lt. Adrian Vogt, 28 — were killed in the crash.

The other four crewmen came from Ottawa, Winnipeg, Greenwood, N.S., and Kingston, N.S.

GETTING WITH IT

SAIGON (AP) — Mougamadoussoutchaye Abdul Cader, an Indian living in South Vietnam, decided his name was rather too unwieldly. In newspaper advertisements, he proclaimed himself simply Rahman.

LIBERALS Donald Joss, Hastings riding association president Leslie McLaren, Robert Temple, and association vice-president Donald Bristol, discuss party strategy at Hastings riding organization meeting at Tweed.

Hastings Riding Liberals Delay In Naming Provincial Candidate

Former warden of Hastings county and one time reeve of Tyendinaga township, Leslie McLaren of Melrose will head the Liberal party organization for the new provincial riding of Hastings.

Mr. McLaren was named at a riding organization meeting held last night at St. Carthagh's Church Hall at Tweed.

Vice presidents are Donald Bristol of Madoc and Patrick J. Fitzgerald of North Hastings. Douglas Sills was named secretary treasurer.

The meeting, attended by 40 party members, was called by Daniel Casey, provincial organizer, as both an organization and nominating convention. However the decision was to not name a candidate and the executive will choose a later date for the nomination.

The new Hastings provincial riding takes in all of the county with the exception of Belleville and Trenton and the township of Sidney.

In accepting the association presidency Mr. McLaren admitted that Hastings had never been good stamping grounds for the Liberals.

"But this can be changed", he said, noting that people were getting "fed up" with ever increasing government expenditures and higher taxation.

The same thought was echoed by guest speaker Robert Temple, of Belleville, former Liberal M.P. for Hastings South.

Mr. Temple said the Conservative government at Queen's Park had lost all touch with the grass roots voters with the provincial agricultural minister even refusing to meet with some delegations.

On the other hand, Ontario Agricultural Minister Stewart's Liberal counterpart at Ottawa, Joseph J. Greene, was anxious to meet with the people and learn of their problems, he claimed.

Mr. Temple said government spending on education must be increased to take the load off the property owner and said that within four years of a Liberal government election the Provincial contribution to education would be increased to 80 per cent.

Government spending in other fields was attacked by Mr. Temple. He said also that Ontario should have an ombudsman to guard the rights of the private individual whose rights and privileges were being taken away by boards and commissions.

There were more than 1300 such boards and commissions in this province, all with tremendous power and many without the right of appeal, he said.

Needed also was decentralization of industry.

"Hastings for too long has been taken for granted," he said. "It is a tough riding, but it can be won."

Also heard at the meeting was Donald Joss, Liberal candidate for the new Quinte riding.

Mr. Joss praised the new Liberal leader Robert Nixon whose qualities, he said, had those of Premier Roberts seaton "by the proverbial mile."

"He is young, sincere and honest, and that is what we need in Ontario to win," he said.

Mr. Joss said the conservative government at Toronto didn't understand the problems of rural Ontario and didn't care about the ridings outside of Toronto.

OPP Warns Public to Lock Cars

NAPANEE — Many people whose cars are stolen have themselves to blame, the Napanee detachment of the O.P.P. pointed out in its latest news release. People stepping into a store to collect parcels or make small purchases will frequently leave the motor running. This is an open invitation for a potential thief. Not only should the motor always be turned off, but also "regardless of the time limit that the driver is away from the vehicle it should always be locked to prevent theft", the report warns.

Safety checks on cars have been stepped up, as was warned, with 30 warnings issued for minor mechanical defects in the 92 cars checked. Also, officers of this detachment laid 22 charges under the Highway Traffic Act.

Audio Visual Centre Latest Venture

The newest venture in education in Belleville can be seen — and heard — at the city's newest high school.

In fact, the audio-visual resource centre at Centennial Secondary School is one of it's the only one in Ontario outside Metropolitan Toronto.

Function of the centre sounds simple. It purchases, maintains and distributes all visual and sound equipment used as educational aids by the school's teachers.

However, with the emphasis more and more on electronic patterns in education, the department actually calls for operation only by a full-time specialist.

At the moment, the Centennial centre is being operated on a part time basis by electronics teacher David Duffus, who started the whole project last September, when the school opened.

It's his responsibility to look after film and slide projectors, tape recorders and record players which now are a routine part of teaching.

Mr. Duffus is the centre's purchasing agent and repair man — a job that keeps him at school long after other teachers have departed for the day.

But the demands on his time have not dampened his enthusiasm for the project.

"Right now the whole thing is geared to the teaching patterns of tomorrow," Mr. Duffus explains.

That tomorrow will see control electronic equipment playing a prominent role in the classroom so schools must get ready to handle the job efficiently — and economically.

As a separate department within the school complex, future boards of education will find themselves paring costs while achieving the maximum benefits from technological education aids.

"Toronto and Scarboro are the only other places in Ontario that have centralized equipment maintenance and purchasing in one department," says Mr. Duffus. "And they have found it pays. It saves money — and it's more efficient."

Another direct benefit is the need for less equipment. Having teaching aids located in an electronic lending library, instead of scattered around the classrooms, means supply and demand can be placed on an organized basis and teachers can plan their lessons accordingly.

"Right now we have some equipment booked up to November," says Mr. Duffus.

"The teachers like this kind of system because the equipment is readily available and always reliable. Having it coordinated means you can keep it in top working condition."

The sophistication, — and cost — of electronic education aids calls for a specialist, says Mr. Duffus.

"It's precision equipment and you need someone with a lot of special knowledge — not many of the equipment but the market. You've got to know what decisions to make on purchasing."

The way the Centennial centre is organized, it now could administer the electronic-aid education needs of the whole city.

However, most schools of the future likely will have to include such a department in its administration believes Mr. Duffus.

Giving imminent impetus to such beliefs is the fact educational television is just around the corner.

Mr. Duffus believes the medium will be introduced in Ontario's education system in two years — and he doesn't merely mean TV sets will be installed in the classroom.

There will be video-taping to be done, so that programs can be beamed at other school schedules. There will be maintenance — and purchasing decisions, for cost increasingly becomes the big factor.

Mr. Duffus estimates it could cost up to $25,000 to install television in the schools — and this is exclusive of the sets.

"It means all this kind of thing has to be organized inside the school," he says.

The Sounds of Learning

Brains of educational audio system are located at Centennial in this control room, explained to students by electronics teacher Dave Duffus. Next circuit to be carried through box will likely be television.

Projecting the Future

Education increasingly is depending on audio-visual aids. At Centennial co-ordination equipment centre, Heather McCormick, 16, and Sheryl Waite, 18, check overhead projectors.

Serious Crime at Minimum Says Police Chief's Report

TRENTON — "The absence of serious crime in comparatively last year speaks well for the community and also reflects the preventive measures carried out by the police department to combat crime," comment Police Chief F. J. Rutherford in his annual report for 1966.

"The movements of known criminals have been closely watched and matters of a more serious nature on investigations have been cleared quickly with the use of our province - wide TELEX system", the report goes on, "with the change in attitude of persons perpetuating crime, police methods must also change."

Chief Rutherford also paid tribute to the citizens of the town for their cooperation with the department, interest and support.

The 13-man force serving under him was commended by the chief for the efficient manner in which they had carried out its duties.

During the year, 2164 cases were brought before the court, as compared with 1,737 in 1965. Criminal cases totalled 222, (254 in 1965). The highest total in this category was 40 cases of theft. Four cases of assault against police officers were recorded. No one was charged with vagrancy in 1966. One person was charged with possessing lottery tickets.

Under the Highways Traffic Act, 1,211 cases were brought before the court, (919 in 1965). Highest in this category was speeding . . . 694 cases. Eighty five persons were charged with making an unnecessary noise while in control of a vehicle.

Liquor control charges were down last year from 1965 . . . 299 as compared with 352. The biggest "jump" was for first offenders on a charge of having liquor in a public place.

During the year, Safety Officer Gordon Steenburg supervised classes in traffic safety and examined students. This program is sponsored by the Trenton Rotary Club.

A school safety program was carried out, tying in with the Trenton Kiwanis Club Elmer Safety program. Constable Jack Graham assisted in this work. Five school children suffered minor injury from motor vehicle accidents during the year.

During the year, three hunter safety programs were held, with 125 persons in attendance.

The police department also supervises the work of the school guards and cover for them when they are ill.

The department was operated with a $800 surplus last year. Budget estimates for the year were $143,070; $142,266 was the actual expenditure.

The police chief's report has been submitted to the Trenton Police Commission whose members are Judge J. C. Anderson, Mag. Wrate W. R. Philp and Mayor James MacDonald.

Trenton Crash

Air Transport Command is Canada's third largest air carrier after the two main commercial carriers, Air Canada and Canadian Pacific Airlines.

As such it fulfills a leading role in Canadian aviation, serving the military needs of the country at home and overseas.

Thursday night's crash of a Hercules transport plane near Trenton was the command's first fatal accident since it came into being in 1946.

Six men aboard the training flight died when the aircraft came down more than a mile northeast of the end of the main runway at Trenton.

The Quinte area is saddened by this tragedy and by the loss of the plane's crew members. Meanwhile, a board of inquiry is investigating the crash. In aviation safety is the cardinal rule. Fatalities do occur, however, and it will be the function of the inquiry to try and pinpoint the causes of the disaster.

Life's Risks

While training on the 80-ft. tower that is part of the program of the Canadian Forces tattoo is to continue, Army authorities at Camp Picton have announced an inquiry into the mishaps involving two servicemen who fell from the tower.

After the second accident the wife of the injured man complained: "the whole thing is stupid . . . at least training should be carried out with a net."

Her feelings are understandable. However, it seems the tower is a routine training device in army training, and while the accidents are unfortunate the possibility of them occurring is always present.

It was ever thus. Man progresses in this world, in any endeavor, to the extent that he is prepared to take risks. The efforts toward accomplishing a manned flight to the moon are a case in point. Four specimen have died — three Americans and one Russian — thus far, yet the moon probe continues.

Man has always flirted with danger and with death. It is part of his inner being to take risks. In early times it took the form of persecution of others for political reasons — as well as for sheer perverseness. Throwing Christians to the lions in the Roman arena is a classic example from back in time. Then there were the days when knights were bold and indulged in the slightly more sublimated activity of jousting — or mock combat on horseback and using lances.

Today men still climb mountains, and stalwarts like Sir Francis Chichester sail single-handed around the world, braving the fearsome waters off Cape Horn, while closer to home a group of young Canadian students drive an old horse across the continent from Vancouver so they can see Expo.

And in the skies again, the Golden Centennaires prediction flying team, successors to the Golden Hawks, show what split-second timing can do at high speeds.

In this, as in every other age it is man against the elements — man against himself, and who is to say that engaging in such activities is foolish because of the risks involved. Just as man is born to trouble as the sparks fly upward so too must he be prepared to walk into the valley of death.

Escape from China

Ma Szu-tsung, a noted China cultural leader and violinist, who has reached the United States with his wife and son and daughter, after an exciting escape from his homeland, reveals a glimpse of what it is like for an intellectual living in Communist China today.

"There is no hope for people like me in China," said the 54-year-old musician who was one of 12 escapees in a tugboat which abandoned after those on board had reached Hong Kong last January. His wife and daughter left China by another undisclosed route.

Ma told of concentration camps where he underwent "thought reform" and of the indignities which the Red Guard students and revolutionary teachers inflicted on his mind and body.

Ma says he originally welcomed the revolution, but not any more. He expressed disillusionment with the ascendancy of the Red Guard movement and remarked: "It is not a cultural revolution, it is a political revolution. They burn all the books and all prominent persons in the cultural field are being persecuted. I am very fortunate. Many prominent writers, who could not escape, have committed suicide."

This is a seldom-glimpsed insight into the inner workings of the Communist system in China today. The concentration camps and other trappings of Communism in the Soviet-bloc countries have been bared often enough, but little has been revealed about the same type of political repression in China.

Ottawa Offbeat

It's "Gloomsville" as Tax Deadline Raises Pressures

OTTAWA — This being the third last day of the closing month of the end of the Federal fiscal year — with just another 48 hours in which to write that cheque for the Receiver General — it is not exactly a time to let Joy be unconfined.

As you fill out those "simplified" forms for what Revenue Minister Benson assures you are his "Understanding Taxmen," take time out to ponder some of the things that are costing you this money.

Not the things, mind you, that help to keep the state in business, such as the services, subsidies and research the Agriculture Department provides the farmers . . . or the pensions and family allowances the Health and Welfare Department pays out . . . not even the mail the Post Office Department delivers between strikes and threats of strikes.

Those things are basic, like the Defence Department that fills, or is supposed to fill our commitments in men and arms to NATO and NORAD, not to mention our own national security.

What is not so basic — what, in fact, seems to be extras, special added attractions, or fringe benefits, so to speak, for your tax dollars — are some of the things you find in the Privy Council offices.

To contemplate some of them as you write out that cheque for the Income Tax Division of the National Revenue Department is scarcely calculated to do much for your blood pressure.

None of them, to be sure, individually involve great sums of tax dollars — not when the big Federal spenders are asking you to pony up with something approaching $12,000,000,000 that is twelve billion — to cover their operating costs.

Rather, instead, relatively negligible amounts of a few hundred thousand or several millions or so — but so less irritating for all their modesty.

Take for example the Privy Council's spending grab-bag.

Item: The $30,000 bill for peeking into the life and times of the bloods Bavarian spy-girl Gerda Munsinger.

Item: The $2,445,000—up from last year's $1,208,000 — being given the Company of Young Canadians which plastered itself into the public eye by the anti-American demonstrations of some of its members and the four - letter obscenities with which it flavoured one of its newsletters. Obviously, if the Privy Council Powers - That - Be thought sufficiently well of the company's performance to double its appropriation of your tax dollars.

Item: Another $1,000,000 plus for the Royal Commission on Bilingualism and Biculturalism that already has spent millions trying to prove that provincially, we're bilingual.

Item: The upwards of $400,000 being given 61 artists, musicians, poets, sculptors and other cultural types to wander the world on living allowances running to $1,200 plus travel expenses, in search of the Muse.

But let it be the cost of feeding and watering the International army of VIPs coming to Expo that'll catch your fancy.

They are all coming to Expo and to Ottawa, and most of them are going to Gladney City and then to two other provincial capitals of their choice.

At your expense.

Such financially-strapped people as General de Gaulle, Emperor Haile Selassie, Fidel Castro, and some other 60 or so assorted princes, potentates, sultans, pashas, dictators and prime ministers.

For their comfort and convenience, in addition to food, board and bar privileges, most of them in Rideau Hall, you are providing:

Item: A fleet of 18 new Cadillacs with 30 chauffeurs.

Item: A seven-bedroom Official Residence that has taken nearly $800,000 to prime and polish, including $300,000 for seven

CORRECTION

In this column on Thursday reference was made to an address given by Major John W. Foote, VC, at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, on April 27, 1917. It was stated that Major Foote, formerly of Madoc, was the only Canadian to win the Victoria Cross in the last war. This was incorrect. The Canadian Almanac and Directory lists at least 12 Canadian recipients of the Victoria Cross during the last war. Among them was Lt. Col. Charles Merritt, of Belleville and Vancouver, who like Major Foote, was a regimental officer with the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry, won the award for gallantry at Diepge. Three other Canadians won the VC while serving with the British forces. There may be still others, but there are at least 15 for which dates are available of the acts of gallantry involved.

Quebec's Family Allowance Bill

Montreal La Presse

The policy of a "little delight for this one, a little delight for that one," so dear to Mr. Duplessis, seems to have been revived on several levels by the present government. Some members and cabinet ministers are not all shy about explaining how they paternally distribute favors in their constituencies. . . . And there is no shortage of Quebecers who like this return to the good old days.

One who doesn't like it is Rene Levesque. And he let it be known in colorful terms while criticizing a bill establishing a new system of family allowances for Quebec. According to the former minister, $80,000,000 was said to be spread among all age groups when it would have been more logical to favor families with children of school age. And he stated that the law, as framed, represented a catastrophic use of the people's money because the allowances will be paid in inverse proportion to the real expenses of families. . . .

In their defence, Premier Johnson and Health Minister Cloutier answered that Mr. Levesque was comparing lemons with bananas. They added that a school allowance bill will be introduced in the legislative assembly within a few weeks and will complement the family allowance bill. . . .

Mr. Johnson said that, unlike the previous government, he decided not to force some 450,000 citizens who needed aid to wait for Ottawa's decisions, and that he himself had laid the basis of an effective fight against poverty.

So much the better for those people on whom will fall this manna plucked from the pockets of the more favored! But those who are called upon regularly to pick up the tab hope the day will come when there will be devised more dynamic solutions than allowances of all kinds to increase the welfare of the population. Why not new industries, for example, to make Quebecers something other than welfare-assisted people?

Shifting Continents

Christian Science Monitor

Fossil records, coupled with the continental drift theory, have led one geologist to speculate that southern Florida was once part of Africa and eastern New England once part of Europe. Scotland and portions of Norway and Ireland may have at one time been part of North America. And the western coast of Africa part of Georgia and the Carolinas. If they were, it was some 300 million years ago.

According to the continental drift theory, America and Europe are now being pushed apart at the (somewhat less than terrifying) speed of a couple of inches a year. We suppose that all this won't make too much difference in today's inhabitants of these regions.

"We doubt if many New Englanders will lose much sleep over the possibility that their Pilgrim ancestors, having fled the Old World, never actually reached the New. Or that Plymouth Rock, given its head start, arrived from Europe some little time before the families on the Mayflower made their historic journey.

We doubt, too, if the Boston Irish will find it too disconcerting when it dawns on them that returning to the old sod probably means journeying from Ireland to Boston. It has been our experience that while a few grass stains can cause quite a stir, such matters as the shifting of continents people manage to take pretty much in stride.

An Average Day's Work

Regina Leader-Post

The average man spends eight hours a day on his job, plus another three-quarters of an hour on coffee breaks. He uses from 40 minutes to an hour and a half getting to and from work. He also allows 15 minutes a day to fixing things around the house, and another 10 minutes to helping his wife with the housework. He sleeps 7.6 hours a night.

That, at any rate is the picture of the average man contained in a United States census study of 2,120 persons.

The average wife in the U.S. on the other hand, spend 3½ hours doing housework. Of that time, 30 percent is devoted to cooking and dishwashing, 40 percent to cleaning, 15 percent to laundry and five percent to miscellaneous chores.

It was not indicated whether the latter category included time spent trying to roust the average man off the couch to get his 10 minutes out of him.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

April 29, 1947 . . .

The little coal-mining village of Faro, Alta. was obliterated 64 years ago today—in 1903 — when about 70,000,000 tons of rock crashed down on it from Turtle Mountain. Only a handful of people survived the landslide and 66 were known killed. Buildings, including boulders as big as houses, fell in a pile 1,200 feet high and 4,000 feet wide.

1778—Captain James Cook discovered Botany Bay on the Australian east coast.

1881—131 passengers and crew were drowned aboard the Tararua off New Zealand.

April 30, 1947 . . .

But the U.S., concerned about those bonds becoming too strong and pro-Fascist, put in the last word as Johnson and Kitsinger explored a number of mutual trouble spots.

West Germany's primary fear is that the U.S. desire for better relations with the Soviet Union will scuttle all hopes of reuniting East and West Germany.

It fears, Kleinplatz has said, that the proposed Soviet-U.S. treaty guaranteeing non-proliferation will freeze West Germany into an inferior position in commercial benefits from the atom.

It fears reduction of the six U.S. divisions in Europe, and worries that this may include some aircraft, too.

The U.S. wants West Germany to co-operate in curbing the dollar drain, in setting up new international monetary machinery or the U.S., rather than French, model, in more foreign aid and in trade liberalization.

Most of these run counter to de Gaulle's policies and that leaves West Germany in the middle.

Poignant Willows

Montreal Star

Few people fail to recognize the drooping, yellow branches in the early leafing of the weeping willow. A species of the family (called Salicacea) is said to be a sign of unlucky love since sorrow dating back to the legend that Christ spent his last night in the shadow of a willow in Gethsemane.

Yet, it is the twists of willow bearing the familiar catkins that strike the most responsive chord. A small bouquet with them on a vendor's cart can be forriven for dreaming a little about the spring. There was nothing in the summer like a skinny dip in a pool made by a river bend bedecked with graceful willows. The pussy willows of spring evoke memories of the sounds of cuckoos' water, frogs in full chorus and scolding crows.

A mother receiving a cluster of the slender limbs with the tiny, silken catkins like timid miniature armadillos on far dear life, may remember they are symbols of a sun-warmed era when everyone was inclined to a languid disregard for the tyranny of time.

LBJ's Brief Meeting With NATO Leaders in Europe

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — Lyndon Johnson returned Wednesday from his first trip to Europe as U.S. president—the special beneficiary of a final contribution to Atlantic unity from Konrad Adenauer.

Adenauer's funeral afforded one of those rare opportunities for NATO leaders to meet and talk, however briefly.

For Johnson, it seemed particularly opportune and perhaps set-aside from the respect he had for the doughty old Rhinelander—explains the speed with which he announced his intention to attend the funeral personally.

It was a chance to get foot in Europe as president, something he long had wanted to do. More important, it was a good opportunity to pay special tribute to a country which has been raising special problems for the U.S. in recent months.

As well, it could be done with a much-reduced chance of encountering the anti - Vietnam war hostility that Vice-President Hubert Humphrey faced recently.

That opposition ruled out a general tour of Europe by the U.S. president.

Humphrey encountered less hostility in West Germany than in some countries, such as France. As well, the solemn nature of the Adenauer funeral made demonstrations against U.S. Vietnam policy unlikely.

U.S. attention centred on the German aspects of the president's Bonn visit.

Presidents de Gaulle and Johnson did meet, for the first time since the 1963 funeral here of John F. Kennedy, but there wasn't much they could—or apparently did—say to each other.

Relations remained on tolerably smooth terms but France and the U.S. for it to have been otherwise.

De Gaulle talked at length with Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger, indicating the new West German leader's rehabilitation of bonds between France and West Germany that were first forged by de Gaulle and Adenauer.

It's Easter In Russia

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Church bells rang out all over Russia Friday as thousands of Orthodox Christians began their colorful three-day Easter festival.

Main celebrations begin Saturday when hundreds of elderly women will flock to church to have their specially-baked Easter cakes blessed by priests with a splash of holy water.

The Russian Church regards the Easter festival as the main one in its calendar. Orthodox Christians here always have laid more stress on the suffering Christ of the cross than the innocent infant symbolized by Christmas.

In Moscow, Patriarch Alexius will direct the service in the neo-classical Yelokhovsky Cathedral, which can accommodate 2,000 worshippers. Hundreds more will stand outside.

EARLY LOCAL SCHOOLS (Conclusion)

(This article) covers a wide field, from earliest times indeed . . . so far as Belleville is concerned."—from souvenir edition of The Daily Intelligencer, August, 1925.

* * *

"In 1871," concludes Mr. W. J. Diamond, "for nearly half a century the Secretary of the Board of Education in Belleville, writing for The Daily Intelligencer in 1925 an account of Belleville teachers and schools during the nineteenth century, "the present Board of Education of the city of Belleville was formed by union of the High School Trustees and the Board of Public School Trustees.

"When Belleville was first laid out for the government in 1816 by Surveyor Wilmot, a lot was reserved for a grammar school, and the first grammar school was organized by the Rev. John Grier, Anglican Rector, and held in a building which stood on Pinnacle Street on the north side of Campbell Street.

"It was opposite where the Public Library now stands, and on the southwest corner of the lot upon which now stands the Court House.

"The first hall was in the lower storey, the school in the second storey with a dark room against the side hill.

"The head master was Alexander Sanderson who was in the habit of locking up refractory pupils in the dark room back of the school and would go down street to spend the time with some boon companions while the boys were having their punishment.

"The boys had a window loosened too and would climb out of the back room for play, leaving one on guard to watch, and when the signal was given that the principal was returning they would all hasten into the room and the good boys were ready to be released.

"Sometime after the opening of the school Mr. Burden had as his assistant teacher Mr. Diamond afterwards Barrister, Editor of the Hastings Chronicle, now the Belleville Ontario.

"He was a Police Magistrate and a brother of the present Board of Education, W. Jeffers Diamond.

"Mr. Burden was of the old school; he did not believe that women's brains were equal to men's, nor in the co-education of the sexes, and opposed very strongly the practice of allowing girls into the grammar school.

"When finally a majority of the trustees decided against him he did not lose many opportunities of showing his contempt for their decision.

"The first grammar school building erected was a storey and a half house on what was built about the year 1850 . . . and the school was held here under government of the Public School Board until the formation of the present Board of Education on the 26th of June, 1871."

In the same edition Arthur Wallbridge, K.C., writes about a small sailing craft and Friend of Budding Yachtsmen," re-

"Some of the names of the crack yachts of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club in its palmy days were: Atalanta; Norah; White Wing; Sylvia; Dauntless; Mischief; Gracie; Iolanthe and Katie Gray.

Many Clockmakers Worked On Early Grandfather Clock

By RALPH and TERRY KOVEL

Some early grandfather clocks were partially assembled and not marked by their clockmaker. The fine brass clock movements made in England were popular with many colonists along the Eastern seaboard.

Sometimes the whole clock including the case was sent by ship from England to the colonies. Sometimes the clock works were shipped, but the case was made by an American maker.

Most of the brass clock movements were made in America before 1780. Clockmaking was halted during the Revolutionary War. Most of the skilled brass workers had turned their attention to making guns. After the war, clock movements and clock cases were made in America.

Q. My old Mason jar has the date 1858 impressed on the glass. Is that its age?

A. The year 1858 is when John Landis Mason patented his method of sealing preserve jars. The date was used on the jars until the beginning of the 20th century.

The best source of information for the collector of Belleware wares is the City Museum and Art Gallery, Broad Street, Hastings, Stoke-on-Trent, Staffordshire, England. They have the world's most complete collection and files.

The museum will answer any letters asking about manufacturers. It must be understood that values cannot be given by mail.

Q. I used an old tin candlemold as a candleholder. The wax dripped. How can I remove the wax from the mold without damaging it?

A. Put the mold in very hot water, and the wax will melt. Do not heat the mold in an oven. You may melt the mold.

* * *

Q. My large, hand painted plate has the letter J.P. over a crown and the letter "L" printed on the back. The word "France" also appears.

A. The mark was used on porcelain made by Jean Ponyat of Limoges, France. The mark without the word "France" was used from 1842 to 1891. The word "France" was added and used until 1898.

Ralph and Terry Kovel regret that they cannot research and provide personal answers about antiques you may own. They do appreciate your questions which can be answered in the column. Pictures and drawings cannot be returned.

A London clockmaker and a Philadelphia casemaker joined to produce this clock about 1765. The working and silvered dial was made by James Wastie of London, England. The mahogany case by the Chippendale style was made in Philadelphia. (Tyron Palace Restoration)

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Junior was such a g . . tle eater last year. Now he eats like a pig. Any food no matter how much I cook."

The 2-year-old seems to eat less than he did at 18 months. He is growing more slowly and may not need as much food. If the doctor says he is healthy, don't fuss and stew or you may have a real feeding problem on your hands.

Serve tiny portions of food, a tablespoon or so and let Junior ask for what he wishes. Don't coax him to eat.

Cree Indian Girl Given Honor of Opening Pavilion

MONTREAL (CP) — Rosalie Kirkness, 13-year-old Cree Indian girl, Thursday night snipped a pair of gold shears, cut through the steel ribbon outside the Canadian steel industry pavilion at Expo 67 and said: "Ne pas la fan ons pewapsik anik."

She then smiled and said in English, "I declare the steel pavilion officially open."

Thus came to an end a series of events which catapulted Rosalie from an isolated Indian reserve at God's Lake Narrows, Man., into the splendor and excitement of Expo 67.

Her adventure began Jan. 18 when her teacher asked each pupil of the Grade 8 class to write to a large company for information about a particular industry, as part of a class project.

Rosalie wrote to the American Iron and Steel Institute and received not only a personal reply from President John P. Roche but also an invitation to participate in the opening Ceremonies of the Steel pavilion.

Rosalie's letter to Roche said:

"This is my first letter I write before . . .

"There are about 800 Cree Indians here on the mainland and on the island there are 16 white people. We don't have any animals like horses, cows, pigs or hens, just dogs and two cats. . . .

"Please do not think that I'm writing to you only to get a lot of stuff. I am writing to you because I'm enjoying it as well, and I'll be thankful for anything you send me. It is a new experience for us and from what we receive, we will certainly all learn a lot more about Canada.

"Dear Rosalie:

"It was indeed a pleasure to meet you through your most informative letter. Your description of the area and life of God's Lake Narrows gave us a very good picture of the community.

"We are very glad you wrote to us, Rosalie, because we do have several booklets which explain what iron and steel are . . .

"We'd like to ask you for something too. Would you send us a snapshot of yourself, of your home . . . also a sketch or map which would show us God's Lake Narrows, Elk Island, your house and the various schools?"

One thing led to another and finally Rosalie was chosen to open the steel pavilion.

And so, Rosalie, who had never seen a telephone or a department store, or a city, boarded an airplane Thursday and came to Montreal.

When asked how she felt about being chosen to come to Expo, she smiled gently and said: "I'm so happy. But I got sick on the plane. I'm keeping a diary of everything."

And when she was taken shopping for the first time she promptly chose a mini - skirt. She also had her hair done.

Asked whether she was going to fly back, she replied: "Oh yes, but I'm going to take some pills."

Real Riches Can't Be Bought With Money

DEAR DORIS: Your letter from Spellbinder (whose children have become such good readers) brought back a flood of memories, not only of my own childhood, but of those wonderful days when I had a little fellow growing up. I would like to share with her the words on a framed card given to my little one by an elderly gentleman who happened in on one of our story times.

It was one of the "little things from home" that he took with him when he left home to go to university. It now hangs in his reception room. (He is an M.D.)

I don't know who wrote it but it goes like this:

"You may have tangible wealth untold,
Caskets of jewels and coffers of gold;
But richer than I you can never be
For I had a mother who read to me."

A READER.

* * *

DEAR READER: It's not the kind of treasure you can pay for in money, and that's for sure. The thought is worth sharing with everybody.

* * *

DEAR DORIS: We are a group of male students who have been hoping to find work during the summer, but summer jobs are scarce. We will all be starting to college next fall.

If we can't earn money during the summer, is there some way we could speed up our college courses — THREE BILLS AND A BOB.

* * *

DEAR THREE AND ONE: Yes! Besides various summer courses available there are now two Canadian universities which offer to students who can qualify, a full extra semester to be taken during summer months. The extra one starts in April.

Whole courses are measured by semesters, not years; each semester takes 13 weeks. An arts student may take a year less to graduate by going to college the year round; and even then he gets a few weeks off.

To learn how this works in an individual case, write to the University of Guelph, at Guelph, Ontario, or Simon Fraser University, Burnaby, B.C. Give grade 13 averages and course you would like to enter.

* * *

DEAR DORIS: I am going with this wonderful guy for about four months. The other night he asked me what I thought of him and if there were some things he did that I don't like, and if there are some ways about him for which I am not fussy.

I like him a lot and think a great deal about him but my problem is that I can't tell him what I think of him. I find the words but I just can't say them.

This may sound crazy to you, but it's true. Will I be able to tell him later on or not? We like being together. — TONGUE-TIED.

* * *

DEAR TONGUE-TIED: A bit one-sided, isn't it? Has he declared himself to you? He is really fishing for compliments, or I'm a monkey's uncle.

Once a boy friend of mine asked me this one: "If I were in a position to ask you to marry me, would you say yes?" Now what's a girl to say? Yes? And then have him say, "Well thanks very much but I'm not having any?" Popping the question involves some giving as well as receiving of a question.

Same in your case. Tell him you wouldn't be seeing so much of him if you didn't like him; and that if he does anything you object to, you'll tell him. And say so then.

* * *

(There are Canadian resources to help solve your problem. Write to Doris for direction, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

Ann Landers

Resents Attitude In Requesting Loan

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 24, married and have one child. Last week I went to a bank to borrow money. I wanted to buy a new car. My credit is A-1, and everything checked out fine. Then I mentioned that I was a member of a reserve unit. The banker gave me a fishy eye and said, "Reserve unit, eh? Well, you'll have to get a co-signer for this loan."

I explained I didn't want a co-signer. I want to be solely responsible for my financial obligations. The banker then quoted a law saying any man who joins the armed forces may be temporarily relieved of his debts. His last words fractured me. He said, "If you get called up we would be stuck for the money until you get back."

I'm so burned up I can hardly see straight. Why should a loyal American who is serving his country by joining a reserve unit be treated this way? — CAN'T SEE IT.

* * *

DEAR CAN'T: The law that says a service man is temporarily relieved of his financial obligations was designed to help, not hurt, men in uniform. If you don't want a co-signer, go to a bank that does not require one. And more power to you, fella, I like your spirit of independence.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have always been high-strung and nervous. A few years ago I had a breakdown and spent several months in a private mental hospital. I still see my doctor because he gives me good advice.

My question is this: "When friends know you have been hospitalized for mental illness, why do they treat you as if you are some sort of an oddball? I try to be relaxed and behave in a normal manner, but I have the feeling that people are always analyzing me and looking for signs of abnormal behavior.

The only friends I am truly at ease with are those who also have had emotional breakdowns.

My husband is a wonderful man and we have four children who are normal and above average students. Please tell me how I can get people to accept me as I am. — VANCOUVER.

* * *

DEAR VAN.: Your central problem is lack of confidence and an over-active imagination. What you see in others is a reflection of your insecurity. When you become truly secure you will no longer be concerned about what others are thinking.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I just read the lovely letter from the woman who made her husband's retirement years the happiest years of their married life.

Have you noticed that the people who make the best of difficult situations enjoy life the most? It's too bad people so often marry and then try to change each other. Women are guilty of this more often than men.

When I complained to my mother, early in our marriage, that my husband left his underwear and sox on the floor, she said, "Pick them up and shut up about it. It takes less energy than nagging him."

I took her advice and I am sure it has saved many arguments. Please tell young wives that we must be flexible enough to put up with less than perfection in those we love. — RUTH.

* * *

DEAR RUTH: You told them. And beautifully, too. Your mother's advice sounds like a line out of this column. I've been saying the same thing for years.

U.S. treasurer under President Eisenhower, Mrs. Priest said there is a need to "face the realities and cut into the waste and inefficiencies in government."

Wants to Serve Petit Fours

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: In June, two of my girl friends are being married and I want to have showers for them. I have had a yearning to make my own Petit Fours and serve them at one or both of these parties. The cake part does not stump me but that lovely smooth frosting is a puzzle. — M.B.

ANSWER: My sister has an invalid friend in Massachusetts who loves Petit Fours. My sister makes these and carefully wraps each one and ships her friend a box every once in a while.

Soak the gelatine in 2 tspe cold water. In a saucepan combine granulated sugar, corn syrup and the ½ cup water. Bring to full rolling boil stirring just until sugar dissolves. Remove from heat, stir in soaked gelatine and cool to 120 deg. Fahr. — just above lukewarm. Stir in the icing sugar, then the egg whites (unbeaten), melt butter and vanilla and beat very well until smooth.

How to Pour the Glaze:

If different colored glazes are to be applied to cakes, arrange cake shapes on wire racks — one rackful for each color. Do not apply different colors to cakes on one rack. Work on tile or arborite-surfaced table or counter. Apportion glaze into as many small bowls as you want colors. I used 3 bowls and left one-quarter of the amount in the saucepan white. I colored the others pink, blue and green. You may want yellow. Pour the white glaze steadily over the cakes. When pan is empty lift rackful of cakes to a clean position, scrape up with a spatula all of the frosting which has dripped through to the counter and return it to the pan. Pour it over cakes a second time and continue until cakes are coated on tops and all sides evenly. Proceed the same with the next batch of cakes, frosting for which has been delicately tinted as desired. Continue this way until all are coated. Do not fret over wasted fr o s t i n g dripping through to table at the end for it is very inexpensive. If you are going to decorate these with sugar crystals or various colored cake decorations — "non pareils" — or chocolate shot or nuts or cocoanut, do it before frosting sets, or the decorations will slide off. If you have a big batch to do it is advisable to have a helper.

Dinner Menu

PETIT FOURS
(Approximately 4 dozen)

NOTE: You say you are not worried about the cake part. Take a tip from professional bakers and use one-inch thick slabs of firm pound cake to cut out desired shapes. This reduces pesky crumbs to a minimum. Commonest shapes are your usual rounds, squares, diamonds and crescents.

GLAZE—Sufficient to frost 4 dozen little cakes by ¼ tsp. gelatine
2 tsps. cold water
1½ cups granulated sugar
2 tbsps. corn syrup
½ cup water
2 tbs. sifted icing sugar
2 large egg whites
4 tbsps. soft butter or shortening
1 tsp. vanilla

Hydro Strike Likely

TORONTO (CP)—A strike by 3,000 construction workers on Ontario Hydro projects across the province "appears inevitable" May 1, the company's director said Friday.

William Barnes said Hydro has been notified the strike date was set by the Allied Construction Council, bargaining agent for 13 trade unions representing the majority of Hydro's construction employees.

Hydro has asked the construction working agreements with the unions since 1951.

Mr. Barnes said in a statement a strike would affect work on power stations, transmission lines, transformer and distribution stations across the provinces. Hydro's construction program over the next two years involves projects costing about $500,000,000.

None of the issues is monetary.

Noranda Defers New Mines

TORONTO (CP) — Noranda Mines Ltd. said Friday it is deferring production plans for one British Columbia property and another potential mine may be made uneconomic if the recommendations of the Carter commission on taxation become law.

President R. V. Porrit told the annual meeting that the properties are the Newman copper zinc near Buttle Lake and Brenda Mines, a low - grade molybdenum - copper ale near Peachland.

Noranda had announced a $30,000,000 development program for Newman, but Mr. Porrit said implementation of the Carter recommendations would make production there economically unattractive at foreseeable copper prices, no plans had been deferred.

The giant mining corporation reached an agreement last year with Brenda, in which it would have been entitled to an interest. A feasibility study showed it could have been put into production at a cost of almost $80,000,000.

"However it is our conclusion that implementation of the Carter report would render Brenda uneconomic and that Noranda's participation must be contingent on the government's policy regarding the report."

The Carter commission recommended that mines lose the depletion allowances now granted them — equal to one-third of operating profits—as well as the three-year, tax-free period now given new mines.

Police Chiefs Are Surprised by Reaction

OTTAWA (CP)—Strident public reaction to law-enforcement proposals of the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police took the organization by surprise this week.

Cries of outrage followed publication of a brief the association submitted to the Canadian Committee on Corrections. The brief answered a fixed set of questions issued by the committee for the guidance of all interested organizations or individuals.

Many of the police views had been stated often before at annual convocations of the association and a spokesman said the reaction came as a surprise.

MPs, legal authorities, spokesmen for civil groups and others expressed shock that the Chiefs should ask for such things as the right to use electronic listening devices, the right to enter homes without search warrants, and the right to detain persons without charge.

Uraniums Lead Week's Advance

By DOUGLAS ADAMSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Uraniums moved quickly to centre stage late this week as prices rose on Canadian stock exchanges.

A squall of trading followed an announcement by J. vas Bachstrom of South Africa's Atomic Energy Board that a world shortage of uranium is imminent and known deposits probably will not produce sufficient to keep the world price at its present level of $8 a pound beyond 1972.

Denison rose 3¾ to 68, Roman Corp., whose chief assets is Denison shares, moved ahead ¾ to 18¼, Rio Algom 1½ to 31½, Preston, which holds a 44-per-cent interest in Rio Algom, was up to 18¾, Stanrock 1.05 to 3.50 and Kerr-Addison ¼ to 12¾.

ITL industries was the favorite of the industrial list, rising 8 to a 1967 high of 78. The stock sold in January at 11— and moved steadily upward to close at 30 April 21.

Analysts said Monday one reason for the sudden rise was speculation that a major U.S. pharmaceutical company would adopt a medical safety outfitted with a "child-proof" cap manufactured and sold by ITL's Reflex Division. A director of ITL denied any agreement was imminent.

Mapco Electronics moved up sharply early in the week on rumor of a takeover bid. A company representative said there were no grounds for such speculation. The stock closed the week up 4¼ to a 1967 high of 19¾.

Moore Corp. advanced 6¼ to 108 after reaching a 1967 high of 112 following a report of a 16.2-per-cent increase in profits and a 13.9-per-cent rise in sales for the first quarter of 1967 compared with the same period in 1966. Company President W. H. Brown also forecast a favorable first six months for 1967

District Do-It-Yourself Fire Fighters Take Course

On Own Time

Proof to desk please Indeed en

Ugly black, vicious ebony, sibling slate-colored smoke, the columns spewing towards the sun, the core pregnant with an all consuming fire-hell, ready to engulf the men with the puny hoses attempting to get at the guts of it.

In a split second this inferno, which could snuff out life in one soul-searing blast of hades, was itself nothing but a steaming pit of oil floating on water.

Fog nozzles did it.

And that big blast yesterday ended the past five days for Belleville and area fire departments.

It could have been for real, but it was only a practice an exercise fraught with danger.

"Take it easy, don't get excited, let the water do the work, and don't turn it into the oil," the Ontario Fire College instructor advised the smoke eaters.

Those men who are expected to battle fires in their communities came from Picton, Wellington, Tweed, Deseronto, Stirling, Frankford, Madoc and Rawdon Township, as well as the city.

Except for Belleville, they do it for nothing.

And they gave up five days' salary to come to Belleville to listen, to learn and to act. Some might be reimbursed, but it is not known if all will.

Eight other municipalities and townships are also members of the local mutual aid system, but none of their men attended the course, sought here for two years, and finally put on by the Ontario Fire Marshal's Office.

One fireman from Picton commented: "It's a good thing. Outlying areas never get a chance to go to the Ontario Fire College since few municipalities will pay to send them."

District fire service instructors from across the province came here to conduct the course.

Art McConnell of Charlotte St., Stirling, is typical of the rural volunteer group which gives its services to a community.

He has been a member of the 15-member volunteer brigade for about a year. During that time the department has received its instruction in the village of less than 2,000 people.

They have modern equipment, but Art learned new techniques during the course. He studied hydraulics on a pumper truck, and how to calculate friction loss in a hose. This is most important since a pumper could easily be overloaded.

Better methods of salvage were taught; water damage could easily be more expensive than the fire or smoke.

All the basic things such as rescue work, knot tying, forcible entry, various types of breathing apparatus were thoroughly reviewed.

So far Art has only been involved with a couple of grass fires and false alarms. But he and many more like him, could be handling a potential bomb if a house reached the fourth stage of fire.

No matter how grave the fire situation, the volunteer or paid 'brass pole slider' is expected to save lives first and then try to put the blaze out.

And rescue cats from trees.

They Don't Eat Smoke

Firemen emerge from a smoke filled house after they had located a saw horse and cut the end off a plank. It was an exercise to show the firemen that they can breath well despite the choking swirl of death.

A Fearsome Task

Firemen who took a five-day course in Belleville this week shoot from the hip at hissing oil, fog nozzles blazing. Surprising, this tremendous fire can be extinguished in less than a minute. With water yet! The secret is the fine mist. A steady stream would scatter the oil.

A Little Bit of Quinte in Old Yorktown

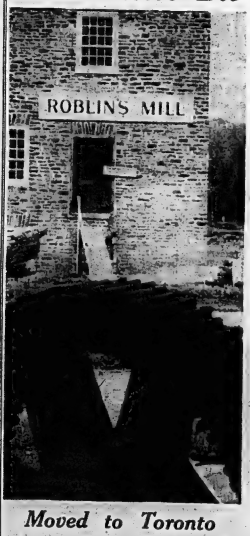
The 150-year-old Roblin's Mill that was moved from Ameliasburg to Black Creek Pioneer Village in Toronto will be open to the public starting May 6.

In its heyday, Roblin's Mill powered by water wheel which operated two runs of stones, was capable of producing 100 barrels of flour daily.

Until May 22, the Village will be open only Saturday and Sunday each weekend and from then on it will be open all week long until the end of August.

Roblin's Mill, under reconstruction for several years, has been closed to date but now has been restored sufficiently for viewing.

What is Black Creek Pioneer Village? It is typical of the first communities in southern Ontario prior to Confederation.

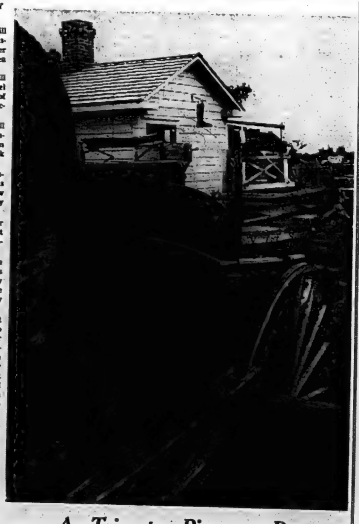


You will travel through the Daniel Strong Farm buildings made from (1816-1832), Henry Snider's Cider Mill (1840), the Harness Shop and Saddlery (1850).

The Leakey Emporium, Post Office and Printing Shop (1856) is where 'The Pioneer Press' is published on a Washington flat bed press. The same type of press was used by William Lyon Mackenzie, first mayor of Toronto who printed 'The Colonial Advocate' which helped rouse the population to rebellion in 1837.

There is an herb garden, an outdoor bake oven (1850) which holds 15 large loaves, a blacksmith's shop (1856), a boot and shoe maker's shop and many other buildings.

You don't see just old buildings. The village is alive with people using many of the old tools and machines from over a hundred years ago, and frequently special attractions are put on.



You can be there in about 2½ hours, driving on Highway 401. The village is just north of Yorkdale Shopping Centre at the corner of Jane St. and Steeles Ave.

Moved to Toronto

Roblin's Mill, which used to be on the Belleville to Carrying Place Road on the south side of the Bay of Quinte will be open to the public for the first time starting May 6. The machinery is original, the stone new.

A Trip to Pioneer Days

A good chance to see what pioneer Canadians lived like — their schools, churches, farms, stores and craftsmen — is readily on hand at Black Creek Pioneer Village in Toronto. This photo shows the Daniel Flynn Boot and Shoe Maker's Shop. He was often paid with farm produce.

Drapeau Bids To Take Over Expo Pavilions

MONTREAL (CP) — The top local adviser to Expo 67 said Friday a scheme of Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau for the City of Montreal to take over Expo's 1,000-acre site and 70 pavilions after the fair closes Oct. 27 is technically possible.

Jean-Claude Delorme, secretary and general counsel for Expo, said in an interview:

"There definitely is a way in which Montreal could take over the site. It is a distinct possibility that this will happen."

Mr. Drapeau referred to the possibility in a speech at Expo 67's official inauguration Thursday.

Montreal's mayor is a bald topped, bespectacled, diminutive dynamo who stands 10 feet tall among metropolitan Montreal's 2,500,000 inhabitants. Only an outright gambler would bet against his pulling off his latest idea.

A specialist in doing the impossible, he led a sometimes one-man fight in the 1950s to clean up his city that then was virtually a kingdom of crime.

He tenaciously battled huge odds to bring Expo 67 to Montreal and pulled off the "impossible" task of creating a 1,000-acre site for Expo from 137-acre St. Helen's Island and a few mudflats in the middle of the mile - wide St. Lawrence River.

And he crammed through plans and construction for a $230,000,000, 16-mile subway, the Metro, that now criss - crosses the island of Montreal and links it with Expo and the south shore—a project that had been talked about in Montreal for 30 years.

In his speech at Expo's Place des Nations Thursday Mr. Drapeau said he hoped it would be possible after the fair's end to preserve the "great structures and units" of Expo.

He continued:

"On behalf of my colleagues of the Montreal municipal council, let me assure you that, for our part, we will discuss with the owners of all those pavilions the steps that can be taken to ensure that these islands which Montrealers have built at their own expense fulfil their destiny as an international city, where pilgrims from all parts of the world will be able to come at any time, to meet and see for themselves what is being done to improve today's civilization to the benefit of future generations."

The $630,000,000 world's fair is being paid for by the governments of Canada, Quebec province and the City of Montreal in the proportions of 50 per cent, 37½ per cent and 12½ per cent.

A spokesman for Mr. Drapeau said Friday special negotiations now are under way toward this end.

Mr. Drapeau's suggestion could become a reality if there was agreement among the government of Canada, represented by the Canadian Corporation for the 1967 World Exhibition—Expo 67—the participating countries and industrial participants owning pavilions, and the City of Montreal.

---

In Ottawa, the Royal Architectural Institute of Canada announced that Mayor Drapeau will be honored next month with a special gold medal for his encouragement to architecture in Montreal and at Expo.

Mr. Drapeau will be the first person to receive the new award which will be presented "from time to time when there is a person deserving special recognition," an institute spokesman said.

TORONTO — Jack Devine, sports director of CJBQ, Belleville was officially installed as president of the Ontario Hockey Association at the annual convention which got underway here today.

A near record number of delegates gave him a rousing reception when it was learned he had been given the highest post in the association by acclamation.

Also named to office by acclamation were Matt Leyburn, Oshawa, past president; Clarence Schmalz, Walkerton, first vice president; Jack Oakes, Strathroy, second vice; Frank Doherty, Thorold, third vice and Frank Buchland, Peterborough, treasurer.

This afternoon delegates will elect five executive members from a slate of of nine nominees.

These include: — John Bowles, Chatham; Ron Buddell, Waterloo; Jim Crombie, Bowmanville; David Howlett, Hespeler; Hugh McLean, Burlington; Cliffe Phillips, Newmarket; Cliff Richardson, Meaford; Percy Topping, Toronto and Harold Webster, Napanee.

Devine reached the "chairman of the board" position the hard way.

Sportsminded from boyhood, Jack, followed it through his youth and on into the RCAF. Later he concentrated on hockey, became a keen student of the game and learned from veteran hockey men especially those associated with the OHA.

He was — and still is a great admirer of King Clancy's "Mr. Hockey," Lorne Cooke who devoted several years of his sports life to the OHA and is still active although a past-president for many years.

Working with Mr. Cooke, Jack studied the administrative phases of hockey, and on May 13, 1958 was appointed to the executive of the OHA.

The appointment marked the start of a successful march up "through the ranks" which was climaxed here today with his elevation to the presidency.

Faith in his ability was indicated by OHA delegates at the 1959 convention when he was elected on his first bid for a position on the executive body.

Firm in opinion and purposeful in action his first year as an executive brought him the confidence of the association.

He experienced no trouble in being re-elected in 1960, 1961 and 1962.

Then he made a bid for the higher places. In 1963 he ran for the position of second vice-president and was elected by a substantial margin.

Electoral history and promotion again asserted itself and in 1963 he rose to the position of second vice-president. In 1965 he became the association's first-vice.

Nine years of faithful service reached a climax here today when Jack was installed as Belleville's first OHA president.

He was born and raised in Toronto and settled in Belleville after discharge from the RCAF at Mountain View. Radio appeared to him and he became associated with CJBQ a short time prior to leaving the service.

In the meantime he became a member of the Ontario Intercollegiate Sports staff serving in that capacity from December 7, 1945 to July 24th, 1946. His first sports broadcast took place Monday, August 12, 1946.

He has achieved distinction in other sports associations. He served as president of the Ontario Sportswriters and Broadcasters in 1961.

He has done much for sport in the Bay of Quinte Area and broadcast the Belleville McFarlands games, both here and in Europe where they won the world championship.

OHA people here feel their association is in fine hands for the next two years.

Boxing World Strips Clay Of Title

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Cassius Clay's lawyers prepared fresh tactics today in their efforts offensive to save him from jail and a stiff fine for refusing to heed his draft call.

As 20 other citations stepped forward to take the army oath Friday, the 25-year-old Clay did not move, fulfilling his promise. He says that he is a Black Muslim minister by vocation and a boxer by avocation and that war contradicts the teachings of his faith.

The boxing world's reprisal was swift. The New York State Athletic Commission and the World Boxing Association stripped him of his world heavyweight title and announced they planned elimination tournaments to select his replacement.

Grimly running the gauntlet of waiting reporters, Clay left the Houston customs house, where the induction centre is located, forged through a crowd of sympathetic Negro demonstrators and sped away in a black car.

While Clay was undergoing his round of physical examinations, all of which he completed satisfactorily, five of the Negroes outside the customs house burned papers they said were their draft cards. None was arrested.

Lawyers Hayden Covington of New York and Quinton Hodges of Houston told the U.S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans, La., Friday that they would appeal the ruling of U.S. District Court Judge Allen B. Hannay in Houston in refusing to hear Clay's suit challenging the composition of the selective service system. The suit says Negroes are under-represented.

Virtually the same suit, which argues for his draft exemption as a minister, was to be filed again today in U.S. District Court in Houston, thus placing the same arguments before both courts at the same time.

U.S. Attorney Morton Susman of Houston said: "It will take us 30 to 90 days to prepare charges. This matter could drag on in the courts for months and perhaps as much as two years."

Maximum sentence would be five years in jail and a $10,000 fine.

Clay preached a sermon Friday night at a Muslim Mosque in Houston, his adopted home town. He shied away from reporters, preferring to stand on the signed, flowery, four-page statement he doled out after Friday's four hours of military procedures.

It read something like a last will and testament, naming those who have helped him from his beginnings as the shy, 1960 Olympic boxer, through his days as the boasting quick-witted pro champ and to his present role as a critic of war and American society.

CLAY AT INDUCTION CENTRE — Towering over two members of the armed forces, Heavyweight Champion Cassius Clay chats with them before going into the waiting room at the Armed Forces Examining and Entrance Station in Houston, Tex., Friday. (AP Wirephoto).

'I Stand Behind Son'

LOUISVILLE (AP)—The father of heavyweight boxing champion Cassius Clay said Friday he thinks his son "did what he thinks is best" in refusing induction in the U.S. Army.

Cassius Marcellus Clay Sr., a self-proclaimed "artist" who paints signs on buildings and trucks for a living, grudgingly consented to a brief interview here after saying the "press has distorted the truth about my son, the world champion."

Clay Sr., 54, refused to say whether he was happy or depressed to hear the news that Clay Jr. has refused to take the army's oath of induction.

Clay repeatedly shied away from a direct answer to whether he agreed with his son's attitude toward the army.

"We live in different times now," he reflected, "but I stand behind my son.

"He's a grown man. He can make his own decisions."

Clay would not talk about his son's activities in the Black Muslim religion, which have formed the basis for the boxing champion's legal moves to stay out of the army.

Clay Sr. says he doesn't know much about Black Muslims.

"But I can say that Cassius loves people . . . all races, creeds, and colors."

Would his father like his son were a Methodist or a Baptist?

"Whether I'm for the Black Muslims or not, I couldn't change it because my son is a grown man."

Louis' Crown Frozen

NEW YORK (AP)—When Joe Louis went into the army in 1942, he took the world heavyweight boxing championship with him.

It was an accepted procedure to freeze all titles when the champion entered the service.

Louis' career was baked temporarily although he did box some exhibitions while in the army.

When he returned to boxing after the war, his first defence was against Billy Conn, who also had been in the army. They drew $1,955,564 with the first $100 top. Louis eventually retired as champion.

After the retirement of Louis, Gene Tunney, Jim Jeffries and Rocky Marciano, new champions were crowned after an elimination bout or bouts.

Senior Baseball Gains Sponsor

Belleville's senior baseball club gained a sponsor and announced the initial date for practices at a short meeting held last night.

The club will be known as the "Belleville Lombards."

Murray "Moe" Hunter, who has handled the organization of the team and its entry into the EOBA grouping, said he received word of the sponsorship just a couple of hours before last night's meeting.

"Mr. John S. Roberts, the president of Lombards of Canada, Limited, told me he is only too happy to be able to assist us financially" Hunter told a small group of players and other interested parties.

"He regrets that he could not attend our meeting tonight but assured me he will be taking a deep personal interest in the team," Hunter added.

The need for experienced senior men to assist through coaching, managing and other club executive positions, was stressed. Hunter and other players, such as Bill Latchford and Pat Armstrong, are busy contacting people they feel can assist.

They hope to have a coach by next week but the players are going ahead with light workouts starting Monday night, at the Fairgrounds at 6.30.

"Any and all district players are welcome", Hunter said. "We hope to field the best team possible and we need some young blood. Every position is wide open and the players we have talked to so far seem most enthusiastic."

Season tickets, selling for $10 each, went on sale at Carl Thompson's store yesterday and are now available from executive members of last night's meeting. They cover the 10 home schedule games.

The seven-team Kone League, which Lombards will play, a 30-game schedule against Kingston, Brockville, Oshawa, Peterborough, Little Britain and Kendall, will open around the May 24 holiday.

"We have our uniforms ordered and I think the players will come out for the club but we still need help on the executive level", was Hunter's opinion.

Als Place Simpson On Waivers

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference announced Friday that defensive halfback Jackie Simpson has been placed on waivers.

Simpson joined the Alouettes in 1965 along with quarterback Bernie Faloney and Ralph Goldston from Hamilton Tiger-Cats in an eight-player trade.

He tied with Ed Learn for the team leadership with four interceptions in 1965 and added two more interceptions last season.

Simpson, a former member of Pittsburgh Steelers of the National Football League, played regular defensive halfback and was spotted in the offensive backfield during his career with Montreal.

Bower Behind When Leafs Hit Road

By STERLING TAYLOR

MONTREAL (CP) — Coach Toe Blake is looking for a victory over Toronto Maple Leafs in the fifth game of the Stanley Cup finals here today "to wrap the playoffs up in Toronto next Tuesday."

But Blake isn't taking Toronto lightly, despite the loss of veteran goaltender Johnny Bower before the fourth game in Toronto Thursday.

The best-of-seven series was tied 2-2 after the Leafs' 6-2 loss to Montreal Thursday, with today's game scheduled for 2 p.m. EST. The game will be televised by the CBC national network in Canada and the CBS in the U.S.

Sixth game is set for Toronto Tuesday night with the seventh, if necessary, here next Thursday.

Blake has not underrated the Leafs during the first four games to date. He said after Montreal won the opener 6-2 that "one game doesn't make a series" and warned his club not to get overconfident.

Terry Sawchuk is expected to start in the Toronto goal and Al Smith, who played this season with Victoria Maple Leafs of the Western Hockey League, will be the standby netminder.

Bower, 42, suffered a pulled thigh muscle during a warmup session before the start of Thursday's game. He saw a doctor late Friday and did not leave Toronto with the club.

The Canadiens went into today's game 5-to-3 favorites in to win the game, but there were no odds on the final outcome of the series.

Bower was the only major casualty on either club. Bobby Rousseau and Yvan Cournoyer of Montreal had suffered minor eye injuries in Thursday's game.

"It hurts a little when I move my eyes quickly," Rousseau said. Cournoyer sported a black eye during the Canadiens' Friday practice here.

Meanwhile, team captain Jean Beliveau held much of the secret of success for the Montreal club today. Beliveau, who scored 10 goals and 28 assists during the regular 70-game National Hockey League schedule, has come to life in the playoffs.

He boasts six goals in eight games—four against New York Rangers in the semi-finals. He had gone through 20 early-season games without a goal and says it was the "worst season" he has had.

His recent pace has suddenly made him one of the leading candidates for the Conn Smythe Trophy as the outstanding player in the playoffs.

Montreal's rookie goaltender, Rogatien Vachon, is also a leading candidate.

Beliveau, the initial winner of the Smythe Trophy, scored two goals against the Leafs Thursday night to move him ahead of Rocket Richard, a former Montreal scoring ace, into second place in the list of all-time scoring leaders in playoff hockey.

Beliveau now has scored 61 goals and added 67 assists for 128 points.

His 61 goals also places him ahead of former Canadien Boom Boom Geoffrion, who has 58 playoff goals. Richard leads all scorers with 82, while Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings is second with 65. Howe also leads all playoff point - getters with 154.

KNUDSON'S WORLD OF GOLF

By GEORGE KNUDSON

LEISURE

Golf is a game most people play for relaxation. Right?

But have you watched how they approach the game?

I've been at the Oshkala Golf Club in Toronto for the last 10 years and usually, when I'm not on a tour, play every Saturday and Sunday morning and Wednesday afternoon.

Say I've been asked to play a game with three members and we're settled on 9 a.m. as a starting time. I'm there at 8.30 and hitting balls at the practice tee.

I'm getting warmed up, getting loose so that when I step to the first tee I feel like taking a decent swing at the ball.

They may get there at five minutes to nine, and they hurry like the blazes to hit five or six practice balls, then rush to the first tee. They miss-hit 11 and wonder why.

Well, I would say that I'm reasonably well co-ordinated to play golf and I feel that I have to hit 20 or 30 balls to loosen up. I would say they need the same introduction to a game.

People play golf for relaxation, but they don't approach it that way.

They're always in a hurry.

Maybe they have overslept and need to rush to get to the first tee. Or maybe they were rushing through a game to make another appointment. They don't allow enough time for the game.

Recently I received a postcard from a young girl, a student in Japan. She had watched me play in the Canada Cup matches, where I was fortunate this year to win the individual championship.

"I was so pleased to watch you play golf," she wrote. "You have such an unassuming quiet manner on a golf course."

I had been home from the tour for three days at the time, but I was rushing around so much that it seemed like four or five days.

"Look at that," I said to my wife Shirley. "Why don't I treat everyday life the way I treat golf?"

That's why I like golf so much, I guess. I play it leisurely. I enjoy the green grass, the scenery and the good company.

Everybody should play golf that way to enjoy it to its fullest and to be able to play it to their fullest ability.

Julius Boros is Mr. Leisure on a golf course. Nothing will ever make him rush. Jack Nicklaus also takes a lot of time — all the great ones do.

Then there are players like Doug Ford and Chi Chi Rodriguez — so my good friend Tom Norman.

They play the game quickly, but that's their nature.

I am convinced that, for relaxation value, golf must be played leisurely.

The next time out, allow half an hour for practice and another half hour after the game for relaxation before flinging yourself back into business.

Ties Eastern Finals

Quebec Team Trips Marlies

THETFORD MINES, Que (CP) — Thetford Mines Canadiens appear to be holding their own against the powerful Toronto Marlboros.

The Canadiens have a tough grind ahead of them in their bid to advance to the Memorial Cup hockey finals but they took a step in the right direction Friday night.

The young champions of the Quebec Provincial Hockey League snatched a third - period rally by the Marlboros and held on for a 4-3 victory to even the best-of-five Eastern Canada final series at one game each.

Gilbert Perreault, Marc Tardif, Pierre Leblanc and Roger Houle scored for the Canadiens and Mike Byers, Al Ormsby and Cam Crosby for the losers.

The Canadiens appeared to have the game in hand as they started the third period with a 4-1 lead. But the Marlboros came on with two goals to narrow the gap to 4-3 and move right back into contention.

However, the Canadiens checked Toronto for the last five minutes of the game, preventing the Marlboros from getting any good scoring chances.

Both goaltenders, Bob Whidden of Toronto and Pierre Chagnon of the Canadiens, came up with sparkling performances.

Thetford Mines had 33 shots at Whidden while the Marlboros directed 34 at Chagnon.

Perreault gave the CASSBiens a 1-0 lead at 2:42 of the first period and Tardif increased Thetford Mines' lead to 2-0 with his goal a little more than eight minutes later.

Perreault was the best on Byers' goal as he was serving a minor penalty when the Toronto player narrowed the Canadiens' lead to 3-1 at 17:01.

The Canadiens went ahead 3-1 at 6:28 of the second period when Leblanc scored and Houle made it 4-1 when he broke in alone on Whidden and scored unassisted at 12:18.

However, the Marlboros weren't out of the game and Osborne and Thetford Mines' lead to 4-2 at 7:32 of the third period. Crosby brought Toronto to within one goal of tying the game when he connected at 14:48.

A total of 18 penalties were called, including four majors. Toronto took 11 of the 18 penalties. Mike Pelyk of the Marlboros took four minors and Whidden was given a minor and a major.

Yanks End Homer Drought

Birds On Top Perch; Lonborg Fans 13

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Lanky Jim Lonborg was too fine. Now he's not so fine. Which is much better.

Boston Red Sox manager Dick Williams explained:

"His trouble has been his control. He's been trying to pitch to spots—trying to pitch too fine."

So Friday night Lonborg forgot the finesse, just leaned back and let fire with his fast ball. The result: A six-hit, 3-0 shutout of Kansas City and 13 strikeouts, high for the American League this season.

Lonborg, who had failed to last more than 6 1.3 innings in three previous starts, did not walk a man.

He needed to be good. The Athletics' Jim (Catfish) Hunter pitched baleful ball and struck out 10 before leaving for a pinch hitter in the seventh.

In the other American League games, all at night, Baltimore took over sole possession of the top spot with a 5-3 edge over Detroit, New York broke its homer drought in a 5-4 squeaker against Chicago, Chicago White Sox beat Cleveland 3-2 and Minnesota whipped Washington 7-3.

Lonborg, a 6 - foot - 5 righthander, used 135 pitches in his masterful performance. He said he relied primarily on his fast ball for the first seven innings, then went to a sinker.

Two of the Athletics' six hits were of the infield variety.

The Red Sox gave big Jim all the support he needed in the fifth when George Scott led off with a single, Boston's first hit off Hunter. Mike Andrews doubled Scott home. Singles by Lonborg and Reggie Smith sent Andrews across.

The Yankees, who hadn't had a home run since opening day, got homers from Tom Tresh and Steve Whitaker in the victory over the Angels. But it took a sacrifice fly by Elston Howard in the eighth to drive in the run that snapped a 4-4 tie. Don Mincher had a three-run homer for California. The Yanks' 10-game streak without a homer was the club's longest since 1944.

Curt Blefary crashed a grand-slam homer in the first inning that pointed Baltimore to its triumph. Al Kaline homered for the Tigers and was robbed of another by Blefary's leaping catch in the fifth.

Bob Allison drove in three runs with a single and a homer and Harmon Killebrew cracked a two - run homer as leading Minnesota past Washington. Frank Howard had a three-run homer for the Senators in the first but the Twins' Dean Chance stopped Washington without a hit for the next seven innings.

Don Buford singled across two runs with one out in the bottom of the ninth and lifted the White Sox over Cleveland. The Indians had a 2-1 lead going into the last of the ninth, but Tommy Cheney got a pinch single, Sonny Siebert allowed a walk and both moved up on a bad throw, setting the stage for Buford's winning single

Score Was 10-1

Marrs Trounce Royals

FORT WILLIAM (CP)—"We play like that sometimes," said coach Bob Fenton after a 10-1 drubbing in the third game Friday night dropped his New Westminster Royals one game behind Port Arthur Marrs in the Memorial Cup western final.

"But things will be different at home," he vowed, announcing his intensions to call up reserves Frank Spring, Ken Wasnuk and Ken Love.

The best - of - seven junior hockey series will be completed in New Westminster, where the fourth game is scheduled Sunday.

Eight goals by the newly-formed unit of Chuck Kruger, Tim McCormack and Ray Addueco were the keys to the Bruins'rout, which left Fenton still not convinced of Port Arthur superiority. Keiner scored five goals, McCormack two and Addueco one.

"Our boys played the way they're supposed to play," said Port Arthur coach Ab Cava. "They were hitting and playing their positions. They earned the the third period of the second game and just carried on."

Friday night's game was the hardest hitting of the series, resulting in 16 penalties including four majors.

Yesterday's Stars

Pitching—Jim Lonborg, Red Sox, shut out Kansas City 3-0 on six hits and struck out 13, the most in the American League this season.

Batting — Curt Blefary, Orioles, hit a grand-slam home run in the first inning that started Baltimore on a 5-3 victory over Detroit and into first place in the American League.

Braves Erase 8-0 Deficit

Veale Cuts Cards; Reds Riding High

By MIKE RECHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Bob Veale, already 6-by-6, must feel about eight feet tall now after finally slicing St. Louis Cardinals down to size.

The giant Pittsburgh left-hander looked more like a midget chopping away at the Cardinals in vain for 2½ years, but Friday night he struck out 10 of them with a 6-2 victory.

The triumph was the first for Veale over the Cardinals since July, 1964, and gave him half of Pittsburgh's six victories this season—he has yet to lose—as he continues to grow in stature as one of the National League's best hurlers.

Atlanta Braves also faced a giant obstacle, an 8-0 deficit, but rose to the occasion and overcame Philadelphia Phillies 9-8.

First - place Cincinnati continued to stand tall with a 7-1 victory over New York Mets, while Houston Astros outlasted Chicago Cubs 5-4 in 13 innings and San Francisco stopped surging pesky Los Angeles entertained, 5-4.

Veale, who had lost six straight to St. Louis, made his mark on the Cardinals with a five-hitter, striking out nine and walking three, but he almost was not around at the end to admire his handiwork.

"I was pretty close to taking him out when they hit consecutive triples against him in the sixth inning," said Pirate manager Harry Walker.

The triples highlighted a two-run inning and neutralized a two-run homer by Willie Stargell in the top of the sixth. But Bill Mazeroski singled in one run and Gene Alley's hit drove in two more in the eighth for a 5-2 lead and Veale's problem ended.

The Braves spent much of their evening climbing uphill after Don Lock drove in four runs for the Phillies with a three-run homer and a single.

But Hank Aaron cut into the Phillies lead with a three-run homer and a run-scoring single as the Braves scored five times in the fourth and three in the fifth. Aaron then singled Felipe Alou to third in the ninth, where he scored on a fielder's choice.

High - riding Cincinnati won its third straight and eighth in nine games on Sammy Ellis' six-hitter, including Ed Kranepool's homer for the only Mets run. Vada Pinson and Pete Rose burried the Mets with three hits and two RBI each.

Eddie Mathews was the big man for Houston as he tripled leading off the 13th and scored on Aaron Pointer's sacrifice fly in an up-and-down contest.

Rookie Don Wilson had a one hitter and a 2-0 lead in the eighth for Houston before Ron Santo capped a three-run outburst with a two-run single. But Cub reliever John Upham wildpitched the tying run home in the ninth with two out.

Houston almost won it in the 10th after Chicago took a 4-3 lead. Jim Wynn tied it with a homer, but Jim Landis was out trying to steal home with the bases loaded and two out.

Tom Haller cut short a two-game Los Angeles winning streak by doubling home two runs in the eighth inning off Phil Regan to overcome a 4-3 deficit.

Al Ferrara of the Dodgers and Kel Henderson of the Giants earlier had traded two-run homers.

To Your Good Health

Cervical Arthritis Can Be Painful

Dear Dr. Molner: What is cervical arthritis? Does it affect head, neck and spine and make one dizzy or light-headed? Or even heavy-headed? Does it lead to senility or crippling? What medication or treatment is preferred? — A. A.

It isn't a particular kind of arthritis. It can be any form which affects the cervical area, that is, the vertebrae of the neck.

Usually it is the ordinary degenerative arthritis, or osteoarthritis, so often found in older people. It may at times be rheumatoid arthritis which can attack at any age but is more likely in younger people. It can be gouty arthritis, although in that instance it will generally have made its presence known elsewhere in the body first, often in the joint of the big toe.

Whichever type of arthritis it may be, when these joints in the neck spine are affected, it can cause stiffness and or pain, and in addition can exert pressure on various nerves which emanate from that part of the spine, particularly those to the hands.

Giddiness can occur, especially when moving the head back and looking up. It may or may not cause "referred pain" in shoulders, arms or even hands, depending on what nerves are pinched — if any.

But it is not the sort of thing which causes crippling in the sense of deformity or preventing movement of other parts of the body, and it does not cause senility in the sense of interfering with thought processes. We must admit, however, that certain joint disorders very commonly are a part of the normal process of growing old — but let's not confuse aging with what we usually imply with the word "senility."

Treatment varies. The salicylates (aspirin-type) are by far the most widely used and do the most total good. If the pain is quite painful, the muscle spasm and tension make the whole situation worse, and muscle relaxants may be used to relieve this part of the problem.

Neck traction also can be very useful, depending on the precise nature of symptoms, i.e., indications of pressure on nerves. In some cases a head halter-device, used periodically to draw the bones a little bit apart, may give welcome relief. And some cases may require splinting of the neck, that is, the use of a thick collar. It all depends on the severity, of course.

Dear Dr. Molner: I take nitroglycerine for a heart condition but don't take a tablet every night because in a few seconds I get a slight pain in my head and am afraid it may cause brain damage. — C. R.

It will not damage the brain in any way. Some people normally experience a brief head pain, sense of fullness, or slight dizziness with this drug, but it passes quickly and does no harm.

Dear Dr. Molner: A few months ago you said something about drinking milk. I don't remember the details but something about an adult not drinking more than three glasses a day as it could cause some malfunction and too much calcium. Then recently you say the body will discharge any excess calcium. I would appreciate your explanation of these opposite statements. — B. B.

That's easy. Your memory slipped a cog, because I have never said anything about any special amount of milk being too much. It is true that some people cannot tolerate much milk or milk products but that is so abnormal condition although not especially rare. Those folks, to keep their digestive tracts comfortable, must limit the milk they consume and get their calcium from other sources. Some adults with calcium kidney stones may have to limit the amount of milk they use because of its calcium content.

Man Saw LSD User Before Fall

TORONTO (CP) — A witness who saw a Toronto man fall from a Toronto viaduct and wailed 12 days before telling police appeared Friday to testify at an inquest into the death.

David H. O'Brien, 30, was brought by police to testify at the inquest into the death of Nicholas John Stern, 20, whose body was found on the Don Valley Parkway below the viaduct March 18.

Police later said that Stern, a Toronto Conservatory student had experimented hours before his death with the hallucinatory drug LSD.

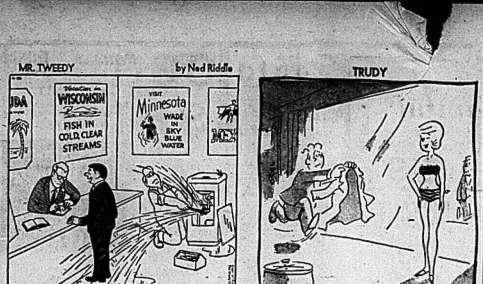
Mr. O'Brien, an arts student at York University, said he was driving west on the viaduct about 10:29 p.m. when he saw the form of a man lying on the parapet of the bridge.

He said the man seemed to have no control over his body from the waist up. He said his arms seemed to be shaking as though he was making an effort to prevent himself from falling off.

"By the time I stopped the car and backed up to the spot where the man had been lying, he had disappeared," Mr. Brien said.

"I looked over the bridge rail and saw some blood spots on the parkway, but did not see the body. A man on the side of the road was taking off his coat and starting to wave it."

He said he thought the body might have been picked up in a car and taken away.



Asked by Dr. D. J. Cruickshank, acting chief coroner, why he had waited 12 days to inform the police, Mr. O'Brien said he was in a state of shock.

He said he wanted to talk the matter over with a psychology teacher to be able to interpret what he did see and what was conjecture.

Earlier, Dr. Morton Shulman, f o r m e r metropolitan Toronto chief coroner, was critical at the inquest because Mr. O'Brien had not been called to testify.

Stern reportedly told at least four less agues he was going to take LSD in a Toronto hotel room.

Leslie Schiffer, 17, who testified under the provisions of the Canada and Ontario Evidence Acts, described the LSD trip taken by Stern in the hotel room.

Blind Folk Are Guests Of Lions

NAPANEE — Several people from Napanee were among those who were guests of the Lions Club of Kingston in its recent entertainment of the blind of Leeds, Frontenac and Lennox and Addington counties.

Dinner was served in the Lasalle Hotel, Kingston. There was a bed and encounter for each blind person. A great display called gifts were distributed through draws.

There was excellent entertainment of the sort that the blind could enjoy. The Paar-Christie Singers and Alphonse McCue were generous with their selections, especially with the numbers that were requested. Everyone enjoyed the sing-song.

Among those attending from Napanee was Mrs. Maureen Stevens, a patient in the local hospital released by her doctors for four hours so that she could enjoy the party. Others attending included Al Edgar, chairman of the sight conservation committee of the Lions Club, Mrs. Harry Edzer, secretary of the CNIB board for Lennox and Addington, and Mrs. Deverde Powell, past chairman of the advisory board, who represented Leo Bedore, chairman.

Conscience Vs. Authority

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

A certain man was very fond of yellow. He decorated his room entirely in yellow. He had a yellow rug, yellow walls, yellow draperies, a yellow cover on the bed. He even wore yellow pajamas. Then one day the poor man got yellow jaundice. The doctor went in to see him, and came out looking puzzled. The man's wife asked, "How is he, doctor?" The doctor replied, "I don't know. I can't tell him."

Too many people are like that today. They blend off so completely into the culture to which they belong, or the crowd with which they travel, they lose any real distinctiveness. They never take an unpopular stand. They seem to have no deep personal convictions. They just merge off into the society of which they are a part.

This was not true of the early followers of Jesus. They had certain convictions about Jesus, and not even the threat of violence could make them back down.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for April 30: "Witness Before the Sanhedrin," Acts 4:1-22.

This is illustrated by the experience of Peter and John. On the way to the temple, they had stopped to heal a cripple. Their act of mercy drew considerable attention. Peter took advantage of the crowd to speak about Jesus.

Certain temple leaders came to investigate what seemed to be a disturbance. They had Peter and John arrested and held in custody until they could be tried the following day.

What was the charge against them? That they had healed a cripple? The two disciples were not accused of anything. Instead they were asked, "By what power or by what name did you do this?" This was a leading question. Peter might have chosen to evade it. Instead, he met it head-on. "Be it known to you all. . .that by the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth. . . by Him this man is standing before you well." (Acts 4:10 RSV)

Peter might have stopped there, but he didn't. With reckless courage, he accused his very judges of being responsible for Jesus' death, and proclaimed that God had raised Him from the dead.

The Judges were puzzled. They were amazed by the disciples' boldness. They could not refute the fact that a man had been healed. But if Peter and John continued to preach this way, it could lead to no end of trouble. So they took what seemed to be the wisest way out. They ordered the disciples "not to speak or teach at all in the name of Jesus." (Acts 4:18 RSV)

But they were not to get rid of the disciples so easily. Peter raised the question, "Whether it is right in the sight of God to listen to you rather than God, you must judge." Then he went on to say, "We cannot but speak of what we have seen and heard." (Acts 4:18, 20, RSV)

Here Peter raised a difficult question. When does a person obey God rather than men? When is it right to defy legally-constituted authority in the name of conscience? How can a person know what is the will of God?

These are not easy questions to answer. The person who puts conscience ahead of constituted authority must have convictions and the courage to stand by them whatever the cost. He must be like the pirate of England who once said that he would gladly die for his king, if need be, but that he would not, and would not, be damned for him.

Peter fell back on his experience. He was not arguing for a supposition. He took his stand on what he had seen and heard.

Christians believe this is important evidence of Jesus' resurrection. The disciples were willing to die rather than to stop telling about it. Men do not die for a lie. They do not put their life on the line for what they know is not true, or a figment of the imagination. The fact that the disciples were willing to face the same fate as their Master shows their utter sincerity. They had not dreamed up their message. They were telling what they had seen and heard.

People today will be convinced not so much by the claims of religion, but by the results they see and hear in the lives of those who believe. Faith that results in moral character and love is what the world needs to see today.
